9,000 TO MARCH IN CITY'S ROTC PARADE TODAY

2 Units to Receive Tribune Awards.

The Chicago high schools' 9,000 ROTC cadets, the largest brigade in the country, will go on parade at noon today. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commanding officer of the 6th corps area, and approximately 400 school and army officials and civilian guests will be in the reviewing stand at Congress street when the cadets swing north in Michigan avenue.

Twenty-four bands and drum and bugle corps will be in the line of ROTC units from 27 public schools and St. Mel's parochial school. Emerging from an avenue of flags in Balbo drive, the cadets will march north in Michigan avenue to Randolph street, disbanding at the bus parking stand near Field boulevard.

Picked Group to Lead March.

Commanding the parade and first in the line of march will be the all-city brigade staff, a group of 11 cadet officers picked from the public school units by competitive examination. Cadet Colonel Westly E. Ruther of Sullivan High school is brigade commander.

The Tilden High school unit won the leading position following the brigade staff. Its victory in federal inspection was the fourth in the last six years. Cadet Lieutenant Colonel William F. Deeley and his staff will lead this unit.

Next will come the Crane Technical High school unit headed by Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Vlas V. Costagli and his staff. This school also finished second in 1939. St. Mel's unit, the only one from a nonpublic high school, has been assigned the next place in line.

Cadets to March 12 Abreast.

Marching 12 abreast, the cadets will show the public the result of an intensive year of study and drill. There will be 50 yards between the units of different schools, and half this distance between battalions of the same school.

At 11:40 a. m. another ceremony will be conducted in the avenue of flags, just east of Michigan avenue. Gen. Bonesteel and his staff, Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public schools, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will walk to this point from their cars in Michigan avenue. Col. McCormick will make a brief address, which will be recorded by a mobile radio unit and broadcast from W-G-N from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m.

Gen. Bonesteel then will present the color stands awarded by THE TRIBUNE to the two winning units—Tilden and Crane. With the presentation party facing east, Cadet Colonel Ruther will call the cadets to attention and the Tilden and Crane drum and bugle corps will sound "To the Colors."

Party to Review Cadets.

Immediately thereafter the presentation party will go by automobile to the driveway at the rear of the Congress street plaza. The party will be escorted to the reviewing stand in time to receive the salutes of the cadets.

In addition to the color awards, THE TRIBUNE awards medals to outstanding cadets in 75 midwestern high school and collegiate ROTC units each year as a stimulus to greater endeavor. Maj. Robert G. Turner of the 11th infantry, Fort Custer, Mich., who made the federal inspection of ROTC cadets here this year, said these competitive events have helped to build up the proficiency and high morale of the cadets.

THE TRIBUNE was largely instrumental in the establishment of military training in the city schools in 1917.

Britons Obtain Feed for Chicks That Aren't There

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—A census of birds owned by 800,000 backyard poultry keepers disclosed today that some applicants for rationed feedstuffs have no chickens or other poultry, and have been obtaining rations illegally. The proportion of fraudulent backyard poultry keepers was said to be small, but they are liable to prosecution. The number of backyard poultry keepers has increased by several hundred thousand during the war.

FIGHTS AGAINST OVERWHELMING ODDS, NAZIS SAY

German Warship Hit by Air Torpedo.

BERLIN, May 27 [Tuesday] (AP).—The 35,000 ton German battleship Bismarck has been fighting against "overwhelming" British naval forces in the North Atlantic since 9 o'clock last night [2 p. m. Chicago time], the German high command announced today.

The position of the great naval battle was not given, but presumably it was somewhere between Iceland and Greenland near where the Bismarck sank the 42,100 ton British battle cruiser Hood last Saturday with its 1,341 officers and men.

No details of the action were given, nor was there any indication of the Nazi naval strength involved. The special high command communique said:

"The battleship Bismarck has been engaged in heavy fighting since 9 p. m. Monday night against overwhelming forces."

Tell of Fleet's Pursuit.

LONDON, May 27 [Tuesday] (AP).—British warships apparently were engaged in a mighty night duel with a German battle squadron, including the 35,000 ton Bismarck, in the North Atlantic early today after a British naval plane rammed an aerial torpedo into the Bismarck.

British sources gleefully read the German communique announcing that the Bismarck was engaged against "overwhelming" British units, but the admiralty still kept its silence about the progress of the British effort to kill off the powerful Nazi warship which sank the 42,100 ton British battle cruiser Hood off Greenland last Saturday.

Powerful Ships in Chase.

There was a possibility that the 33,950 ton British battleships Nelson and Rodney, and the 35,000 ton King George V. and Prince of Wales—two of Britain's newest and most powerful ships—were engaged in closing in on the Bismarck and her supporting craft.

The Bismarck mounts 8 15 inch guns and has additional batteries of 12 5.9 inch and 16 4-1 inch armament. Her normal complement is 1,400 officers and men. She has a speed of 30 knots.

The Nelson and Rodney are capable of 23 knots, but are equipped with 9 16 inch guns, 12 6 inch guns, and lesser armament. The King George V. class ships can make more than 30 knots. They mount 10 14 inch guns and 16 5.25 inch guns.

[The Germans said that a ship of the King George class had retired damaged from Saturday's fight.]

HELP FROM GIBRALTAR?

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—Reports circulated here today that most of the British fleet based at Gibraltar had left suddenly over the week-end and headed for the Atlantic. Significance was attached to these reports in view of the continued chase of the German battleship Bismarck.

"Every effort undoubtedly is being made by the home fleet to cut off retreat," the naval correspondent of the Daily Telegraph said.

The sinking of the battle cruiser Hood and the progress of operations in Crete monopolized the attention of the public and press. Britons sought to discover the implications of these events on Britain's two vital battle fronts—the Mediterranean and the Atlantic.

Questions of Hood Sinking.

The Hood sinking raised these questions:

How was it possible for a German shell to penetrate into the heart of the ship?

Did the Hood possess structural weaknesses and a defective system of storing and handling ammunition as was the case of the British cruisers [Queen Mary and Indefatigable] sunk in the battle of Jutland?

Committee to Consider Ban on Women at Bar Rails

The city council license committee will meet today to consider a proposal by Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] which would ban women from standing at bars where hard liquor is sold. Ald. Thomas P. Keane ,31st] said the matterly probably would be referred to a subcommittee, but urged that any one favoring or opposing the suggestion appear to state his views.

HE WAS OVERWHELMED BY THE WORLD'S GRATITUDE

(Reprinted from the Chicago Tribune, Aug. 30, 1905.)

President Theodore Roosevelt promoted a negotiated peace between Russia and Japan (Great Britain's ally), bringing to an end the bloody Russo-Japanese war. He won the blessings of the whole world and received the Nobel peace prize. This negotiated peace has endured 36 years—much longer than the dictated peace of Versailles.

President Franklin Roosevelt now has the opportunity of promoting a negotiated peace between Great Britain and Germany. It may be the surest means of saving the British empire. It certainly would save America from a disastrous war at a great military disadvantage, a war in which we have everything to lose and nothing to gain.

The President would win the immortal gratitude of all humanity.

ONTARIO FOREST FIRE RAGES OVER A 600 MILE AREA

OTTAWA, Ont., May 26 (AP).—Only scattered showers were predicted tonight for the bushlands of northern Ontario and Quebec, where hundreds are fighting forest fires that have destroyed millions of dollars' worth of timber and pulpwood in a week.

Many fires appeared under control, but one was declared to be still raging over 600 square miles on a 65 mile front in the Gogama area north of Sudbury, Ont. It has burned over nine townships and destroyed standing timber valued at $1,000,000. Rain helped to quench a fire in the Falconbridge area near Sudbury.

Only 1 of 11 bush fires still raged in the Eagle district, north of Maniwaki, Que. Bush fires north of Edmonton, Alta., were under control.

WHAT F. D. R. SAID

President Roosevelt, on October 30, 1940, speaking to fathers and mothers on the selective service act:

"And while I am talking to you mothers and fathers, I give you one more assurance.

"I have said this before, but I shall say it again and again. Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars.

"They are going into training to form a force so strong that, by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores.

"The purpose of our defense is defense."

Quints Make a Confession: Radio Mutiny Was Own Plot

CALLANDER, Ont., May 26 [Special].—The five most famous little girls in the world—the Dionne quintuplets—disclosed today that they mutinied in a recent radio broadcast because they thought their parents were being unfairly treated.

The mutiny took place during a Mother's day broadcast sponsored by the Ontario travel bureau and transmitted to radio listeners thruout the continent. Marie, Annette, Cecile, Emilie, and Yvonne were supposed to go thru a prepared program in English. Instead they ad libbed in French.

As a result, Yvonne, the eldest and the ringleader in this conspiracy as in others, is undergoing discipline.

Wednesday will be the seventh birthday of the quints and the story of the mutiny came out when a reporter talked to the girls of their birthday plans.

Yvonne Absolves Parents.

Yvonne told of the incident, for which the parents have been blamed.

"Nurse told us that we were to invite the world to come and visit us," she declared. "She said the invitation would be made in English on a Mother's day program. I asked her if our own mother would be there. She said 'No.'

"I said we wouldn't talk in English if mama couldn't be there and my sisters said so, too. Nurse said I would be punished. She said I would have no bonbons. She said for three weeks I would have to go to bed an hour ahead of the others, without even being allowed to go to chapel to say my rosary.

"I said if it had to be that way, all right. But when the time came none of us spoke English. We couldn't say we hoped all the mamas in the world would be happy on Mother's day when we knew our own mother wouldn't be."

Ignored, Says Father.

The sponsors of the broadcast believed the quints had been inspired by their parents in the rebellion, but Oliva Dionne and his wife said today that was untrue.

"We didn't even know there was to be a broadcast," Dionne said. "If our consent or our coöperation had been asked, or even permitted, we would have persuaded the girls to speak English."

He said he was more convinced than ever that he and his wife should have control of their daughters and that he expected soon to press the point.

No formal plans have been made for the quints' birthday. Probably they will have the customary cake and the usual visit from their parents and brothers and sisters. And maybe Yvonne will have bonbons.

SAY LA GUARDIA GETS URGENT BID TO VISIT ENGLAND

LONDON, May 26 (AP).—Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, was reliably reported today to have invited Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York, recently named director of the United States office of civilian defense, to visit Britain as soon as possible. La Guardia was said to be deciding when he could best get away for such a trip.

["Forget it," said La Guardia in New York when he was asked about the report. "I have too much work to do right here."]

Youths Now 21 to Register for Draft on July 1

Draft officials yesterday began preparing for the registration July 1 of 1,100,000 Americans—including approximately 66,000 in Illinois—who have reached the age of 21 since the first draft registration last Oct. 16.

The national machinery was set in motion by a proclamation by President Roosevelt calling upon the governors of the 48 states and the territories of Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Alaska to coöperate. The President said the move "is required in the interest of national defense."

Covers All Who Came of Age.

Under the terms of yesterday's proclamation the following men will be required to register between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. on July 1:

1. Every male citizen or male alien who, on or before July 1 and subsequent to Oct. 16, 1940, reached 21 years of age and has not previously been registered under the draft act.

2. A person who on Oct. 16 had reached 21 years of age or had not yet reached 36 years and has not yet registered for the draft.

Paul G. Armstrong Illinois director of selective service, said estimates based on last October's registration indicate that 32,000 will register with downstate boards, and 34,000 in Cook county. Of the Cook county total, about 28,500 will register in Chicago's 151 draft boards, and 5,500 in the 29 suburban boards.

See Draft Deferment Cut.

Because of the low deferment rate anticipated among the 21 year old men, it was estimated that the new registration will increase the number of men available for service in Cook county by nearly half.

Nearly 23,000 of Cook county's original 550,000 registrants have been inducted. However, draft boards examine approximately seven men to get one draftee, so that some 78,000 have been deferred, leaving about 449,000 on the draft rolls. At this rate of deferment the county's reservoir of acceptable men is only approximately 65,000.

Armstrong estimated that the deferment rate among the July 1 registrants will be only about one in seven, since few will be married or well enough established in business to be deferred for occupational reasons and health will be much better.

PLAN SIX DAY SCHEDULE

The Chicago draft induction station will operate six days a week beginning Saturday, June 14, to take care of an average of 500 men a day who are expected to be called up during the second half of June, selective service headquarters announced yesterday. The station has been open five days a week since last November.

More than 11,000 men will be inducted next month, officials said, approximately tripling the 3,754 reporting in May. Paul G. Armstrong said the sharp reduction in May was necessary because of the exhausting of camp facilities in the southeast, where Chicago men are being sent. The June quota will take care of the men who were scheduled originally for May induction. Seventy-four hundred men were inducted in April, the record month so far.

The induction station will reopen today after being closed since May 14. Four Chicago and 340 downstate boards will send 487 men for examination and induction today. The station will remain closed from Friday, Memorial day, until next Monday, June 2, when Chicago boards start delivering their June quotas.

VISITS BARRED TO 4 BLAMED FOR FRENCH DEFEAT

VICHY, France, May 26.—The weekly news magazine Candide today reported that henceforth only near relatives and counsel for the defense will be permitted to visit the four men interned at Bourrassol under indictment by the supreme court for responsibility for the French defeat. They are former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum, Gen. Maurice Gamelin, and former Air Minister Guy La Chambre.

Swiss Attempts to Get in Touch with Berlin Fail

BERNE, Switzerland, May 27 [Tuesday] (AP).—Attempts to communicate with Berlin late last night and early today failed, and the reason could not be learned. The Nuremberg station on the teletypewriter circuit said communication was impossible "for the moment." Swiss telephone operators said the line to Berlin was open, but that calls were not being accepted.

ROOSEVELT TALK 'WILL GO LIMIT,' VIEW IN LONDON

English Papers Tell What's Expected.

White House Mum

President Roosevelt will make his long awaited statement on America's stand on the European war at 9:30 o'clock tonight [Chicago time]. The speech is expected to take 40 minutes. It will be broadcast over W-G-N, and five other Chicago radio stations.

The White House and other high officials in Washington, D. C., maintained tight lipped silence on what the President will say. [Story on page 6.]

Meanwhile the London press widely discussed the speech and professed to forecast what Mr. Roosevelt will announce. The following London dispatch quotes from some of these forecasts.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 27 [Tuesday].—Today's Daily Mail expresses confidence that President Roosevelt, in his fireside chat tonight, will "extend the Monroe doctrine at least half way across the Atlantic and be ready, by armed protection of ships, to defend the freedom of those seas."

Referring to the declaration attributed to Grand Admiral Erich H. A. Raeder of Germany, that American protection of convoys would be regarded as an act of war by Germany, the Daily Mail asks: "What then is possible for the United States thereafter but full participation?"

Mr. Roosevelt and his entire cabinet, the Daily Mail believes, "now have come to the conclusion that in order to defeat Germany, full United States participation is necessary."

Looks for an Answer.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech, the newspaper declares, "will certainly be a decisive declaration determining the future war policy of the United States." It looks to the President to answer this question: "How soon full participation likely will take place and in what form will the United States approach it?"

Altho the Daily Mail admits that powerful opposition exists in the United States against any further participation in the conflict and that internal as much as external affairs will determine the method the President adopts toward full participation, it forecasts the possibility of America sending troops to Britain in addition to full scale naval aid. The newspaper says:

"Roosevelt's election pledge that he would not send American boys to fight a foreign war must be strictly observed until he can fully convince the United States of the fact manifest to us that this is not for them a foreign war but America's battle just as much as ours."

Expects "Full Coöperation."

Mr. Roosevelt, in other words, is expected to wind up the debate on the side of those who argue that this is America's war and that Britain is fighting America's battles as well as her own. This already has been emphasized by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, Premier R. G. Menzies of Australia, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and others.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express similarly expects the President to announce "full coöperation" at least in the battle of the Atlantic. The newspaper in an editorial quotes extracts from the American press on the seriousness of the British shipping position in the Atlantic.

"There is a great call for effort and sacrifice in every line we print here," it says. "We ask, too, from the United States full coöperation to beat this menace, coöperation in getting United States weapons to Britain.

"We hope this coöperation will come now this very day and that it will go on for all time. For by this means our two great nations can provide a lasting guarantee of freedom and peace."

Treat United States as an Ally.

"Our relations with America are very intimate these days," the Evening News said. "For the purpose of information, we treat her as an ally. There is no aspect of the many phases of the war, actual and potential, of

200 NORTH MICHIGAN AVENUE AT LAKE STREET

MORTON URGES AIRPORT IN LAKE OFF HOWARD ST.

Advantages of Shoal Cited by Manufacturer.

Sterling Morton.

A suggestion that Chicago should take advantage of a shoal area in Lake Michigan and build a lake front airport a mile off Howard street beach was made yesterday by Sterling Morton, manufacturer and yachtsman. The proposal was transmitted to Congressman Charles S. Dewey of the 9th Illinois district, whose civic committee at this time is preparing a balanced program of aviation development necessary for Chicagoland's future.

Asserting that Chicago is going to require a great many more facilities for commercial and military flying, Morton, who is secretary of the salt company bearing the family name, urged Congressman Dewey to investigate the possibilities of creating a lake front field by filling in the shoal waters that extend for three miles out into the lake off Howard street.

Economy and Safety Stressed.

This shoal, Morton said, is unlike any similar formation in the southern end of the lake. The water is shallow enough to permit economical construction of a field at a safe distance from the shore and the building line. The waters in the shoal area range from 17 to 24 feet deep, the average depth appearing from war department charts to be about 22 feet.

The major cost of any island airport off Chicago, as he pointed out, would be filling operations. By building in shoal waters it would be possible to locate the airport farther out in the lake without requiring any more filling than would be needed for the proposed downtown island field that now has the approval of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, the war department and the city engineers.

Located Off Northern Island.

The downtown project, approved by the CAA in December, 1938, calls for a field of 325 acres—with possibilities of enlargement to 425 acres—located 2,750 feet east of Northerly island with 16th street as its axis. In its larger version the proposed airport would accommodate double runways in six directions, each 5,000 feet long.

This field would be created by filling in waters that range from 12 to 24 feet in depth, the average being approximately 17 feet. It would be one and a half miles from the closest building line, which is safe enough for approaches and take-offs, according to the CAA's engineers.

"In the past there has been much opposition to the proposed Northerly island field," Morton said. "But the main thing is to get another airport and get it quickly. Personally I believe we should have two island airports—downtown and off Howard street—as well as a big field on the city's northwest side comparable to our present inland Chicago airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue.

Suggests Plan as Compromise.

"Since there has been a lot of opposition to the Northerly island field, it seems to me that all groups might get together in an excellent compromise on the Howard street project."

As outlined by Morton an island airport off Howard street could be two miles square if necessary and have its western boundary parallel to and one mile from shore, yet the eastern edge still would lie within the shoal water area. The northern limits of the shoal are roughly three-eighths of a mile north of Howard street, he said. It extends two miles south of Howard.

Access to the city would be over a causeway or bridge which would connect with the outer drive system. Morton said that while the field would be 12 miles from the loop, it would be possible for traffic to get to and from it much more quickly than is now possible over the 9 mile distance from the loop to Chicago airport.

BRITAIN TO SEND AIR RAID EXPERT TO INSTRUCT U. S.

Boston, Mass., May 26 (AP).—A wounded officer of the royal air force has been obtained as an instructor for the Massachusetts civilian defense school—the first man released by England for such duty.

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall announced tonight that John G. Winant, American ambassador to Great Britain, had cabled him that arrangements are being made to fly Lieut. Col. Harry M. Leapman to this country in the first available plane.

The Massachusetts committee on public safety, declaring Leapman would instruct classes of air raid wardens, described him as the first man "to be permitted to come to the United States to give the benefit of his experience and knowledge to members of a civilian defense school." Leapman organized the air raid precautions services in Cumberland county, England.

A Note to 'Dear Burglars' Proves a Stitch in Time

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—A sign to discourage looting was posted in the window of the Croydon council salvage collection headquarters today. It reads: "Dear burglars, don't waste your time. We take away all valuables daily."

Morgenthau on High Seas Inspecting Atlantic Patrol

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau is on the high seas today inspecting the navy's Atlantic patrol. Officials said that Morgenthau is the guest of Admiral E. J. King, commander of the Atlantic fleet. The effectiveness of the patrol in helping get goods to England has been under discussion in the capital in connection with the congressional debate over possible use of convoys. Aids said it is unusual for Morgenthau to leave the capital when President Roosevelt is here.

FOUR DIVISIONS OF ITALIANS CEASE TO EXIST—BRITAIN

CAIRO, Egypt, May 26.—The British tonight declared that four Italian divisions "have ceased to exist," and two Italian generals have been captured in Ethiopian cleanup operations north and west of Addis Ababa.

The captured officers were identified as Gen. Liberati, commander of the Italian 25th division, and Gen. Baccari, commander of the 101st division, who were taken with their troops in the Soddu area, about 150 miles west of Addis Ababa.

A communique told of the capture of 8,570 military prisoners—5,000 colonial infantrymen, 570 Italian soldiers, and 3,000 banda [natives]—who with 700 civilians were said to have escaped from Debra Markos, which the British invested early in April. The troops and civilians attempted to evade capture by flight across the trackless mountains north of Addis Ababa, but were overtaken May 22.

GIVE US SPEED! KNUDSEN ASKS AT ARMS CLINIC

Fuller Hits Widening Curbs on Industry.

William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, told the nation's manufacturers last night that the ground work for production of the four war essentials—planes, tanks, ships, and guns—has been laid. At the same time he urged them: "Let's get this job done, and for Heaven's sake, let's get it done quickly!"

Knudsen spoke at a preparedness rally of business and industrial executives in the Stevens hotel. The meeting was sponsored by the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the National Association of Manufacturers.

N. A. M. Head Hits Curbs.

Another speaker, Walter D. Fuller, N. A. M. president and head of the Curtis Publishing company, told the executives that the New Deal administration has used the terms "national defense" and "limited emergency" to bring about virtually complete government control of business.

"For all practical purposes," said Fuller, "a manufacturer now is a branch manager for government."

He cited governmental agencies' control over raw material purchases, wages, labor relations, plant allocations for defense, industrial borrowing, and prices.

Earlier in the day the business men had been told by Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, that the government soon will demand drastic cuts in production for consumers and purchasing of ordinary raw materials, and the transfer of skilled labor to plants with defense priorities.

Manufacturers Give Pledges.

At the rally last night, attended by 1,700 executives, Knudsen was presented with the written pledges of 16,000 manufacturers, guaranteeing their coöperation in the preparedness program.

"We didn't consider pledges necessary," Knudsen said simply.

The OPM director's address emphasized the necessity for speed. "We have but one thought—all of us," he said.

"We in Washington, D. C., are here to help you," Knudsen continued, "but it's your job. Manufacturers, engineers, executives, and workmen must combine their energies to get this job done as it has never been done before.

"We will do it in a way that will provide initiative and free enterprise. This is a struggle between centralized and decentralized plans. We all know where America stands. This country was built on a decentralized plan, and it produced the greatest state in the world with the highest standard of living of any country.

Calls No Sacrifice Too Great.

"If any one tries to interfere with our kind of democracy, we can meet that interference. If defense progress calls for sacrifices in the form of long working hours, wealth, and goods, we will make them. No sacrifice is too great to preserve American democracy.

"Even now we are a little ahead of where we were at this time in the last war. But war has changed and time is shorter. This is no time to argue methods of procedure. We in Washington can only try to help you who produce the goods."

Fuller, whose speech preceded that of Knudsen, called for action to stop the "cancerous growth" of strikes in the arms industries.

Give People Facts, Says Fuller.

He urged the administration to tell the people the facts on "what the nation demands that we sacrifice and for how long." He asserted that government officials have more information at hand than ever before, but that still the people have fewer facts to guide their judgment.

"It is not because men in high places do not know what is happening. It is because the people who must pay the bills and fight the battles are uninformed," Fuller continued. "It is a duty to the national morale for the government to stop taking our liberties by the creeping device of subterfuge."

Robert M. Gaylord of Rockford, president of the Illinois association, told the rally that labor must shoulder the responsibility of putting a stop to strikes in defense industries that are called simply to force men to join certain unions, or pay dues, or to obtain jurisdiction over workers.

"This national defense program and the emergency created by it should not be seized as an opportunity to force men to join unions they do not want to join," Gaylord said. "Men who use it in this manner are profiteers in the fullest sense of the word."

Bare New Deal Plan of Future.

At the afternoon sessions two government spokesmen served notice on American industry that the armament program is bringing about a social and economic revolution that will substitute government planning and domination for individual initiative and free competition.

The blueprint for the New Deal "wave of the future" was casually introduced to the startled business men by Henderson and Philip D. Reed, senior consultant to the priorities division of the OPM.

As they heard the preparedness program described by Reed as "advancing by several decades the 20th century trend away from laissez faire and toward economic integration and industry-wide planning under government supervision" it appeared that a native socialism had arrived in the administration's program to defeat Hitler's brand of the same thing.

Heralds a "Labor Front."

Reed also passed along the word that an American "labor front," similar to the organization directed by Dr. Ley in Germany, which regiments both employer and employé under government direction, is in the process of arriving. He said:

"I anticipate and look forward to a mature, consolidated, national labor organization, led by able and understanding men, who will negotiate all questions pertaining to wages, hours, and conditions of work, with business leaders acting in concert thru associations of employés on an industry basis."

This brought an attack by N. A. M. spokesmen and by David R. Clarke, general counsel for the Illinois manufacturers, who said such a move would mean the end of the present system of enterprise.

Henderson Warns Business.

Henderson observed that the preparedness program soon will be eating up national wealth at the rate of 1½ billion dollars a month, and then warned the men upon whom the responsibility for production rests that they are facing drastic readjustments, but that "you'll like it, altho you'll groan and grunt and swear and holler."

Henderson cautioned the business men that they face rationing of vital raw materials, that drafts may be made upon their highly skilled labor if craftsmen are needed more in other industries, that they will be fighting for freight cars to move stocks not related to the war effort, and that they must cut out some of the frills in the consumer goods lines. He added: "And this is only the beginning."

Gen. Wood Speaks.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, vice president of the national manufacturers' group, and chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., told a luncheon session that "regardless of conflicting versions of the war situation America is unanimous on building its defenses in a world of force."

"We have a job to be done in record time," he asserted. "We must preserve free enterprise for the future."

John C. Gall, N. A. M. counsel, told the afternoon session that certain forces within the Roosevelt administration are using the preparedness program as "just another crisis, an opportunity to go ahead with their reforms and restrictions and regulations of business."

Knudsen Addresses Purchasers.

Knudsen spoke in the afternoon to a session of the National Association of Purchasing Agents, which is holding its annual convention in the Stevens.

"We feel it important that individual manufacturers have as much freedom as possible, for only by that method can we accomplish much in the end," he said. "Please understand that as far as the OPM is concerned we are satisfied to have this job handled with the least possible government interference."

Knudsen explained that the concentration of arms orders with large manufacturers was done solely with a view to speeding output. A scattering of orders with subcontractors and smaller concerns is necessary to round out the program, he said.

View Naval Promotion Bill as Move to Fight with British

Washington, D. C., May 26 [Special].—The house naval affairs committee today acted favorably on legislation authorizing the appointment of an unlimited number of vice admirals. These new vice admirals, the navy has advised congress, are needed to command "task forces" assigned to special sea missions of great importance.

This explanation caused wide speculation as to whether these "task forces" might be assigned to operate in conjunction with the British fleet.

The term "task forces" identifies units such as a couple of battleships and their screening cruisers and destroyers, operating independently of the fleet. Naval observers said these forces might be employed on convoy duty, on an expedition to seize Dakar, to assist the British at Singapore, or on any other mission authorized by the President, as commander in chief.

Outranked by Britons.

The committee report raised the question of relative rank of United States naval officers and officers of other navies in future assignments. The number of British vice admirals far exceeds the number of United States officers of that rank.

"The navy department," the report said, "faces the desirability of being able to detail officers of sufficient rank to represent this country effectively from the standpoint of relative rank with officers of other navies, and also the desirability of giving increased rank to an officer commanding a special unit afloat if the importance of that command should warrant."

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox also asked congress to pass legislation granting naval commanders authority to take "whatever steps they deem necessary" in United States territorial waters "for the proper protection of the naval forces."

[A Tribune dispatch from London last night said Secretary Knox's proposed bill giving "American naval commanders a free hand" was welcomed in British circles. Some stories concerning the British hunt for the Bismarck sought seemingly to imply that American ships were patrolling the area of the Atlantic where the search was on. Some stressed that the fact that the proposed Knox law would be retroactive may soon become evident.]

Would Delegate Powers.

Existing law vests that authority in the secretary and chief of naval operations. The bill submitted by Knox would greatly broaden the powers of ship commanders.

Knox, in a letter to the speaker of the house, said the bill "empowers control, by responsible officers concerned, of the movement and anchorage of any vessel, foreign or domestic, in the territorial waters of the United States, as he may deem necessary and proper to effect such protection and security to naval vessels and their place of anchorage."

"The authority granted by this bill is not designed to interfere with the authority of the secretary of war or the secretary of the treasury," Knox explained. "The sole purpose of this bill is to insure the security of the vessels of the fleet."

NEW GROUP ASKS U. S. TO DECLARE WAR ON HITLER

Westport, Conn., May 26 [Special].—This fashionable community gave birth tonight to an outright interventionist organization which sent a telegram to President Roosevelt urging that America immediately declare war on Germany. The group calls itself the League for a Declared War.

Westport's population is composed largely of artists and writers who commute to New York. Some of those on the new committee are employed by interventionist publications. Harold von Schmidt, artist and illustrator, who is temporary chairman, asserted the organization will circulate petitions calling for a declaration of war now. The petition reads:

"Our government and people, thru the lend-lease bill, have declared that British victory is vital to our defense. We are urging the British to kill and be killed for us. We are waging an undeclared war—something which Britain refused to do. This is the stratagem of a Fascist state. It is unworthy of a democracy. Cowards do not deserve to survive. Americans have never been cowards.

"The effect [of a war declaration] on German morale would be devastating. Hitler fears, more than anything else, having to fight the United States now."

MYSTERY CLOAKS BRITISH SEIZURE OF SEA TRAVELER

Ship Chased and Halted on Leaving Bermuda.

New York, May 26 [Special].—The questioning and detention by federal agents today of Mrs. Wilhelmena Wout, who arrived from Bermuda on the liner Siboney, disclosed that her husband, Cornelius, 32 years old, was taken from the ship several days ago by British intelligence officers who chased it by speedboat as it left Bermuda.

Other passengers said that Wout, who declared that he was a Dutch diplomatic courier, had made many acquaintances during the eight day voyage from Lisbon to Bermuda, and that he made no secret of the fact that he was carrying documents addressed to the German embassy in Washington and had with him a compact but powerful radio set.

Wout's Story Is Quoted.

Wout said, according to these persons, that German authorities had given him permission to leave Europe only after he agreed to act as a messenger for them. However, Wout is quoted as saying, he told the story to the Dutch and American authorities in Lisbon, and it was decided that he would complete his mission, while federal bureau of investigation agents kept close watch.

Officers aboard the Siboney said Wout made no attempt to hide possession of the documents when questioned by intelligence officers in Bermuda and said that "the American's knew about them." These were opened and sent ashore with the radio.

Wout still was aboard the Siboney when she cleared Bermuda harbor, and other passengers said he complained bitterly that loss of the documents would hinder trapping of enemy agents in the United States.

Launch Overtakes Ship.

At the harbor entrance, however, a speed launch drew alongside and British officers boarded the Siboney once more and took Wout off. As the launch pulled toward shore Wout stood smilingly in the stern of the small craft, waving farewell to his wife.

Officials here said Mrs. Wout would be detained on Ellis island until her husband's status is cleared up.

Another passenger, Frederick Ruckert, said to be a German national, also was taken from the Siboney in Bermuda.

Italian Diplomat Freed by British Flies On to Rome

BRITISH BOMBERS ATTACK AIRPORT IN FRENCH SYRIA

Palmyra Says Runways Damaged in Raid.

LONDON, May 26 (AP).—The Beirut, Lebanon [Syria] wireless today reported that 20 British bombers raided an airdrome at Palmyra, French Syria, damaging the runways but causing no casualties. The British have been attacking Syrian airdromes since the Germans began using them to aid Iraq against British forces.

To Report on Raids.

VICHY, France, May 26 (AP).—Air Secretary Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret returned to Vichy by plane today to report to the government on what were described as continuing British attacks on French airdromes in Syria.

He declared that the suddenness of developments in Syria caused him to break off his north African tour and fly to Beirut for personal supervision and organization of the mandate's anti-aircraft defenses.

"Lying propaganda" has failed to provoke any revolt in Syria and Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's popularity is growing daily," he said.

Iraq Warfare Dwindles.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 26 (AP).—Guerrilla warfare between the British and the pro-axis forces of Iraq dwindled today.

The British middle east command disposed of the Iraq situation briefly today with this announcement: "At Fallujah and Basra all is quiet."

Attacks Repulsed, Iraq Says.

BAGDAD, Iraq, May 26 (AP).—The Iraq government tonight reported that British troops suffered 150 casualties in unsuccessful attacks on Iraqi forces in the south near Maaquil and Chouriba. All British attacks on other fronts were repulsed, the communique said.

Between Ramadi and Rutba in the west the British were said to have retreated after a battle in which several British prisoners were taken and some British machine guns seized.

A troop convoy southwest of Lake Habbaniya was attacked by Iraq planes "causing heavy losses" to the British.

BRITISH TOLD HIGH PAY, DOUBLE FOR SUNDAY, CUT PLANE OUTPUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 26.—A report issued today by the Committee on National Expenditures in Factories declared that high wages and the opportunity to work on Sunday at double pay were responsible for the weekly loss of thousands of man hours in the aircraft industry.

When a workman can earn double time on Sundays, it stated, "it is not surprising that if he is tired he will take off one week day, knowing he can make up the loss on Sunday."

The report said a shortage of labor is interfering with production. Inspectors visited 120 establishments and reported that one firm alone required 1,000 men and 1,000 women in the next few months but "saw little prospect of obtaining them."

Aircraft factory wages were found to reach up to $52 a week, but the average was given as $28.

Carol and his companion will remain three days before going to exile in Cuba.

BRITISH MASTERY OF SEAS GROWING WEAK—GERMANY

11 Cruisers Sunk in Fight for Crete, Nazis Say.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, May 27 (Tuesday) (AP).—German dive bombers scored repeated direct hits on a British aircraft carrier yesterday in the eastern Mediterranean, authorized sources declared today. A British cruiser also was reported hit during the same attack.

BERLIN, May 26 (AP).—Reinforced German troops fought what the high command called "a successful battle" for the control of Crete while the Nazi press stressed Britain's "weakening hold" on her mastery of the sea today.

A communique gave no definite information on the extent of the German "success" on the mountainous Mediterranean island after a week of operations by parachutists and troops landed by transport planes.

An unbroken stream of fresh supplies and men, however, was held by the news service, Dienst aus Deutschland, to be guaranteed as a result of the "devastating" blow which the British fleet suffered in matching its strength against the German air force. It said it was considered probable that the British ships have withdrawn completely from Crete waters.

Claim Cruiser Section Defeated.

Military spokesmen declared that the German air force, assisted by the Italian navy, had virtually wiped out the cruiser section of England's eastern Mediterranean fleet. Twelve cruisers were known to have been stationed in Alexandria, they said.

The high command announced that seven were sunk by the German air force and four by the Italian navy and air force in actions since the beginning of the Crete attack May 20.

In addition the high command emphasized that the British had lost eight destroyers, one submarine, and five speedboats [or torpedo boats] in the eastern Mediterranean in an all-out attempt to break up German efforts to take Crete.

[If the German claims are confirmed the action at Crete would prove to be one of the most extensive naval defeats suffered by Britain in the war. When the war began the British navy had 52 cruisers, 161 destroyers, 56 submarines, and 10 torpedo or speedboats.]

25 Cruisers Sunk—Berlin.

The results of the air-navy clash at Crete, in the opinion of authorized sources, far overshadowed the sensational sinking Saturday of Britain's biggest ship, the battle cruiser Hood, by the Bismarck.

Since the beginning of the war, Dienst aus Deutschland said, the high command has reported the sinking of 29 British cruisers.

The entire press emphasized the serious effects such losses as those at Crete and Iceland would have in the battle of the Atlantic and on England's seapower as a whole.

Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter said the Crete front had become "one of attrition for the English war fleet which today urgently needs every single ship but especially battleships, cruisers, and destroyers which play an indispensable rôle in the battle of the Atlantic."

Comparison of Crete and Long Island

Captions on the map tell principal events of yesterday's fighting at the Mediterranean Island of Crete.

Long Island, which is smaller but in some respects comparable to Crete. Canea, the capital of Crete, is about the position of Long Island's Great Neck or Port Washington. Retimo and Candia, two places of fierce fighting in Crete, are placed similarly to Oyster Bay and Port Jefferson. Crete, however, is mountainous and thinly populated; Long Island flat and densely populated. The two maps are drawn to the same scale.

TRUCKS JAM N. Y. PIERS AS SHIPS FOR BRITAIN LOAD

New York, May 26 (AP).—Trucks loaded with shipments bound for Britain are jamming the piers of the biggest harbor facilities in the world, shippers said today, as a plan to stagger truck delivery was announced.

Walter P. Hedden, chief of the port of New York authority's bureau of commerce, called a conference for June 3 to discuss ways of ending the truck traffic jam.

"We believe it would be desirable to spread trucking movements to and from piers over several days instead of concentrating truck deliveries of export freight in the period just prior to sailings," Hedden said.

GERMAN TROOPS PIERCE DEFENSE IN CRETE BATTLE

Fight Hand-to-Hand Near Island's Capital.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 26 (AP).—Aided by air-borne tanks, which the British say the Germans have landed on Crete, the German invasion force today was reported to have pierced the defenders' positions west of Canea, capital of the island.

This, said the middle east headquarters of the British imperial forces, cost the Germans heavily in casualties, and the New Zealand forces—backbone of Crete's defenses—immediately counter-attacked.

The latest word, with the outcome of the German thrust still in the balance, was that fierce, hand-to-hand fighting was continuing in the area about the German held Malemi airport.

Claim Aerial Victory.

The British claimed an aerial victory in Crete for the resurgent RAF—destruction of at least 24 German planes of all types and damaging of others in assaults yesterday and the night before on German air force positions as well as in air fighting. The RAF said its losses were nil.

The German sky troop base at Malemi airdrome and adjacent fields where big transports and gliders have been landing with troops ferried from the Greek mainland were the principal targets.

Bomb bursts were seen among a large concentration and Junkers-52 troop carriers, the RAF said. One was hit while landing and another was fired while taxiing across the field. Another JU-52 was shot down by an RAF bomber while a fighter struck down a JU-89 into Suda bay and hit a second which was last seen pouring smoke.

Marines Join Defenders.

Informed British sources said British marines had joined the Crete defenders, but whether this meant strong reënforcements by sea could not be confirmed.

The British challenged the German claim that the western tip of Crete was in solid German control, speaking of the defense dispositions west of Canea as "positions" rather than as a "line."

[The coastal contours of Crete inevitably suggest to Americans Long Island—about 120 miles long as compared with Crete's 160. By this comparison Canea is about in the position of Great Neck or Port Washington. The other two invaded spots, Retimo and Candia, find their counterparts in Oyster Bay and Port Jefferson—all on the north shore. There, however, the parallel ends. Crete's terrain runs to mountains a mile and a half high in many places and her population of about 390,000 would take no more than a corner of Brooklyn.]

British Hold Their Own.

Except for the breach around the Malemi airport, the British communique pictured the defenders—New Zealanders, Greeks, Cretans, and a scattering of Australians and Britons—as holding their own against the two other footholds which the Germans, by a week of attempts at vertical envelopment, had won on Crete.

"At Candia and Retimo," said the communique, "there is no change in the situation."

Of the test west of Canea, the British command said:

"In the Malemi area, following the arrival of additional air borne reenforcements, the Germans, under cover of an intensive air bombardment, delivered a strong attack against our troops."

The disclosure that German planes had landed tanks was one more strange development of the bizarre battle of Crete.

Counted on Sea Mastery.

The amazing struggle already has been highlighted by the downward swarming of parachute and glider carried shock troops intended to overcome the defenders by sheer force of numbers.

The British, who claim for their naval forces the destruction or rout of all but a few sea-borne German landing parties, had counted on sea mastery to keep from the invaders of Crete all but the lightest sort of artillery.

British success along this line may have forced the Germans to pull the Pegasus tanks out of their bag of military tricks.

ROOSEVELT TALK AWAITED AS NEW PATTERN FOR WAR

Advisers Hope for Use of American Armed Forces.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—The American people and the remainder of the civilized world are awaiting tensely President Roosevelt's radio speech on the war tomorrow night.

What they expect to learn from the momentous utterance is whether the President proposes to send the armed forces of the United States into the wars raging across the seas. The policy he enunciates may determine whether America is to go into the war as a full fledged belligerent or remain a nonbelligerent aiding Britain by measures short of war. The stand he takes is expected to influence profoundly the course of the war.

The President will make his address to the world in a 40 minute broadcast over all radio networks at 9:30 o'clock, Chicago daylight time. He will face the microphones in the east room of the White House in the presence of the diplomats of all the Latin American republics and their families.

Original Date Cancelled.

The speech, originally planned for a reception to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt by the Pan-American union on May 14, was postponed, ostensibly because of Mr. Roosevelt's indisposition.

The importance attached to the pronouncement by the President himself is indicated by the arrangements made to broadcast the address by short wave to all countries and to rebroadcast it in German, French, Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese.

Members of the cabinet, most of the higherups of the administration, and interventionists generally are confident that the President will proclaim America's determination to go to the rescue of Great Britain with all our resources, including our army and navy, notwithstanding the risk of plunging the country into a fighting war.

War Foes Feel Confident.

Noninterventionists are no less confident that Mr. Roosevelt will stop short of any definite commitment to send our armed forces overseas for the protection of the British empire. They believe he will be deterred from a warlike course by the enormous and steadily increasing popular opposition to involvement in the war.

Non-interventionist senators and representatives decided at a meeting this evening to send a letter expressing their views to Mr. Roosevelt in advance of his radio speech. Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] was named chairman of a committee of seven to draft the letter.

Wheeler said after the meeting that 90 per cent of the people are against involvement in war. Alluding to the sinking of the British battle cruiser Hood and British reverses in Crete, Wheeler said the people "do not want to take on a bankrupt war."

War Measures Urged.

Measures of a more aggressive character which the President is being urged by the interventionists to espouse in his radio "fireside talk" are the following:

1. Employment of American warships to convoy or otherwise protect cargoes of arms and other supplies which the United States is furnishing to Great Britain under terms of the 7 billion dollar lend-lease act.

2. Transfer to Britain of American destroyers and other warships to be manned by British crews for convoy duty.

3. Seizure of the Azores, Canary, and Cape Verde Islands, Dakar on the African coast, and Martinique and other French possessions in this hemisphere.

4. Reënforcement of the British at Singapore with a substantial American naval force.

5. Repeal of the neutrality act which prohibits American ships carrying arms cargoes to belligerents or penetrating war zones.

6. Proclamation of a "full emergency," the effect of which would be to enable the President to exercise dictatorial powers and place the country on a war footing.

Miss Fluorescent

Mari Robinson standing on electrical contact while current passing thru her body lights new style fluorescent tube. The tube, which is five feet long, causes her gown to glow.

A human furnace which measures the heat given off by the body and a machine that produces ice in flaked or chipped form are included among the displays at the Fluorescent Futurama and Air Conditioning show today thru Thursday in the Commonwealth Edison company assembly hall and main store, 140 South Dearborn street and 72 West Adams street.

About 50 manufacturers will sponsor exhibits showing the uses and latest developments in fluorescent lighting and air conditioning. The show will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

"Miss Florabel Fluorescent" will show her specially made evening gown which fluoresces when exposed to ultra violet light. She will also demonstrate the new 100 watt tube, 5 feet long, which will glow from the energy carried thru her body from a pad on which she stands.

WINS AIR CORPS WINGS AFTER 21 YEARS OF TRYING

A 21 year ambition was realized yesterday by A. Spring Chandler—he obtained a commission as a second lieutenant in the army air corps.

Chandler, who is 38 years old, tried to enter the corps in 1920. He was rejected because he was not a high school graduate. He completed his high school course in 16 weeks and applied again. This time he was rejected because of an eye weakness induced by an illness he had suffered while on the way to take the physical examination. When his sight returned to normal there were no vacancies in the corps. For the next several years he took flying lessons—trading his services as wing walker and parachute jumper for instruction—and eventually obtained a commercial pilot's license. In the meantime he became an officer in the motor transport reserve thru work in the automobile industry.

A year ago he set out to transfer to the air corps. He passed all tests but one—he was 12 pounds overweight. He lived on orange juice for a week, spent an hour a day in a steam bath, and returned for another examination. Pass it? Yes, indeed—he was three pounds under the maximum!

2 TRUSTIES FLEE AT HONOR PRISON FARM IN INDIANA

Indiana state police and prison guards last night were searching for two trusties who walked off the state prison honor farm near Michigan City early yesterday. One, Ernest van Cleve, 34 years old, was sentenced a month ago.

Prison officials said Van Cleve had been classified as a minimum security case because he had no previous record. He was sentenced April 22 to serve 1 to 10 years for vehicle theft.

The other missing prisoner is Frederick Coy, 30, who was serving a 1 to 5 year term for passing a fraudulent check.

London Papers Tell What Is Expected.

which America has not the fullest knowledge."

All the London newspapers feature front page stories on Mr. Roosevelt's speech. They stress that the sinking of the battle cruiser Hood and Admiral Raeder's statement will be the two main planks on which the President will base his decisions which, correspondents confidently forecast, will plunge the United States further into war against Germany.

One British observer in Washington informs the British public that Mr. Roosevelt's speech is calculated to solidify all anti-totalitarian forces thruout the world into "the common battle."

The press gives prominence to a story that the United States is considering giving England a modern battleship from its own navy to replace the loss of the Hood.

Roosevelt to Get a Medal.

The British Royal Society of Arts announces that Mr. Roosevelt will receive the award of the Albert gold medal in recognition "of his preeminent services to humanity as a fearless and resolute champion of the ideas of national freedom and individual liberty."

Among previous recipients of the medal were King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth, Queen Victoria, King Edward VII., King George V., Thomas A. Edison, Orville Wright, Louis Pasteur, Senator Guglielmo Marconi, and Mme. Curie.

DECLARES HOUSE WILL BEAT WAR OR CONVOY BILLS

New Rochelle, N. Y., May 26 [Special].—Twelve hundred persons attended an anti-war rally here tonight at which the speakers included Representatives Karl E. Mundt [R., S. D.], Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.] and Archie Roosevelt, a son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt. The meeting was sponsored by the America First committee.

Mundt said that not 50 congressmen would vote for war or for convoys. He asserted that if President Roosevelt should announce a determination to "thrust this country" into war in his speech tomorrow night "he will be guilty of the most brazen repudiation of a public promise any President has ever made."

"By making good on the promises by which he won his third term lease on power," Mr. Mundt added, "President Roosevelt can go down into history as the greatest President since Lincoln."

Roosevelt, in a one-minute speech, called for and obtained a rising tribute to "Citizen Charles A. Lindbergh."

Other male refugees still are under investigation, but will be released when their harmless status is established, these sources said.

Two Powers to Grant Visas.

MADRID, Spain, May 26 (AP).—The United States embassy announced tonight that both Spain and Portugal had agreed to grant transit visas to 138 American survivors of the Zamzam. They are expected to leave German occupied territory on Wednesday or Thursday by way of Hendaye, France, and Irun, Spain.

FILIPINOS CHARGE 60 JAPS STOLE FISHING VESSEL

MANILA, P. I., May 27 [Tuesday] (AP).—A Philippine government motor boat searched the Sulu sea today for a commercial fishing launch reported stolen by 60 Japanese who swarmed aboard from another boat and sailed it away. The motor boat was authorized to "take proper action" if the fishing boat, the Cuyo, was sighted.

COMMERCE BODY IN HARVEY ASKS U. S. TO SHUN WAR

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Harvey adopted a resolution yesterday opposing entry of the United States into the war. The resolution was framed after delegates of the Harvey chamber group returned from the three day convention of the Illinois Junior Chamber of Commerce in Quincy. The resolution asked the President and congress to preserve peace and democracy in America and the western hemisphere in strict accordance with the Monroe Doctrine.

Arguments of interventionist groups were described as weak last night by Dr. Howard G. Swann, University of Chicago physiologist, at an America First meeting in Highland Park.

"These arguments seem to be without much logical merit," said Dr. Swann. "They insist that invasion is imminent, altho no military experts will sustain this viewpoint. What they talk of as being a possibility of strangulation by economic means is minute compared with our domestic economy. Indeed the case they present will not bear scrutiny in the light of cold, hard facts."

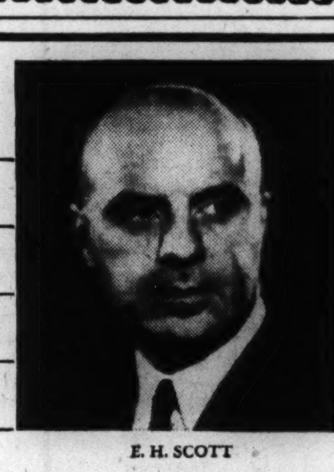
I venture to suggest that there is "hidden music" in your favorite records that you have never heard . . . until you hear them on a Scott



E. H. SCOTT

The shy and tender notes of Grieg . . . even the celestial strains of Bach . . . are too often dimmed and distorted by ordinary reproduction of record or radio. You may be hearing only a fragment of what the composer wrote . . . or may hear it all with a grayness that is like seeing an orchid through smoked glasses.

For eighteen years now we have devoted ourselves to sound reproduction that has won praise from Toscanini, Heifetz, Stock, Ormandy, and a long roll of the musical great. By handcrafting methods we produce radios on a custom basis, built in our own laboratories to specifications that we think are the highest in the world. And the result, if you love music in any form, is a revelation . . . a truly "living performance" in your own home of the great orchestras, voices, or the spiced cadence of modern swing.

Please accept our invitation to listen to a Scott. Bring your favorite records, in which you know every passage, and hear new fullnesses and timbres that you never dreamed were there. Then learn how easy it is to own a Scott, the one instrument that seems never to grow old. We guarantee each Scott for FIVE YEARS—and many that are even older are still considered years ahead of ordinary radios today. Our studios are near. Come soon.

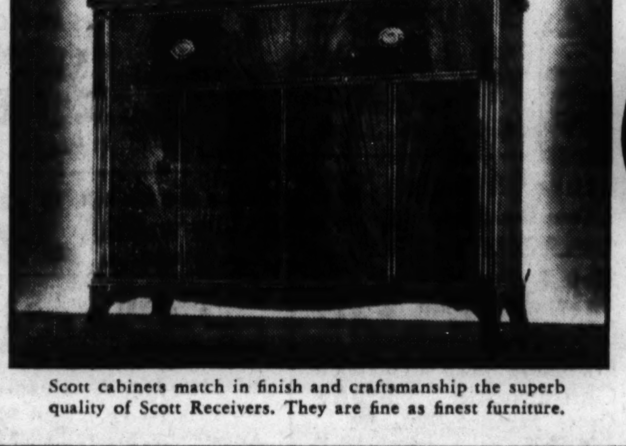
All that you ever hoped for in a radio is in a Scott:

The tone of the Scott is unparalleled in radio—it is the pride of men whose very life is music. The automatic record changer is incredibly deft and silent, a marvel of mechanical ingenuity. For foreign news broadcasts, the Scott has received international recognition, is the choice of ambassadors and scientists. And Frequency Modulation, in a Scott, is brought to a high point of perfection.

● Ask to hear (and see) the Scott Phantom. Even if you know nothing of engineering, please see how it is constructed. Nothing else in radio is quite like Scott engineering. Then HEAR the difference for yourself!



Scott cabinets match in finish and craftsmanship the superb quality of Scott Receivers. They are fine as finest furniture.

DE VALERA WARNS BRITAIN AGAINST DRAFT IN ULSTER

Says "Unhappy Relations" Would Be Revived.

DUBLIN, Ireland, May 26 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera warned Britain today that "old, unhappy relations" between her and Ireland would be revived if the British imposed conscription on neighboring Northern Ireland [Ulster].

To a crowded dail eireann [parliament] especially convened to hear him, the tall, American-born prime minister declared the only outstanding grievance between Britain and Ireland—partition of the northern six counties from Ireland—would have disappeared but for the war.

To impose on Northern Ireland conscription, as Prime Minister Winston Churchill has indicated Britain may do, De Valera said, would "undo work which was accomplished with the utmost patience and perseverance over a period of years."

Cosgrave Backs Stand.

William T. Cosgrave, opposition leader, who on occasion has not even been on speaking terms with De Valera, supported the prime minister's stand, declaring the situation was so serious that if it were not properly handled it might involve the very future of Ireland.

In the audience was Sir John Maffey, British representative.

"There could be no more grievous attack on any fundamental human right," De Valera said, "than the plan to force an individual to fight by force for a country to which he objected to belong.

"The six northern Irish counties are a part of Ireland, have always been a part of Ireland, the inhabitants are Irish, and nothing can alter the fact."

"Friendly Neutrality."

De Valera said Ireland, yielding to the universal wish of her people, had proclaimed neutrality in the European war.

"But it at all times has been a friendly neutrality and Ireland in every peaceful way endeavored to preserve peacetime coöperation and refrained from doing anything regarded as hostile to Britain," he said.

William Norton, Ireland Labor party chairman, telegraphed British parliament members asking them to use their influence to block any "act of aggression on our people."

Repudiated by Ulster Paper.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 26 (AP).—The News Letter, Belfast newspaper, tonight declared that "we repudiate the Eire [Ireland] government's rights even to attempt to interfere" in Northern Ireland's relations with Britain.

It disputated a statement by Ireland's prime minister, Eamon de Valera, that Ulster is a part of Ireland, saying:

"Ireland consists of two distinct units. Northern Ireland is part of the united kingdom and wholeheartedly with Britain in this war."

Arlene Joyce Peterson, 3, at Desplaines street station after she was found on elevated train alone.

Joyce Peterson, 3 years old, ditched her nurse in Wicker park yesterday and headed for the elevated station at Damen and Milwaukee avenues. She scooted under the ticket agent's nose without being seen, boarded a Humboldt Park train and rode to the Marshfield avenue transfer station where she got on a loop bound Douglas Park train.

She was having a grand time until a trainman turned her over to a ticket agent at the Canal street station, who held her for Detectives Charles Moore and Charles Karnick of the Desplaines street station. All Joyce was able to tell them was her name and that she was having a fine time. They fed her ice cream and candy until 8 p. m. when her parents Mr. and Mrs. Bert Peterson, 1408 North Honoré street, claimed her.

JAPANESE TOOK NONWAR GOODS, SAYS U. S. FIRM AID

MANILA, P. I., May 27 [Tuesday] (AP).—E. B. Head, manager of the United States Far Eastern Trading company, said today that goods seized Sunday by Japanese military authorities at the company's warehouses at Haiphong, Indo-China, did not include out and out war materials.

Head said the goods, originally consigned to China but blocked from reshipment by the Japanese, represented a wide range of materials purchased in America, including a few trucks, gas masks, boiler plate, scrap iron and some oil.

Japanese soldiers forced open warehouse doors of Head's company and of the North American syndicate, and seized goods valued at $10,000,000. They claimed the goods were intended for the Chiang Kai-shek government in China.

ICKES CONTROL OF PUERTO RICAN FARMS IS URGED

Tugwell Proposes Agency to Parcel Out Lands.

BY HARWOOD HULL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, May 26.—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes would be given the power to plan and execute the long evaded 1901 Puerto Rico land law, which limits corporate holdings on the island to 500 acres, according to a proposal discussed today at the second hearing conducted by Rexford G. Tugwell as special advisor to Ickes on land use and social economic problems.

Tugwell is making a study of the law, which was aimed especially at sugar corporations. They control more than 170,000 acres. Tugwell will report to Ickes on how the law could best be enforced. Puerto Rico's governor, altho appointed by the President, is under supervision to Ickes.

Wants Individuals Included.

Tugwell said the recent law of the island legislature creating a land authority, did not go far enough, in that it did not extend the 500 acre ownership restriction to include individuals.

Should partnership holdings be restricted, another 100,000 acres held in blocks exceeding 500 acres would be included in the land redistribution scheme. Large individual and family holdings would add an estimated 200,000 acres.

The island's new land law, to carry out enforcement of the 1901 act, besides providing for employment of insular funds, also makes possible and anticipates extensive federal aid.

The extent of possible financial aid is not indicated, but sugar lands sell from $200 to $600 per acre. Rather than have individuals purchase lands from sugar corporations, Tugwell said, a better procedure would be to provide for initial holding by a public agency which would parcel out the lands on the basis of family units.

Farms of 40 to 50 Acres.

Tugwell said that while a family farm in the United States normally is 160 acres, in Puerto Rico it would be 40 to 50 acres. Such family farms, under the proposal, would be leased by the government on the basis of life tenure, deferring the question of eventual family ownership.

That the farm security administration is looked upon as the likeliest federal agency for the island farm financing was indicated by the membership on the Tugwell group of G. S. Mitchell, assistant administrator of the FSA.

Mitchell sees in government ownership an opportunity to carry out his theory that private ownership of farm land is one of the greatest hindrances to national prosperity.

HITS TEXAS CO. REFUSAL TO PUSH CONFIDENCE CASE

The board of zoning appeals yesterday granted permission to the Texas company for enlargement of its gasoline filling station at the southwest corner of 67th street and Jeffery avenue.

John H. Gately, board president, took the opportunity to tell the company attorney, Walter A. Wade, that he thought it "uncitizenlike" of the company to refuse to coöperate in catching a man accused of an attempt to collect $5,000 from the Texas company in return for permission to enlarge.

The company originally complained of the request April 14 at a zoning board hearing, but subsequently refused to aid the police in catching the man.

PRESIDENT URGES BETTER DIETS TO STRENGTHEN U.S.

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—President Roosevelt called on the national defense nutrition conference today for action to alleviate the "widespread and serious" undernourishment of "many millions" of Americans.

A message from the President was read by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt at the opening of the three day session called by Mr. Roosevelt. "Total defense means total man power," the Presidential message said. "The full energy of America is necessary."

The conference is expected to draft national nutrition standards and a plan for obtaining coöperation of the food and distribution industries to make them effective.

ASKS PRESIDENT FOR CLEAR AND HONEST TALKING

La Follette Urges Him to Spurn 'War Mongers.'

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kenosha, Wis., May 26.—Philip F. La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, called upon President Roosevelt tonight for some clear and honest talking. He did this in a speech before a massmeeting sponsored by the Wisconsin chapter of the America First committee here.

La Follette talked to one of the largest public gatherings held here in years. The 1,800 seats in the Eagles' hall all were occupied and many persons were standing.

The former governor, who has been an active figure in the fight to keep America out of the European war, urged the President to devote his speech tomorrow to "reaffirming in clear and unmistakable language that an ordinary man can understand the repeated committments against war he made so solemnly when he was out for a third term last fall."

Assails Two Secretaries.

The President, La Follette asserted, "should stick to his own convictions, the anti-war convictions he expressed so eloquently as a candidate, rather than accept the war mongering views of Secretaries Knox and Stimson and the coterie of editors, columnists, and retired admirals who are demanding war."

In the last few weeks La Follette has visited many parts of the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast and in the south. He told his audience here that it was "a moving experience" to watch the reactions against war of the plain people in every part of the country.

"They understand the issues even if the politicians and the editors don't," he said. "The President himself senses and understands public opinion as few men in the United States. My only fear is that he may mistake the noise of a small but highly organized and powerful war lobby for the true voice of the people."

Hoyt Sends Message.

Lansing Hoyt of Milwaukee, state chairman of the America First committee, telegraphed the meeting, thanking Senator La Follette for the fight he is making and congratulating the committee for the growth it has had.

The America First committe, organized in Wisconsin only a few months ago, has more than 50,000 members and chapters in 10 of the principal cities.

"You are told by the members of the war party of the great dangers America faces," La Follette said. "They have deliberately done everything in their power to build up your fears. It is a situation that calls for calmness, and you have kept calm. In the America First committee no responsible speaker has yet felt he had to call any one names. No America First member has called any one a copperhead.

'Americans Hate Dictatorship'

"There is no need to stimulate Americans to defend freedom. All of us, every American, hates tyranny and he hates dictatorship. No people on earth ever have paid the price for freedom that the early Americans paid. We all are descendants of men and women who showed themselves ready to make any sacrifice to take themselves out of Europe and to develop a free life over here.

"The United States is now on the verge of war because the American war party 19 months ago started it down the road called short of war. Since the war has not yet come to America the war party now proposes to take America to the war."

The war party argument of buying time to prepare with help to Britain, LaFollette declared, is the most contemptible and discreditable of all proposals.

"It is a policy that is making enemies all over the world," he said. "It makes my blood boil. What did we send Greece? We didn't send them the price of a postage stamp."

Ambulance Driver in Fatal Crash Gets One Hour Term

Frank Stodenick, 22 years old, a CCC ambulance driver from Camp Galesburg, was sentenced to an hour in custody of the United States marshal for reckless driving yesterday by Federal Judge William H. The light sentence was recommended by Robert Eardley, assistant United States attorney, because the young man was locked up for 116 days after the accident.

MOTORIST SLAIN BY POLICE AFTER HE FLEES CRASH

Ceal Miller, 41 years old, colored, of 326 North Bell avenue, a laborer, was shot and killed by Policeman Alfred Kelly of the East Chicago avenue station last night as he resisted arrest after leaving the scene of an accident.

Miller's automobile struck a car parked in front of 842 Hudson avenue where the owner, Joseph Traficanti, 44, of 3111 North Keating avenue, was visiting. When Joseph Traficanti came out Miller drove away. Two colored women left Miller's car after the accident.

Police found Miller's car abandoned at Hudson avenue and Oak street. Miller returned and attempted to strike him with a piece of wood when ordered to surrender, Kelly said. Miller was shot in the ensuing struggle.

CANTON ISLAND —THERE IS PEACE IN WORLD OF WAR

Even Nearest Policeman Is 2,050 Miles Away.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANTON ISLAND, May 18 [By Air Mail].—The war means little to this peaceful coral atoll in the South Seas.

Prices have not gone up because there is nothing for sale—there are no stores.

The struggle for power in Europe and Africa is not a political issue because there is no politics.

There are no policemen, no courts, no newspapers, no farming, and no dairying. There are no automobiles or roads.

But there is a modern hotel with a bath in every room, a one-bed hospital with a full time doctor, telephones, a radio station, and a postoffice.

Isle Like a Bald Head.

Canton Island, about half way between Hawaii and New Caledonia, is a seaplane base used by the Pan-American Clippers on the New Zealand run. It is of horseshoe shape, inclosing a lagoon. The land part of the island resembles the fringe of hair encircling a bald man's head. The island is eight miles long, three miles wide, and 27 miles in circumference. The land around the lagoon is from 50 yards to three-quarters of a mile wide.

On this narrow coral reef Pan-American has erected a city with all the conveniences necessary to make its 46 inhabitants comfortable. They all work for the air line, with the exception of one man who represents the Hawaiian Sugar Planters association. He inspects the clippers for bugs that might be injurious to the sugar industry.

Under Flags of Two Lands.

The American flag flies over the seaplane base, but a stone's throw away the union jack waves in the breeze. In a little house beneath the flag live Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fleming, British subjects who have "colonized" the British part of the island. They also have a radio station and a postoffice where the ship that brings supplies every six months picks up the mail not carried by planes.

Clipper Base

Arrow locates Canton Island, one of the bases on the air route from the United States to the Philippines and Asia.

On April 6, 1939, the governments of Great Britain and the United States entered into an agreement under which the island is to be shared for 50 years as a civil aviation base.

The boundaries dividing the territories of the two powers have been surveyed, but no one on Canton knows just where they are and the inhabitants are not always sure whether they are in Great Britain or the United States. The Flemings live on the island in order to maintain Britain's claim on its section.

The Pan-American hotel, a one story building with 24 double rooms, was finished in 1939. It is made of a composition building material that was brought from San Francisco in the North Haven, a vessel chartered by the air line to carry supplies and workmen to its island bases. It has large, airy, comfortable rooms the equal of any big city hotel on the mainland, as the United States is called out here.

A number of smaller buildings scattered about the hotel house working men and the flight crews. The island also boasts a laundry and a bungalow for Harold Graves, the airport manager, who is here for a two year tour of duty with his wife and 5 month old son.

Graves is the nearest thing to a policeman on the island. While he has no legal police powers, part of his job is to maintain discipline, which has not been much of a problem. At Hawaii, 2,050 miles away, is the nearest police authority.

Married men on the island who have their wives with them, such as Graves and Jack Bramham, the hotel manager, remain for two or three years, but unmarried men stay only six months.

Because of its extreme heat and dryness—the island is 2 degrees south of the equator—there is little native vegetation. Trees and shrubs have been planted and they grow well if watered and cared for.

For entertainment the islanders play tennis beneath electric lights on a concrete court. It is too hot to play in the daytime. The bathing in the lagoon where the Clippers land is excellent, provided one doesn't mind brushing against an occasional shark. The fishing is good and the inhabitants of Canton have invented a new fish story: they say they throw the big ones back because the little ones are better eating.

The water in the lagoon is crystal clear and at night, by the lights on the dock, thousands of fish of all sizes can be seen.

Canton Island boasts that it is on the longest milk route in the world. The Clippers, which arrive about once a week from Hawaii or New Caledonia, bring 20 gallons of milk 2,000 miles. Despite their remoteness from civilization, the islanders do not live out of cans. The Clipper on which this correspondent arrived brought a ton of fresh vegetables, fruit, and meats.

Snow Falls as Freezing Temperature Grips Alberta

WINNIPEG, Man., May 26 (AP).—Northerly winds brought colder weather to the prairie provinces today. Rain and a 2 to 4 inch snow fell in Alberta. The temperature dropped to freezing at midnight in Calgary.

ONE WEEK LEFT TO PAY TAXES, TOMAN WARNS

Cook county taxpayers have only one week left to pay their 1940 tax bills without penalty, County Treasurer John Toman warned yesterday. Collections so far have run 15 per cent over receipts for the comparable period last year.

June 1, the legal penalty date, falls on Sunday, so payments will be accepted without penalty on Monday, Toman said. A penalty of 1 per cent a month is added for late payments.

Collections thru yesterday totaled $29,952,153, an increase of $4,046,187 over collections on the corresponding date last year. Real estate tax payments totaled $25,008,851, a gain of $3,684,500, and personal property taxes amounted to $4,943,301, an increase of $361,688.

"Marvelous results achieved by our past two State Street Days"

—LOUIS GOLDBLATT, Goldblatt Bros., Inc.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING
3932 SO. WOLCOTT
CHICAGO, ILL.

May 20, 1941.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

Mr. D. F. McMahon,
Manager, Retail Advertising,
Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Here's some good news for you.

I know you will be interested to learn about the marvelous results achieved by our past two STATE STREET DAYS, held Monday, April 21 and Monday, May 19. For each of these events our twelve-page message was carried in the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Everybody knows business has been good this Spring, however, the results shown on these particular days were unusually gratifying. The combination of exceptional variety and remarkable value-giving, with Tribune productivity, resulted in new highs in sales volume for numerous departments. Hour after hour, throughout the store, the selling pace was heavy and consistent from early morning until closing time.

And now....the greatest of all Goldblatt merchandising promotions....the Star Event in the NATHAN GOLDBLATT SALE! This sale is a tradition with us, and every year this is the highlight of all the sales that are staged. With much advance planning, we have been able to assemble the best of values to go on sale Saturday, May 31, at savings so great that they even surpass those of the Nathan Goldblatt Sales of previous years.

We know that as in the past, Tribune readers will be alert to this exceptional shopping opportunity. They must be congratulated for knowing a value when they see one. We have endeavored to answer their demands, and their phenomenal response to our past efforts has encouraged us to even greater achievements for this sale. Our twelve-page section in your Decoration Day paper will further demonstrate to all Chicago-land the extent of our preparations.

Sincerely yours,
GOLDBLATT BROS., INC.

Two 12-page sections in the Sunday Tribune push sales to new highs—

Goldblatt Bros., operating 10 great modern department stores doing over $48,000,000 in sales annually, promote 26 consecutive State Street Day events with 26 special sections in the Sunday Tribune—one section every month—from 6 to 14 pages per section—a total of 275 full pages.

Buying action on the main floor of Goldblatt's State Street store on Monday, May 19, following the promotion of its 26th State Street Day event with 12 full pages of advertising in the Sunday Tribune, May 18.

ARE you passing up additional sales volume which might easily be yours? The experience of Goldblatt Bros., Inc., offers definite proof that, no matter what you sell, you can sell more by making a stronger bid for business from the huge audience represented by Tribune circulation.

Since April, 1939, Goldblatt's State Street Day promotions have been featured events for building patronage for their State Street store. All 26 State Street Days since that time have been promoted with advertising in the Sunday Tribune, with 26 multiple page sections ranging in size from six to fourteen full pages of advertising—a total of 275 pages.

Each of the last two State Street Days has been promoted with twelve full pages of advertising in the Sunday Tribune.

Operating 10 great modern department stores doing over $48,000,000.00 annually, Goldblatt Bros., Inc., consider the Sunday Tribune an important factor in their advertising and merchandising plan. Sunday after Sunday, almost without exception, this great organization places full pages of advertising in the Sunday Tribune. In 1940 Goldblatt Bros., Inc., placed more of their advertising expenditure in the Sunday Tribune alone than they placed in any other Chicago newspaper.

Thru the Tribune . . . at one low cost . . . you too can get the full-market, all-income circulation which today's upswing invites and repays. Build your sales promotion around the Tribune and you make the market impact you need in order to drive in new patronage from every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago.

Every day you do without the extra sales power of the Tribune you pass up sales which easily might be yours. There is no need to pass them up when the Tribune can give full power to your drive and enable you to sell more at less cost per unit sold.

When you can have more, why take less?

On Sunday and on week days, the Tribune now has more than 1,000,000 net paid total circulation. On Sunday, this is from 270,000 to 730,000 more than other Chicago Sunday newspapers deliver, and on week days it is from 590,000 to 630,000 more than other Chicago daily newspapers deliver.

Right in metropolitan Chicago, the Tribune has more circulation than the other two Chicago Sunday newspapers combined. On week days the Tribune in Chicago and suburbs has more circulation than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined.

Total net paid circulation now in excess of 1,000,000 every day of the week

Among members are Rupert Hughes, the novelist, 69; John Farrar, publisher, 45; Gen. John F. O'Ryan, 77; Grenville Clark, New York lawyer, 59, and James P. Warburg, New York financier, 45.

TWO CIO CHIEFS LINKED TO RED SABOTAGE PLOT

Cited by Dies Quizzer in Arms Strike.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—Another instance of a case of communistic sabotage of the arms production program was called to the attention of the house today by Representative Joe Starnes [D., Ala.], chairman of a subcommittee of the Dies committee on un-American activities.

Reid Robinson [top] and Richard Krebs.

From the records of the committee, Starnes cited evidence to show that Reid Robinson, head of the International Union of Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers, a CIO affiliate, is connected with many communist party front organizations. The union has been on strike since March 14 against the American Potash and Chemical corporation, Trona, Cal.

Strike Certified for Mediation.

The strike has been certified as a preparedness strike to the national mediation board since two of the minerals produced at the plant, borax and boric acid, are important in making glass. Much of the plant's output is sold to the Corning Glass works in New York, which makes essential items for the army and navy.

Together with Robinson, Starnes named William R. Gately, international representative of the smelter workers union, who is actively leading the California strike, as a member of the communist party. He displayed a photostatic copy of Gately's party membership book.

"I again call attention to the fact that communist leaders in the CIO are continuing a campaign of sabotage which endangers our security and gives aid and comfort to Adolf Hitler," Starnes told the house.

Starnes' subcommittee today heard testimony from Jan Valtin, whose real name is Richard Krebs, author of the best selling book, "Out of the Night," an account of the writer's experiences as both a German gestapo agent and a member of the soviet OGPU.

The witness asserted that thousands of gestapo agents are in this country to obtain vital information for Germany about our arms production. These agents are in industrial plants, the army, and the coast guard, he told the committee.

The gestapo headquarters at Hamburg, Germany, has on file complete photographs of every major seaport in the world as well as an elaborate card file system containing the names and personal and political history of all Germany's enemies and friends in the United States and other parts of the world, Krebs testified.

In reply to questions Krebs said Hitler would order the sinking of American convoys "without hesitation," but that his eventual domination of the United States would be only "economic and no political."

William Crilly.

Woll praised the work of his division head and said that the resignation, which takes effect June 30, was occepted only after Crilly had declined urgent invitations to remain with the staff. Crilly was an assistant corporation counsel in the Dever administration. In 1932 he was appointed assistant state's attorney, a post he held until he was appointed to the federal post in October, 1939.

BYRD ADVOCATES CONGRESS ACTION ON ARMS STRIKES

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] introduced today a resolution which would have congress declare that strikes in armaments industries are "contrary to sound public policy and they are hereby condemned."

Byrd told the senate he based his proposal on a previous action of the senate in condemning sitdown strikes. He added he would attempt to bring the resolution up for a vote later if some declaration condemning armaments strikes is not forthcoming from President Roosevelt and congress.

WARBURG MAKES A NEW REPLY TO SENATOR CLARK

Letter Makes Little Sense, He Contends.

New York, May 26 [Special].—James P. Warburg, New York financier who recently engaged in an exchange of spirited letters with Senator Bennett C. Clark over the latter's denunciation of Warburg's stand on American involvement in the European war, made a further reply to Clark today in a letter to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Warburg, speaking for the Fight for Freedom committee in New York on April 24, said Clark, Charles A. Lindbergh, and other noninterventionists were trying to confuse the issue of aiding Britain in her war. Clark replied on May 4, denouncing Warburg's stand and also his record in the world war. Later, in reply to a demand from Warburg for a retraction, Clark corrected his statement on Warburg's war record, and added:

"If you have any idea that my remarks about you and your views are based upon the fact that you are a Jew, I utterly repudiate any such suggestion.

"Makes Little Sense."

"Your readers," Warburg wrote to THE TRIBUNE today, "are doubtless able to draw their conclusions and put their own value upon his [Clark's] letter. It makes very little sense to me.

"Apparently foreign birth or descent makes no difference to Senator Clark, except if Americans of foreign birth or descent disagree with his isolationist views—then their birth or descent becomes important.

"The same thing seems to be true about his attitude toward Jews: It does not matter if a man is a Jew if he is an isolationist; but if he happens to believe that the country's best interests would be served by helping to defeat Hitler abroad instead of fighting him here, then his being a Jew becomes important.

"I do not know why Senator Clark brought up the question of religious prejudice at all. No one accuses him of intolerance or anti-Semitism. He need not have protested his innocence.

Concerning "Huckster" Phrase.

"Your readers will doubtless have noticed that far from withdrawing his allegation that I was 'a huckster of other men's blood,' Senator Clark repeats it, altho he denied that he has accused me of trying to derive personal profit 'from the death and suffering of fellow human beings.' In fact, he says that this interpretation of the epithet 'huckster of other men's blood' is an 'absolute lie.' He says he 'said nothing of the kind.'

"The dictionary definition of 'huckster' is: 'A peddler; hawker; a mean, mercenary person.'

"If he thinks I am 'a mean, mercenary person' who peddles or hawks other people's blood, it seems to me that the interpretation that I put upon the senator's phrase, namely, that he accused me of deriving profit from the suffering of fellow human beings, is a very accurate one—unless the senator is talking about transfusions.

"Untruthful and Defamatory."

"It is quite clear that the senator has no desire to make amends for his untruthful and defamatory statement. He admits that he made a false statement of fact and that the very reference book from which he obtained his 'facts' stated my war service in naval aviation.

"Then, having admitted that the facts upon which the allegation was based were wrong, he repeats the allegation and calls the only simple and obvious interpretation of that allegation 'an absolute lie.'

"Well, Senator Clark and I seem to differ as to what constitutes a lie. The evidence is in. Let your readers decide."

MAP 10 BATTLE PROBLEMS FOR 2D ARMY TROOPS

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Manchester, Tenn., May 26.—Ten battle problems have been planned for the four divisions and auxiliary troops—a total of 77,000 men—who will take part in the 2d army maneuvers starting in this area next Monday and continuing thru June 28.

The maneuver area extends 30 miles north from Manchester and is 12 miles wide.

The 27th division [New York National Guard] has arrived in the area from Camp McClelland, Ala., part of the 5th [regular] division has arrived from Fort Custer, Mich., the 2d armored division is enroute from Fort Benning, Ga., and the 30th [Tennessee, Georgia, North and South Carolina National Guard] division is enroute from Fort Jackson, S. C.

Only 7th Corps Engaged.

Altho the maneuver is known as the 2d army, actually only the 7th corps will be engaged. Four additional divisions would be necessary to make up a field army and the maneuvering of such a large body of troops will not be attempted until later in the summer on the Louisiana and Texas border.

Unlike previous maneuvers, the troops will not be split into Red and Blue forces for offensive and defensive operations. Troops will be assigned to a problem on the basis of commanders' estimates of situations if encountered in actual warfare and scoring will be done on the basis of time of completion, number of men in the action and their fire power.

Auxiliary troops for the coming maneuver will consist of engineers, signalmen, medical units, quartermasters, repair units, an anti-aircraft regiment, and two aerial observation squadrons.

Lack Corps Artillery.

In actual service, three regiments of heavy artillery also would be assigned to the corps commander for use in support of any of his four divisions. These maneuvers will have no corps artillery. There is a shortage of modern 155 mm. guns and howitzers thruout the army, and those on hand are being used for basic training of troops in various camps.

Of the four divisions taking part in the maneuver, two are called square and two are triangular divisions. All National Guard divisions are square and the regular army divisions either have been or soon will be changed to the triangular type.

HOUSE O. K.'S BILL FOR CHICAGO TOLL SUPERHIGHWAY

Would Be Financed by Fees Paid by Users.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 26.—A toll superhighway bill was passed by the house of representatives tonight by a vote of 87 to 27. It would create a new road building authority authorized to construct express motor ways in Chicago and Cook county with bonds to be retired with fees collected from the users of the safety routes. The bill now goes to the senate.

The roll call was preceded by a prolonged debate on the wisdom of this principle of highway finance new to Illinois. Party lines were dropped and the downstate and the Cook county delegations were divided, with a majority [10 more than necessary for passage] favoring tolls as the only means of relieving the delays and hazards of motor travel in Chicago and its suburbs.

Describe Roads in East.

Representatives Arthur W. Sprague [R., La Grange] and Edward J. McCabe [D., Chicago] co-sponsors of the bill, described the congestion that is stifling the metropolitan area and is killing and maiming thousands annually. They told of the success in the east in financing safety routes with tolls. The bill is modeled after laws under which 300 million dollars worth of superhighways have been built in New York.

Representative T. J. Sullivan [D., Springfield] led the attack against the proposal. He attacked Charles E. De Leuw, engineer of the Chicago subway and superhighway commission, who was the only spokesman for Chicago in committee hearings on the bill.

"I didn't know who this De Leuw was," said Sullivan, "but I have since learned that he is author of the abortive Congress street superparkway proposition which has been condemned by the postoffice department as a threat against the efficiency of Chicago mail service. We can't respect his judgment. I'm told he collected $140,000 in fees from the city last year and it seems that he hopes to get in on this toll superhighway scheme"

Unlimited Amount of Bonds.

The bill, as amended thru lobbying by De Leuw, would authorize creation of a two man road building agency empowered to issue an unlimited amount of bonds. A limit of 30 million dollars was removed by one of these amendments. One member of the board would be named by the mayor of Chicago and the other by the county board for terms of five years. Under the original bill the toll road authority would consist of the Cook county highway superintendent, subject to supervision by the county board and by the state department of public works and with his work within Chicago subject to approval of the city council.

Representative William Vicars [D., Pontiac], minority floor leader, voted yea, saying that the employment on such projects will be needed to create jobs "when the present war scare is ended," and thousands will be removed from armament pay rolls. Representative Fred W. Rennick [R., Buda], majority leader, also voted for the bill.

Sees Fence Around Chicago.

Representative Edward Skarda [D., Chicago], voting "No," said he was afraid that a fence was going to be erected around Chicago with every one paying 10 cents to enter or to leave Chicago.

Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe [D., Chicago], voting affirmatively, said that the present free streets and highways would remain as alternates for motorists who wanted to avoid paying a 10 cent toll. The amount of the toll is not fixed by the bill, but a 10 cent rate has been used in calculating finances.

Representative Joseph Sam Perry [D., Glen Ellyn] spoke against the bill, saying that arterial routes could be built for free use with the present taxes were the money not wasted on pavements of little benefit to travel. He voted "yea" for the announced reason that Du Page and Will counties would benefit from the superhighways.

From Lake county Representatives Bernice T. Vandervries [R., Winnetka] and Harold D. Kelsey [R., Barrington] supported the measure. She told of the contrast between driving the fast and safe toll routes in the east and driving the slow and hazardous out-moded pavements in Chicago and vicinity.

Representative Nick Keller [R., Waukegan], voted "no."

INDICT DEARBORN POLICE CHIEF AND 12 IN VICE GRAFT

Conspiracy Charged in Resort Operations.

Detroit, Mich., May 26 [Special].—Carl A. Brooks, chief of police in suburban Dearborn, and 12 others were indicted today in a grand jury warrant charging collusion to protect illegal enterprises.

The indictment, issued by Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson, charges that Brooks and other members of his department had an agreement with underworld characters to permit the operation of brothels, gambling houses, and slot machines.

Brooks was reported ill at his home today. He collapsed after being taken into custody last night at his farm home in Richmond, Mich.

Mayor Suspends Three.

Mayor John L. Carey immediately suspended Brooks and two other police named in the indictment, Horace King, vice squad detective sergeant, and James Denny, vice squad detective.

The indictment contains two counts. The first charges all defendants with conspiracy to "assist and enable" the operation of brothels and gambling enterprises. The second count specifically accuses Brooks and the vice squad members of taking graft.

The amount of graft was not specified, but it was reported to be from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

Others Indicted Listed.

Those indicted, in addition to the three Dearborn policemen are: Roy Kretchman, former vice squad detective, now a beer tavern operator; John Bitonti, reputed underworld king of Dearborn; Charles Muradian, reputed right hand man of Bitonti; George Konstantos, alleged brothel keeper; Dan Yates, alleged gambling house proprietor; John [Slim] Hamby, reputed gambling house operator; Argash H. Shagougian, reputed gambler; May Raye, alleged brothel keeper; Harold C. Hannay, tavernkeeper, reputed operator of a slot machine syndicate, and Harry the Greek [real name unknown], alleged gambler.

DETROIT COUNCIL OUSTS THIRD IN BRIBERY SCANDAL

Detroit, Mich., May 26 [Special].—By unanimous vote of its six remaining members the Detroit city council today ousted Councilman Robert G. Ewald after hearing testimony that he accepted a bribe for his vote last September to award an $8,300,000 federal housing project to two Chicago firms.

By its action the council purged itself of the last of three councilmen involved in the bribery scandal. Previously Councilmen John Hamilton and Harry I. Dingeman had been ousted. They have pleaded guilty in court to accepting bribes, but Ewald has not and is awaiting trial.

Albert J. O'Connor, employé of the Koenig Coal and Supply company here, told the council he paid Ewald $5,000 from a $30,000 fund provided by Seymour Smith, vice president of A. Smith and company, and William S. Lipman, vice president of the Lipman Construction company, co-winners of the contract. Of the remainder, Hamilton got $15,000 and Dingeman $5,000, O'Connor said previously.

WALTER CLINNIN TAKES STAND IN OWN DEFENSE AT TRIAL IN SWINDLE

Walter Clinnin took the stand in his own defense yesterday before Judge Philip L. Sullivan in federal District court in his trial on charges that he conspired with Peter D. Pinkussohn in swindling Catholic priests of more than $20,000 thru the purchase and sale of whisky warehouse receipts.

Clinnin testified he had been an "irreproachable business man" except for a conviction of prohibition law violation in 1925. He said he met Pinkussohn while serving a sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary on the liquor law charge.

Pinkussohn was convicted in 1939 of trading fake whisky stamps to the priests for genuine stamps which they had purchased from Clinnin. Clinnin is accused of providing a list of his customers for Pinkussohn. Pinkussohn was sentenced to seven years in prison.

EX-JUDGE DENIES IN COURT HE TOOK MONEY FROM FOX

Philadelphia, Pa., May 26 (AP).—A government contention that he received $27,500 as "favors" from a movie producer was denied from the witness stand today by retired United States Circuit Court Judge J. Warren Davis, who declared he never has received "a dishonest dollar."

The 74 year old jurist was called in his own defense at his federal court trial on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States. Speaking directly to the jury, Judge Davis said not only that he never received money from William Fox, one time movie magnate, but that he never met him in 1936, the period in which prosecution witnesses have said Fox "loaned" Davis $27,500. During that time several bankruptcy cases involving the $57,000,000 Fox movie holdings were before the court.

"While I have been poor," said Judge Davis, "not a dishonest dollar has ever found its way into my pocket or possession."

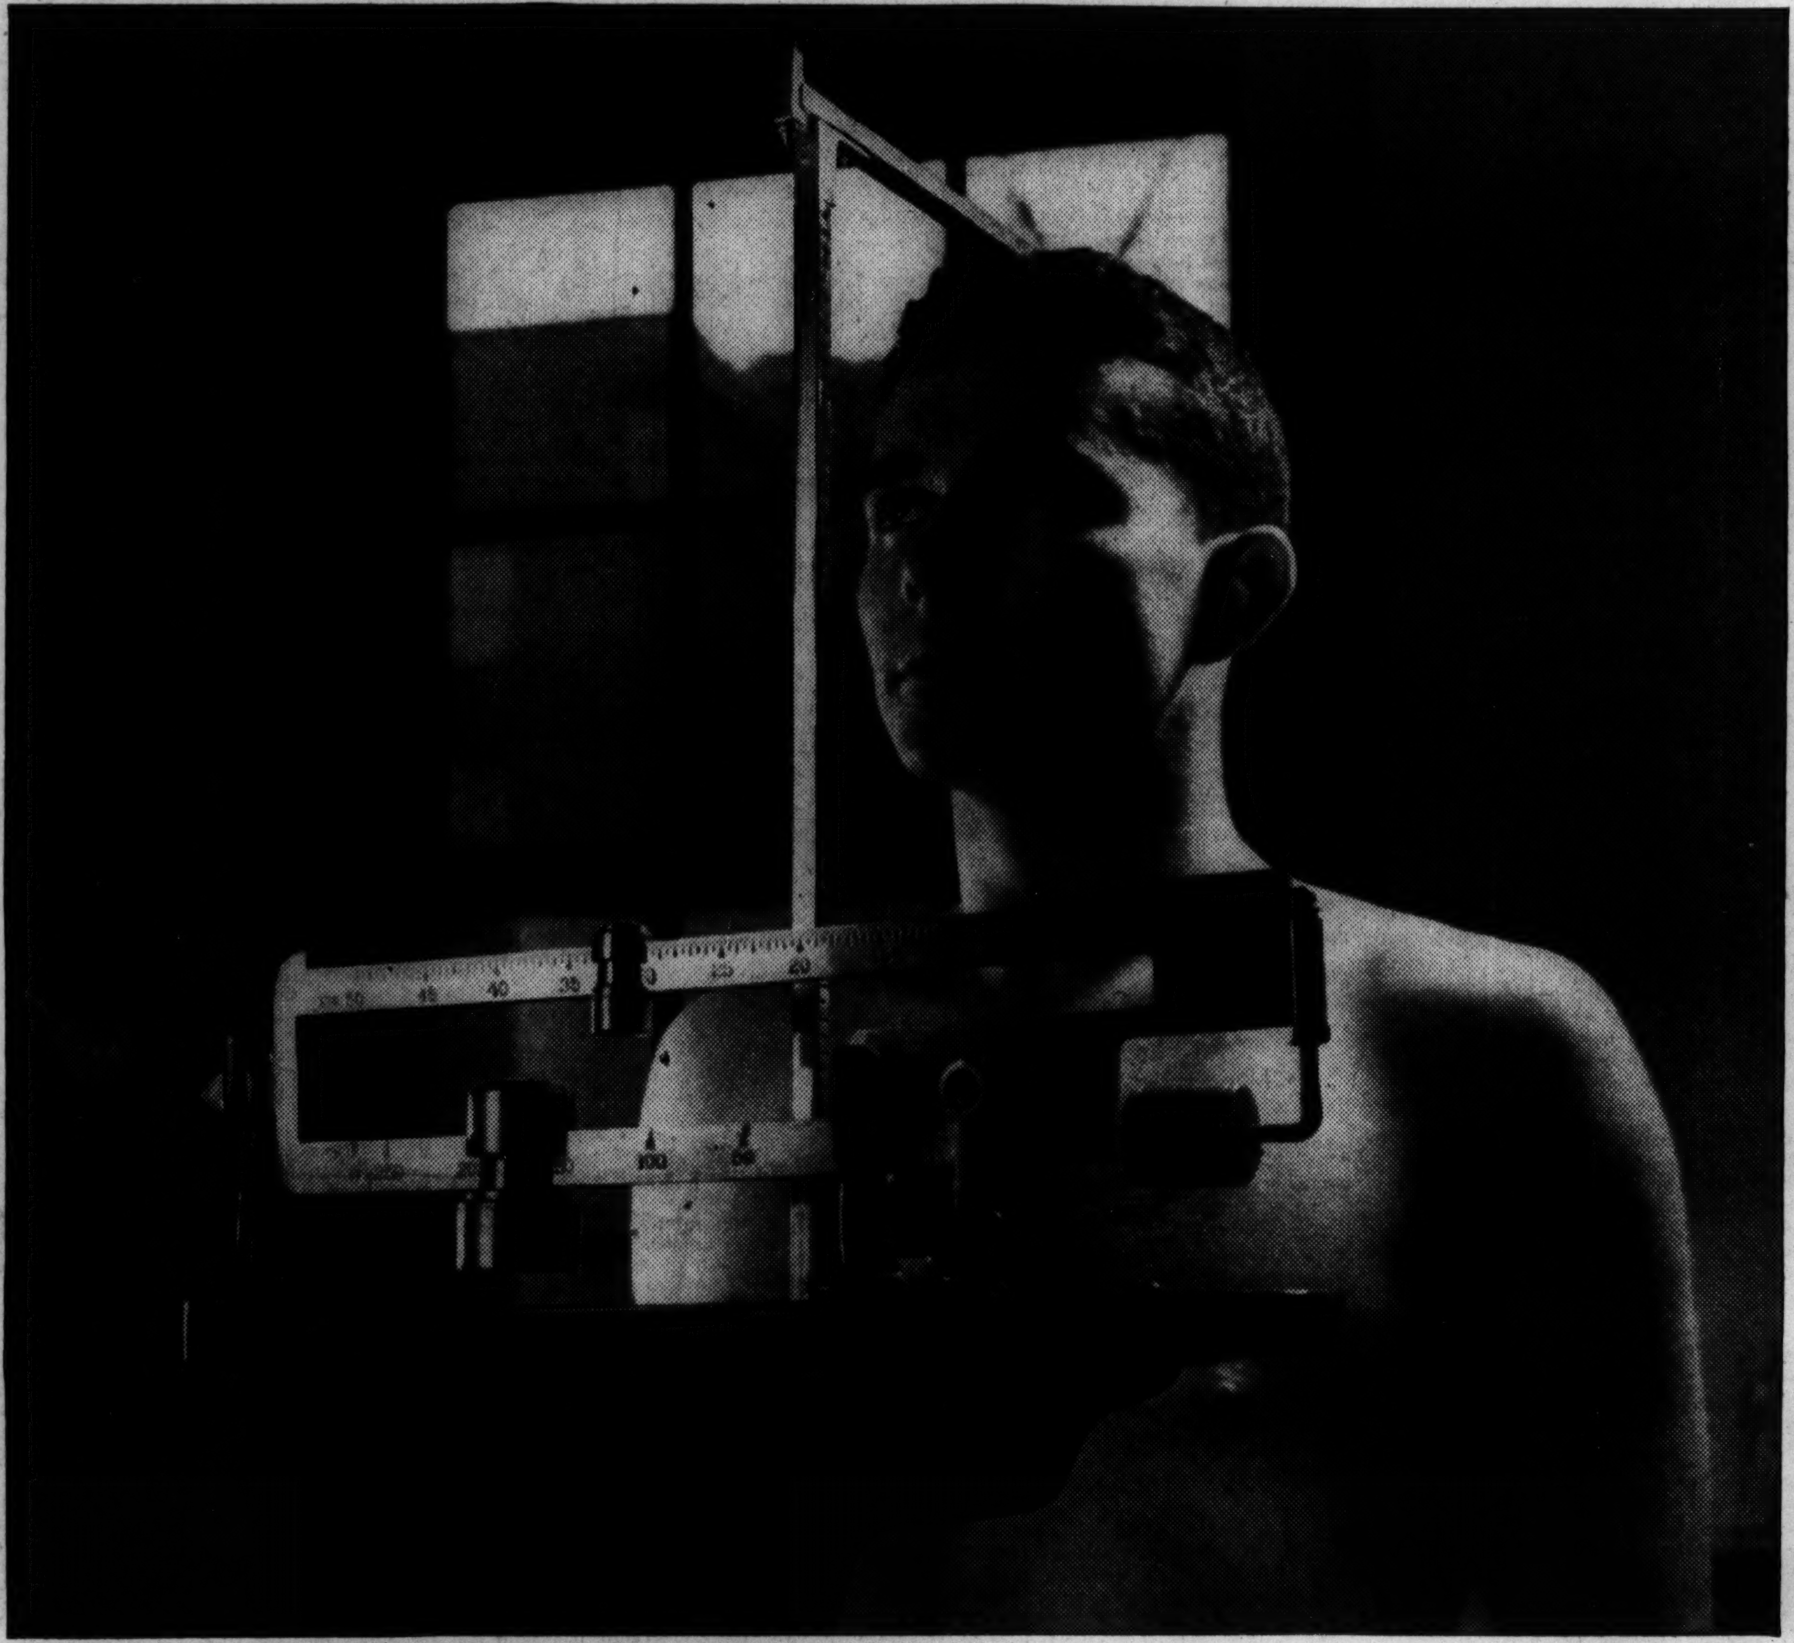
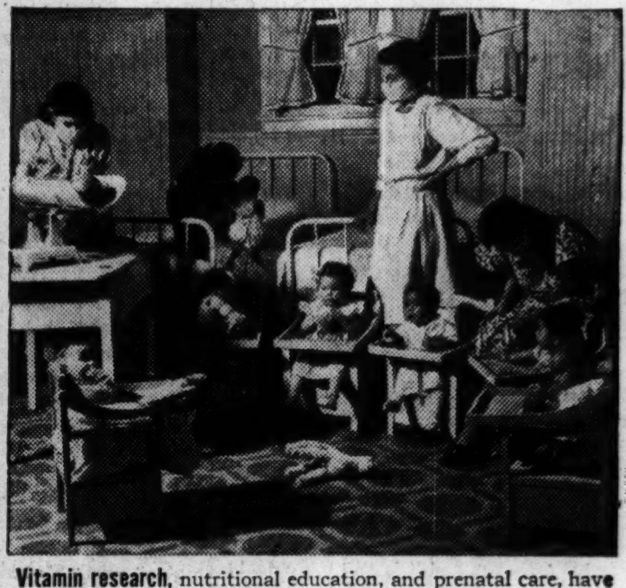
ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

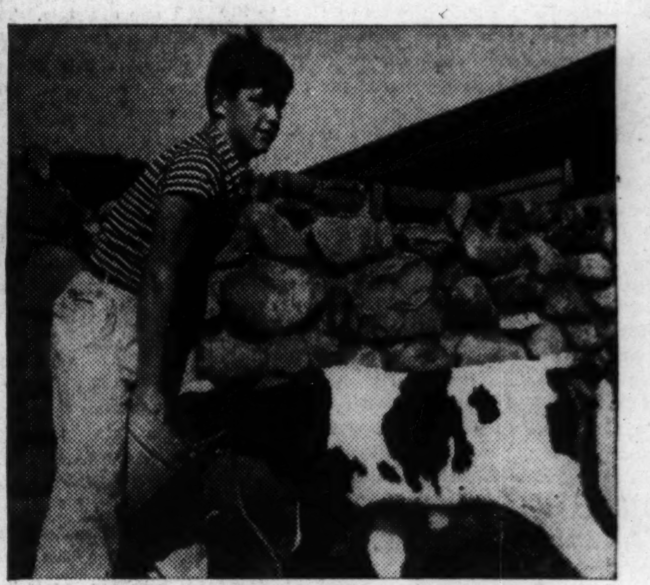


Young Americans of draft age, better nourished than their fathers, better protected during childhood against disease and resulting impairments, are the healthiest generation America has ever produced.

The American girl grows up on a footing of equality with her brother; her health fits her to be a sound potential wife and mother, also to be a competent responsible citizen of democracy.



Vitamin research, nutritional education, and prenatal care, have contributed to producing American babies that now grow bigger, stronger and advance faster than in any past generation.



Federal, State, school promotion of health is augmented by many spontaneous organizations. The Four H program for farm youngsters, for instance, helps to usher thousands into robust maturity.

Americans live longer, enjoy an extended active life, as pneumonia, tuberculosis and appendicitis claim fewer and fewer victims each year. In just three decades, the average length of life in the United States has increased by a full 16 years.

2 inches taller...15 pounds heavier!

UPON THE HEALTH of all of its people, the ultimate strength of any nation must depend.

Furiously, Doctor Goebbels' propaganda machine has ground out bales of well-staged pictures, millions of boastful words—trying to put over the legend that, at least, Hitlerism has produced a healthy, vigorous nation.

The truth, however, has managed to wriggle past Doctor Goebbels through strictly German channels. For, with all his iron-handed control of the press, he overlooked until recently the revealing statistical reports on German health being printed in otherwise censored Nazi publications, German medical journals!

And, right up to the outbreak of the present war, these reports have revealed that Germany could thank six years of peace-time Nazi rule for:

An increased death rate, a falling birth rate. An appalling rise in rickets, tuberculosis, infectious diseases of childhood (diphtheria mortality in 1938, for instance, 4 times that for the U. S.). An increase of 55% in puerperal (childbed) fever.

A resume of young people graduating from the touted "Hitler Youth" reveals 90% to be suffering from fallen arches and flat feet. Youthful criminality—a significant index of healthful environment—has doubled to an all-time high since 1934, drunkenness and insanity markedly increased, venereal disease in the Rhine Provinces alone, between 1936 and 1938, soared more than 60%.

In suicides, the Third Reich has achieved world leadership, almost equalling the total credited to the rest of Europe.

Under 4 years of Nazi "New Order," accidental deaths jumped 25-30%, occupational diseases rose more than 100% from 1936 to 1937, and National

This advertisement is one of a series studying our democratic American way of life.

Sickness Insurance figures, reflecting the condition of two-thirds of all German workers, show for 1938 some 200 million work days lost, 12 million due to digestive disorders alone. (Figures taken from statistical reports of 12 authoritative German publications.)

* * *

A picture of health? Rather, this is a crystal clear picture of the bitter fruits of dictatorship's basic contempt for the individual's welfare!

It records the inexorable toll exacted for cruelly overburdening and overmarching children as young as 6 years, for recklessly driving millions of men and women beyond the limits of their physical and mental endurance, for cynically undermining and prostituting a once-great medical tradition.

How, on the other hand, does health fare under democracy—the system that respects its people as valuable individuals, that sees the state their servant rather than their ruthless master?

One heartening answer has been supplied by the surprisingly high quality of America's draftees, recently plucked at random from civilian life. This cross section of our country is giving us soldiers who average 2 inches taller, and 15 pounds heavier than those who were called in 1917. So high is the average physical condition of these men, that the U. S. has no problem in making Army selections to meet new, more exacting standards of fitness.

From the vital statistics of insurance companies, we learn that life for children in this country has been made infinitely safer. We have reduced death from the principal communicable diseases of childhood—measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, diphtheria—by 31% in a single year to a new record low, a point actually promising complete eradication of these diseases!

Bearing American children has been made safer, too. Intelligent, free, democratic agitation and co-operative effort is fast eliminating needless sacrifice of women to puerperal fever; in 1940, when a larger number of women bore children than in the year before, our puerperal death rate dropped 10% to a new low.

And other great wasters of life are recording lower rates today than in any previous year. For instance, the death rate for pneumonia has dropped from about 70 per 100,000 prior to 1937 to 35.5 in 1940; for tuberculosis, from 80.9 only 10 years ago to 44.3 in 1940; for appendicitis, 12% lower in 1940 than in 1939. Suicides and homicides are at record lows. The incidence of syphilis appears to be lower than at any time during the past decade. The average length of life has increased some 16 years in just three decades!

In the education of Americans to recognize and do things about their individual and collective health, our un-bulldozed medical profession, schools, Federal and State governments, all co-operate vigorously and effectively. And our free, democratic press plays an invaluable part.

LIFE Magazine, for instance, presents facts relating to all phases of modern living to a weekly audience of more than 20,000,000 readers—offering them information they want and need, in a vivid way they like, understand, and act upon.

LIFE is proud of this contribution that it is making in this crucial time toward the successful functioning of democracy. And, as "America's Most Potent Editorial Force," LIFE is dedicated to continuing this contribution both now and after this time of crisis has passed.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S TALK TONIGHT.

Mr. Roosevelt is due tonight to make his twice postponed talk to the country. The intimations of what he is to say have been ambiguous. Does he regard this as the moment to announce an intention to fight to the last American to put back on their European thrones the rulers who fled their countries in their hour of need?

The President was to speak to the nation at Staunton, Va., on May 4 and broadcasting arrangements had been made. Then the request for the time was withdrawn and in dedicating the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson Mr. Roosevelt said nothing alarming.

The second arrangements scheduled the speech for May 14. On May 11 Herbert Hoover made an effective talk to the nation against participation in the war. Rudolf Hess skipped out for Scotland. A postponement of Mr. Roosevelt's speech was announced.

Thruout the month in which Mr. Roosevelt hesitated to make the ominous statement he apparently had in mind, proxy voices endeavored to prepare the people for it. Vice President Wallace, Mr. Hull, Mr. Stimson, and Mr. Knox talked of convoys, of stopping Hitler now, of making our aid to Britain effective before it was too late and before the enemy had descended on our shores. The intent was to fasten upon the people a feeling of fatality and inevitability.

But if Mr. Roosevelt is any more persuaded now than he was when he first postponed his talk that he has a majority of the people with him for going to war, he has deceived himself. He is surrounded by men and women who have no other thought than that of sending American military forces into action. He has been isolated from contact with any other counselors. There is probably no one in his circle who has advised him of the dangers into which he is advancing. It is doubtful if any one close to him has asked him to reconsider his program, and it is still more doubtful that he would listen to any word of caution spoken in the interests of the American people.

At the White House a secretarial spokesman for the chief executive said that the speech tonight would be one which would give no comfort to the enemies of democracy, here or abroad. That may not reveal much of what is to be said, but it suggests the tone and it is typical of the tactics of the war party campaign.

Any one in this country, according to the White House hypothesis, who believes that national interest is not defended by a foreign war is an enemy of democracy. Among those seeking this war are persons who believe that it will mean the end of the American system of government and a substitution under dictatorship of the collectivist economy, for which the New Deal has been working, along with the autocratic political controls necessary to make such socialism work. These people have mapped the Roosevelt program for eight years and they think that it would be well worth a war to get what they want in full measure.

END OF A DISGRACEFUL INCIDENT.

Lawrence McDaniel, the defeated Democratic candidate for governor of Missouri, has abandoned his contest for that office. The Democratic machine in that state first sought to steal the governorship from the elected candidate, Forrest C. Donnell, by refusing to issue him a certificate of election. Balked at that by the retiring governor, Lloyd Stark, and the Supreme court of Missouri, the machine packed a committee and undertook a recount of the votes in the election. Even under the partisan guidance of this committee the recount showed that if any votes were stolen they were stolen from Donnell, the winner, not from McDaniel, the loser. The disgraceful affair is accordingly brought to a close by McDaniel's concession of defeat. Ex-Gov. Stark and the members of the Supreme court, all Democrats, emerge from the business with credit. They placed personal honor and the law above political partisanship.

A NECESSARY DEFENSE MEASURE.

The output of the industries of the United States this month will set a new high mark. Twenty per cent more goods is being produced than at the high tide of 1929. To carry on business on such a greatly expanded scale—and even this is to be expanded—will require the full use of our transportation facilities.

The administration, however, has just announced that it is going to turn over to the British one-half of the ship tonnage used in the coastwise traffic. In the greatest industrial boom of all times the facilities for carrying goods by water from one American port to another are to be cut in two. This will place a terrific strain upon the railway system.

To enable them to do the job to the best of their ability the roads placed orders for 43,539 cars in the first four months of the year, a record for any year since 1929. Meanwhile, the American Railway association has announced plans to build 120,000 cars in 1942 and 150,000 in 1943.

This is considerable, but it may not be nearly enough. The roads could and would buy a great deal more equipment than that and be prepared to meet the demand that might be made of them if they could be certain of retaining some of the transcontinental business they are taking over because of the diversion of ships. But they know that as soon as peace is restored ships will return to the old routes along the coastline. The water carriers then will make rates low enough to get the business, and the Interstate Commerce commission won't allow the railroads to compete. If the railroads buy enough cars to move all the freight soon to be offered them they will have equipment they won't need when peace is restored.

As a defense measure, congress should now adopt the long haul bill advocated in several sessions of congress by former Congressman Pettingill. If that were done it would notify the roads that they could have some of the transcontinental freight after the war, if they could handle it more economically than water carriers. Without such assurance prudent railroad men will not be able to provide enough cars and tractive power to do their own job with that of the coastwise shipping companies added.

THIS DU BARTAS.

One of the more devoted readers of this page supplements the lean meat he finds here with the fat and greens of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations." Thus he achieves a balanced literary diet and thus he causes us a lot of trouble.

"How about this Du Bartas?" he asks, and it appears that Bartlett [ninth edition] gives four pages to selections from an author of that name. Du Bartas is credited with "cheek by jowl," "tooth and nail," "night's black mantle," "windows of the soul," "living from hand to mouth," and "will for the deed." He seems to have been the first to observe that "swans seem whiter if swart crows be by" and perhaps he coined "the four corners of the world" and "the jaws of death."

He had a substantial gift for epigram. He inquires:

> . . . where's the state beneath the firmament
> That doth excel the bees for government?

He observes:

> To man the earth seems altogether
> No more a mother but a step-dame rather.

And he wrote:

> The world's a stage where God's omnipotence,
> His justice, knowledge, love, and providence
> Do act the parts.

This last has its more or less distinct echoes in Shakespeare and in Milton.

All we know about Du Bartas is to be found in the encyclopedias. He was a Gascon and a Huguenot who was born 20 years before Shakespeare and died 26 years before Shakespeare's death. Du Bartas' great work was entitled "La Semaine," which was divided into seven books, each of which described a day in the creation of the world. The poem was published in Paris in 1578. Six years later "La Seconde Semaine" appeared, containing metrical paraphrases of many of the Bible stories.

These and some others of Du Bartas' works were translated into English verse by Joshua [or, as he sometimes wrote it, Josuah and Josua] Sylvester. He was contemporary with Shakespeare, left school while still a boy to go into business, and died in Holland as an employé of the Merchant Adventurers' company. The translation of Du Bartas' long poems was entitled "Devine Weekes and Workes," and from it almost all of the quotations to which Bartlett calls attention were culled. How much of the credit for phrase making belongs to Du Bartas and how much to Sylvester, the translator, we do not know. Thomas Seccombe, who wrote the treatise on Sylvester in the "Dictionary of National Biography," says "his rendering is, indeed, far more of a paraphase than a translation."

It is impossible to read the Du Bartas-Sylvester quotations without noting the parallels in Shakespeare's writing. "The world's a stage" is but one example. Those who are determined to believe that Shakespeare was a plagiarist will find in these similarities a little, but very little, evidence to support their thesis. "As You Like It" was probably given to the world some years after the Sylvester translation was published. Score one against Shakespeare, if you will, on account of "the world's a stage," but Bartlett has a dozen footnotes to his quotations from Du Bartas to call attention to parallel expressions in Shakespeare. More often than not Shakespeare got there first unless, indeed, he swiped his lines from the French original. That doesn't seem too probable.

Dryden as a young man thought Sylvester the hottest kind of hot stuff, but lived to characterize the "Devine Weekes" as "abominable fustian." Literary tastes change and perhaps that judgment, in turn, needs to be modified, particularly in view of the gift for phrase revealed by Bartlett. Even if the partnership didn't coin all the expressions, Sylvester must be given credit for borrowing good ones, itself an evidence of discrimination. It is quite possible, of course, that many of the striking phrases used by Sylvester and other Elizabethans were already in the public domain at the time. We should like to hear what the scholars have to say about it.

Editorial of the Day

DONT READ BEFORE DINNER.

[Christian Science Monitor.]

Mr. Suburbanite isn't complaining about the high price of gasoline—not yet, anyway. He senses it has something to do with national defense. When a radio announcer speaks of steps toward the rationing of rubber, Mr. Suburbanite wonders whether the day will come when he will no longer be able to drive his car into town every day. Perhaps the time has come to try commuting by train, he reflects, and decides to take the train this very morning.

Among the blessings of commuting by train is time to read the morning paper and even an article or two from the magazines of comment. So instead of watching traffic lights, Mr. Suburbanite reads [1] that just recently the state department has revoked all licenses for the shipment of scrap rubber to Japan, but apparently not until a rubber shortage was "already in sight"; [2] that shipments of petroleum to Japan in March were higher than in either January or February, tho the political situation between the United States and Japan worsened perceptibly in that period; [3] that negotiations were under way in Washington in April whereby British authorities hoped to curb shipment of ferrous alloys "to enemy countries."

Mr. Suburbanite wants to be patriotic. He knows the struggle in which the United States is engaged today involves fundamentals that are dearer to him than is his own personal convenience or fortune. But he wishes for the sake of his morning's peace of mind at the office that he had driven into town as usual, leaving disturbing questions to be taken up after his regular day's work was done.

"VULNERABLE TO FLASH."

The destruction of the British battle cruiser Hood by magazine explosion in action recalls the battle of Jutland, May 31, 1916, and its demonstration of "vulnerability to flash." Five of the six important ships that the British lost then [three battle cruisers, three armored cruisers] were destroyed by sudden explosions. Here is a condensed record:

Indefatigable, battle cruiser, exploded at 4:05 p. m. under fire of Von der Tann; lost, 1,015; saved, 2.

Queen Mary, battle cruiser, exploded at 4:26 p. m. under fire of Derfflinger and Seydlitz, lost, 1,258; saved, 17.

Invincible, battle cruiser, with Rear Admiral Horace L. A. Hood, exploded at 6:35 p. m., under fire of Lützow and Derfflinger; lost, 1,028; saved, 6. A survivor reported Admiral Hood's last command: "Keep it up as rapidly as you can. Every shot is a hit."

Defense, armored cruiser, with Rear Admiral Sir Robert Arbuthnot, exploded at 6:20 p. m., under two salvos from German battle cruisers; no survivors.

Black Prince, armored cruiser, burned and then exploded at midnight under fire of three German battleships [Thüringen, Ostfriesland, Friedrich der Grosse]; no survivors.

The German ships appeared to be less "vulnerable to flash." The battleship Pommern exploded, not under shell fire but after a hit by a torpedo. The battle cruiser Lützow, battered into a sinking condition, was sunk by torpedoes from sister ships. Four light cruisers were lost, as follows: Wiesbaden, sank after heavy and prolonged shell fire; Elbing, sank after ramming by the German battleship Posen; Rostock, sank after a torpedo hit; Frauenlob, torpedoed and exploded immediately.

The explosions of the Pommern and Frauenlob accounted for one-half the German loss of life [total, 2,545]. The five British blowings-up caused three-fourths of their casualties [total, 6,274].

A Village of the Past.

It was a small wooded village with irregular streets. Old fashioned fences inclosed apple orchards, where orioles sang and chicory and sweet clover grew unchecked beside the uneven board walks. Across the creek the wooded pasture rose, and country rigs rumbled pleasantly over the narrow bridge into town. Two white church spires rose above the trees and a grassy path led to the little green cemetery. Over the fence from the cemetery was the wooded ravine with the violet patch, famous in the countryside, where children picked their fill and the scarlet tanager was at home. Families with the names of a native stock lived here: Dwight Haven, Newton Reynolds, Addison and Pamela Collins, Chastina Link, Celestia Cleveland, Caleb Jones, names found nowhere else now save on the stones of the old cemetery. A new generation has risen that knew them not and the Lincoln highway has absorbed the village. Over certain grassy mounds, taps is sounding.

On the Trail of an Old Tale.

Regarding "Absent-Minded Professor, First Prize" [May 22]:

Apparently the late Dr. Thomas E. Chamberlin's exploit with a watch has passed into folklore. The incident has been used as the plot of a comedy called "When Smith Stepped Out," by Harry Osborne, published by T. S. Denison & Co., Chicago, in 1919. [Text of play supplied to this column by Eben H. Norris.]

Furthermore, Frank A. Lepper of Milwaukee supplies a two minute version of the tale, written by himself and printed in Guide, a Milwaukee publication, several years ago. He believed that the incident had happened in Milwaukee.

Alternate theory: Dr. Chamberlin himself was handing down a folk tale which his family accepted as fact.

Many have followed learning in distress,
Her hearth the only warming place they knew;
Many accepted bravely her duress,
Their sole reward the freedom to pursue;
Many have faced chagrin, defeat, despair,
Thru mouldering years of unrelieved toil,
Haply at last to find a few to share
The light enkindled from their sacred oil.

TIME FOR HAY FEVER PREVENTIVES.

NOW is the time for summer or autumn hay fever patients to take stock. Can anything be done to forestall distress several weeks hence? Yes—for vaccines used now may be helpful not only in warding off the acute manifestations, but in preventing annoying sequels.

I see occasionally a 26 year old victim who experienced his first attack in 1940. It left him a confirmed asthmatic. To put it conservatively, his efficiency has dropped 50 per cent. I am confident that had he been protected against the original malady none of these unfortunate complications would have ensued. He is now sensitive to so many substances, including foods, that in order to maintain nutrition he is obliged to brave the terrors of wheezing seizures.

Protection should be begun before some particular pollen is given a chance to play its vicious rôle. Vaccines may be administered months prior to the expected onslaught—with far greater possibility of relief.

Those who suffer all the year from bouts with acute colds will probably be mildly susceptible to a specific culprit. They get along very well for a week or two, whereupon a coryza comes on suddenly. The nose is red, the air passages become congested, and the nostrils will usually itch, constituting the avenue of escape for a copious watery discharge. It is always well, even with such minor symptoms, to try to track the "starter" to its lair, as unpleasant after-effects are not uncommon from this type of disorder.

The appearance of urticaria [hives]—unrelated to the diet—may mean that the victim is responding to bacteria within his own body. The activity of a myriad of germs within the bowel, or the presence of a toxin produced along the digestive tract, may bring on the ailment. This calls for better intestinal hygiene, with generous water drinking before breakfast, in an effort to restore normal and natural emptying of the colon. When urticaria is allowed to occur periodically, the same cause may give rise to swelling within the larynx, actually shutting off breathing. This latter circumstance constitutes an emergency for which the physician should be called immediately.

There are those who believe that 75 per cent of all our headaches are due to a food or other irritant which affects particularly the nerves of the cranium. Even in migraine [sick headache], the blood vessels behave as tho they were under the influence of a powerful poison, forcing them to contract. Those within the brain may remain tightly cramped for a long period of time, to be followed by a release of fluid thru their walls. The result is enough pressure to lead to pain.

Most of us can avoid whatever material occasions discomfort, but for those who respond to pollens there is no remedy other than an attempt to become accustomed to the offender until reactions no longer come on. The whole scheme of vaccination depends upon increasing the doses of ragweed or other irritant to the point where nothing will happen when it is inhaled.

The trouble with this whole sensitivity business is that it will not follow rules. A striking result was noted in a case involving severe abdominal soreness, which was thought to be due to gall bladder disease. The appetite was poor and sometimes the patient would be doubled up with cramps, which seemed to have no relation to the diet. X-rays showed no tumor or other disturbance within the alimentary canal, whereupon skin tests revealed a strong reaction to wool. When all association with this textile was banished, no further difficulty was encountered.

PROPOSES A BASIS FOR PEACE.

Jeffersonville, Ind., May 24.—Despite her imperialistic policy which invites criticism, every thoughtful person wants England to retain her national sovereignty. On the other hand native born Americans distinctly do not want it on the basis of Mr. Churchill's insistence that Hitlerism must be destroyed by warfare which America would wage in Europe along with England. Shelving of pride by the English at this juncture of world history will help the world maintain its economic, social, and political equilibrium. It is disturbing in the extreme to think of the dislocation that would follow our participation in this war even if won. Friday night the nation heard Lindbergh speak about leadership. Recently ex-President Hoover spoke of national unity. Here is how national unity can be preserved, England can be preserved and the English speaking people can achieve victory without warfare:

Prevail upon England to abandon the British Isles and establish her capital in Ottawa. Canada has ample room to absorb the people of the British Isles. We have bragged for years of the fine spirit existing between the United States and Canada; never in a century any semblance of trouble between the two great countries. England could transfer her navy to this side of the Atlantic; we could transfer virtually all of our existing fleets to the Pacific, giving us immediately the two ocean navy which it has been argued we need. At the same time England can give to India the just freedom it deserves and give up its possessions elsewhere.

Certainly, if democracy truly means what it implies and the acknowledged great minds of America and England concentrate upon making democracy really work in this hemisphere, at the same time building up our defenses on the basis of present plans we can live at peace physically and economically. Unless some plan of the character herein outlined is attempted I have no hesitancy in saying that should every other person in America become sold on the idea of policing the world, the writer will remain an isolationist. I have before me a statement of perhaps as great a mind as ever graced the senate, Albert J. Beveridge, who said:

"Foreign propagandists always strive to serve and advance the interests of their country; never the interests of our country. And it is a first condition of their success that they make us believe that the interests of their country and the interests of our country are identical interests."

If President Roosevelt wants to experience more hell than all the theologians could contemplate let him drag us into an undeclared war, denying to the senate its constitutional right to determine this grave question. Up to this juncture he has commanded the respect of all Americans regardless of mistakes. Certainly he has nothing to lose by action which will maintain that respect. That can be achieved by remaining aloof from participation in foreign conflict.

WHEN THE COMICS WERE COMIC.

Chicago, May 23.—My heart bleeds for the younger generation because there won't be any comics when they grow up. There was a time a fellow could read his comic strip and chuckle, but now he reads it and shudders.

I shall always remember my boyhood because Skeezix was a boy too, altho somewhat younger. But Skeezix will be an old man when my son, who is 13 months olds, gets big enough to read him or gets big enough to have me read the so called "comics" to him.

O, for the return of the good old days when the newspapers had comic strips.

DOORS CLOSED TO YELLOW RACE.

Chicago, May 24.—I have read the letter from the Filipino minister regarding his family's efforts to rent an apartment. Yes, the doors of our fine, Christian Americans are closed to those of the yellow race. We are living in a free country, but just how much equality is shown this race?

We, too, have walked the streets looking for apartments and have also had our applications rejected. Why? We are Chinese. Are we expected to live in slum neighborhoods because we are of a different color? We also ask what is the meaning of democracy.

Frankly, the states in this central part of the United States are not American in representation or spirit. They are mongrel mobs where the European pro-Nazi element hides out. It is in the south, where this writer lives, you will find the real Americans who will not sell their country for a cheap, screaming editorial, or for so-called "mothers' sons" [what kind of sons?] picketing the White House.

RIGHT TO DISINHERIT.

Chicago, May 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1935 my husband died, leaving me and one daughter without funds of any sort. My husband had left a very remunerative position to work for his father and the insurance which he had carried he was forced to drop when the first premium was due, because of insufficient salary in his father's employ. His parents are well to do and since his death have supported me entirely and are giving my daughter a college education. There are two other heirs, a son and daughter.

1. In case of their death, can they deduct all money they have paid to us as above outlined from my husband's share of their estate? There was no agreement of any kind made nor was this support-education offered in lieu of his share.

2. A house which my mother-in-law let us live in during my husband's lifetime she said was supposed to be ours and after his death made the remark it was supposed to be "my share." Could I in any way claim title if I am left without funds?

B. E.

1. Yes. A parent has the legal power to disinherit a child arbitrarily and hence they would necessarily have the smaller power to make arbitrary deductions.

2. These remarks would not be legally enforceable unless confirmed by a will.

CLEANING UNION EX-CHIEF SUED ON $40,000 DEAL

Squandering of Members' $400,000 Charged.

A suit for $40,000 was filed yesterday in the Superior court against Ben A. Albert, former president of the Cleaners, Dyers, and Pressers' union, and two others. Albert is charged with squandering $400,000 in union funds to promote a union master cleaning shop which never materialized.

Albert was questioned recently in the investigation of the slaying of Anton Gorczak, a driver for the Republic cleaners in Cicero, who was beaten to death April 23 by two men with baseball bats.

Named in yesterday's suit with Albert are his brother, Louis Albert, and Edward A. Fink, president of the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, Ltd. The Peacock company also was named a defendant.

Mortgage Holder Sues.

The suit was filed by Attorney Morris K. Levinson on behalf of a London client, Arthur E. Hatfield, who has a mortgage on special cleaning and dyeing machinery shipped to Chicago from England in 1929. The $40,000 covers the cost of the machinery.

The machinery was purchased by the Super-Method, Inc., cleaners, no longer in existence. Its president was Louis Albert, but the real boss, according to Levinson, was Ben Albert, then president of the Cleaners, Dyers, and Pressers' union.

At the time it was announced that Super-Method cleaners would be all-union owned and operated in competition with the big private cleaners, with which Albert's union was engaged in a wage and hour fight. According to the suit, $400,000 was raised from union members by assessments, the Super-Method plant was built on the northwest side, and the British machinery was installed.

Charge Waste of Funds.

But, it is charged, the Super-Method plant never opened and the money collected for its construction was dissipated. The suit alleged that in 1936 Ben Albert, his brother, Louis, and Fink entered into a conspiracy as a result of which the imported machinery was moved from the Super-Method plant to the Peacock plant. Levinson said the machinery still is being used in the Peacock plant.

A hearing on a petition to reopen the Klever Shampay cleaning plant, which was closed by Mayor Kelly during investigation of the slaying of Gorczak, is set for 10 a. m. today before Warren Canaday, special master for Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court. The plant was closed on information it was dominated by Murray Humphreys, a lieutenant of Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti.

Attorneys for the Gaines Dry Cleaners, Inc., which was organized in Delaware after the Klever Shampay plant had been closed, seek a court writ to reopen the plant. State's Attorney Courtney and Corporation Counsel Hodes will oppose the plea for the writ.

BANKRUPTCY AID GETS 3 YEARS IN THEFT OF $2,523

James Walker McNeill, a former assistant to a trustee in bankruptcy, was sentenced to three years in prison yesterday by Judge John P. Barnes in Federal District court on his plea of guilty of converting bankruptcy assets to his own use.

Government officials considered the sentence important because of the government's investigation of affairs of several federal bankruptcy trustees.

McNeill was charged with withholding $2,523 in rents from the Chatfield hotel, 3333 Washington boulevard, in 1938 while he managed it as a bankruptcy agent. He said he used the money to play the horses. Judge Barnes imposed sentence after reading a probation report showing McNeill had embezzled funds once before and had been negligent in supporting his wife and two adult sons. McNeill is 45 years old. He lived last at 2850 North Albany avenue.

EASTERN LEADER OF CIO TESTIFIES ON BRIDGES' SIDE

San Francisco, Cal., May 26 [Special]. — Counsel for Harry Bridges, alien CIO director in California and head of the longshoremen's union, brought Joseph E. Curran, head of the CIO maritime union, from New York today to combat the testimony of previous witnesses who have linked Bridges with the Communist party.

The government seeks to deport Bridges to his native Australia on the ground he is or has been a communist or associate of subversive interests which advocate overthrow of the government by force.

Curran denied today Bridges flew to New York in 1936 on orders of the Communist party to address a labor meeting in Madison Square garden and that communists directed a series of speeches he made in eastern seaport cities. Curran admitted, however, that communists paid the rent for the New York garden.

The deportation hearing entered its eighth week today and probably will not be completed until late next week.

EIGHT ARRESTED IN CAFE RAID WIN COURT STAY

Eight employés of the Theater café, 4812 Clark street, won continuances yesterday when they were arraigned before Judge George B. Weiss in Racket court on charges of selling liquor to minors. The eight were arrested Saturday in a raid on the café.

Clement Dernback, assistant state's attorney, said six boys and six girls found in the café at the time of the raid were in school yesterday and could not be present in court. He said arrangements would be made for them to appear later.

Assistant Prosecutor William Crawford said he was investigating the ownership of the café. Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan of Commissioner Allman's office, who led the raid, said there were reports the café had been taken over by the Nitti-Humphreys-Stanton syndicate.

TAVERN'S APPEAL TO REOPEN HEARD BY COMMISSION

The Chicago Liquor commission yesterday took under advisement an appeal on behalf of Anne Millstone, whose tavern at 1210 East 63d street was closed recently and its license revoked because it allegedly was open after hours. There also were charges that the tavern was one of a group suspected of being owned by the Humphreys-Stanton syndicate.

Attorney Ray Wallenstein asked Mrs. Millstone if she owned the place. She said yes, and added that there was no outside control. Three policemen from the 7th district then told the commission they never had trouble with the tavern staying open. The final witness was Mortimer Goldstone, who said he is a brother of Mrs. Millstone.

Goldstone testified that he is in the manufacturing business and that he is Mrs. Millstone's only financial backer. He said he had lent her "thousands of dollars."

$350,000 LEFT TO HISTORICAL SOCIETY BY PIKE

President's Will Sets Up Memorial Fund.

The Chicago Historical society in Lincoln park was bequeathed an estimated $350,000 in real estate under terms of the will of its late president, Charles B. Pike, which was admitted to probate yesterday by Judge Martin C. Decker in Lake county Probate court in Waukegan. Mr. Pike died April 26. He had been president of the society since 1927.

His will, filed by Attorney John P. Wilson, also left $50,000 to the Visiting Nurse Association of Chicago and several lesser bequests to friends and relatives. The rest, amounting to approximately $750,000, goes to his widow, Mrs. Frances Alger Pike.

Estate Put at $1,150,000.

The inventory valued the estate at $1,150,000—$350,000 in real estate and $800,000 in personal property. Under Mr. Pike's will, certain real estate, mostly business buildings near the loop, is to be held in trust for the historical society, with its trustees privileged to use the money to carry on the society's work. The gift is to be known as the Charles Burrall and Frances Alger Pike fund after Mr. Pike and his widow.

Included in Mrs. Pike's share of the estate are the Pike homes at 955 North Lake road, Lake Forest, and at 1100 Lake Shore drive, which she and her husband held in joint tenancy.

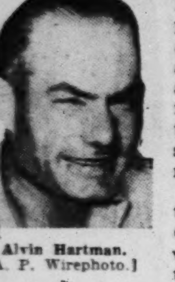
Scudder Estate $300,000.

The will of Lawrence W. Scudder, accounting executive, was filed for probate in the same court. Mr. Scudder, who lived at 920 North Hawthorne lane, Lake Forest, left an estate estimated in excess of $300,000. The income will go to Mr. Scudder's widow, Mrs. Alice Scudder. After her death the estate will be divided among two daughters, Clarina and Mary Scudder, and a son, Philip. Mr. Scudder died May 18.

Judge Decker admitted to probate the will of Howard S. Smith, president of the J. P. Smith Shoe company, who died May 12. Mr. Smith left his $75,000 estate to his widow, Mrs. May Smith, and three daughters. He lived at 203 Prospect avenue, Highland Park.

CLINGS TO BRIDGE BY ONE HAND TO SAVE BOY'S LIFE

Denver, Colo., May 26 (AP).—Swinging from beneath a railroad trestle by one arm, Alvin Hartman, 37 years old, caught a boy struck by a passing train and saved him from almost certain death in the swollen Fraser river.



Alvin Hartman. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Hartman and the boy, Arthur Craymer Jr., 14, were fishing from the trestle when the train rushed upon them. Hartman and the boy caught hold of the ties and hung beneath the bridge. Hartman noticed that the boy was about to lose his grip. Arthur tried to pull himself up, and the steps of a coach struck his head.

As the boy dropped, Hartman swung out and caught him, saving him from plunging unconscious into the swift mountain river. Hartman clung to the tie until his brother Oscar and the conductor of the train pulled the two to safety. Arthur was brought to a Denver hospital aboard the train. Physicians said he had an even chance to live.

CITY CLUB SEEKS TO JOIN IN SUIT TO CUT BUS FARE

The City club today will ask permission from the Illinois Commerce commission to intervene in the city's 7 year old petition for a cut in the 10 cent bus fare of the Chicago Motor Coach company, attorneys for the club said last night.

The attorneys, Sidney Yates and Abe Stein, said the City club, if allowed to intervene, will ask the commission to order the coach company to put on more buses, provide owl [after midnight] service, and use two operators instead of one on large buses during rush hours.

Yates and Stein said the coach company is earning an excessive profit on its investment and that this profit should be reduced by providing more service, as long as fares remain at 10 cents. The city's petition for a reduction in fare has been continued 82 times by the commission—all at the request of or by agreement with city officials.

BLONDE'S LOVER DIED IN SUICIDE PACT, JURY TOLD

Mrs. Steadman Will Take Stand, Says Lawyer

Boston, Mass., May 26 (AP).—In an effort to free Mrs. Ruth Steadman, 26 years old, of a charge of slaying her married lover, Robert Emery, the defense strove today to show he died in a suicide pact, with the defendant cooperating in his attempt to protect a life insurance policy naming his widow and two children as beneficiaries.

The policy carried a clause declaring it void if Emery died by his own hand.

Mrs. Steadman, attractive blonde and former Harvard business school secretary, is charged with murder in the first degree, a crime carrying a mandatory death sentence. Defense Attorney Edward F. Flynn announced she would take the stand in her own defense.

The prosecution contends Emery, whose body, a cord about the neck, was found in Mrs. Steadman's apartment Jan. 21, was strangled while stupefied by sleeping tablets, because she couldn't "bear to let another woman have him."

Testify on Suicide Clause.

There was much testimony relating to a suicide clause in an insurance policy on Emery's life. Other witnesses told of applications he made at a later date for two other policies, at least one of which had not been issued at the time of Emery's death.

Testimony also was offered to show that Emery was in acute financial difficulties for several months preceding his death.

Miss Mary E. Moore, a friend of the Emerys who works at the army base here, told the court of several conversations with Emery about his real estate business.

"He said his business was very bad and that he was worried over losing his property in Revere," said Miss Moore. "He said if he were going to commit suicide he wanted it to appear an accident."

Witness' Diary Presented.

Late last November, the witness continued, Emery spoke of a suicide attempt of a business associate, who had been taken to a mental hospital, and added that "if he was going to do anything like that he would make a good job of it and not wind up a blithering idiot."

The defense introduced Miss Moore's diary, in which she said Emery made several entries when they met at the bar of a Boston hotel last New Year's eve. One of these, under date of Oct. 16, read: "Worst day of my Ex." Thru cross-examination the prosecution elicited that this was approximately the date of an operation which Miss Moore said Emery told her had been performed on Mrs. Steadman in New York.

Other Entries Read.

She also agreed that Emery told her he "nearly lost his mind" trying to get some one to take care of the operation.

The next entry in the diary, dated Nov. 13, read: "This was the beginning of the end."

2 SEIZED IN PROBE OF UNLICENSED MATERNITY HOME

Inmates Link Loop Lawyer to Adoption Racket.

A married couple were booked yesterday at the detective bureau on charges of operating a maternity home without a license and the state's attorney's office and state department of public welfare began investigating the activities of a loop lawyer accused of directing expectant mothers to the home.

The charges were placed against Mrs. Mae Faye Crawford, 47 years old, and her husband, Frank, 53, who were arrested Saturday night after two young married women were found in their home at 830 Waveland avenue. One girl, 16 years old, came here from Detroit with her sister. The second is from Beloit, Wis.

Lawyer Met Her At Train.

The Detroit girl, now in County hospital awaiting her child, said that a woman in Detroit had arranged for her to come to Chicago to have her baby. She said she and her sister were met at the train by the lawyer, who said that after the child was born, she and her husband were to sign adoption papers. He said he would find a good home for the child and, in return, would pay her traveling expenses, her doctor and hospital bills, and her board at the Crawford home.

Warned Against Being Seen.

The girl added that the lawyer warned that if she changed her mind about surrendering the child, she would be compelled to pay him $50, a doctor who examined her $50, the hospital $50, and the Crawfords $20 a week for board for her and her sister.

After taking her to a physician, who informed her that the child was due in two and a half weeks, the lawyer sent her and her sister to the Crawford home, she charged. Mrs. Crawford, she added, told her not to show herself in the windows or to go out after dark, and to say, if anybody questioned her, that she had seen a "room for rent" sign in the window and had rented the room until it was time for her to go to the hospital.

The Beloit woman said a physician there had made arrangements for her to have her child in Chicago. She said the Chicago lawyer came to Beloit and took her to the Crawford home.

Letters in the Crawford home showed that four other girls—from Chicago, Texas, Janesville, Wis., and Ottawa, La Salle county—had come to the Crawford home this year prior to having their children. Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Papanek was unable to learn from Mr. and Mrs. Crawford what disposition had been made of the children.

Seek Baby Sale Evidence.

The lawyer named by the two girls was reported by his office to have left the city yesterday morning. He has appeared frequently in County court to handle adoption proceedings. Papanek said that if his investigation showed there was a scheme to procure babies for "sale" to adoptive parents, he would consider placing charges of violating the public welfare act against every one implicated. Conviction carries a penalty of one year in jail.

Mrs. Crawford was found to have a license for one year, issued Aug. 1, 1940, by the state welfare department, giving her the right to board two minor children in her former home at 6207 South Park avenue. She had altered the license, according to Papanek, so that it covered "board of five mothers."

Mrs. Crawford was released on $1,000 bond last night, but her husband still was in jail.

FIRE OFFICIAL RETIRES.

Rockford, Ill., May 26 [Special].—Assistant Fire Chief Matt Long retired from active duty with the city fire department today after 34 years of service. He had been assistant chief since 1927.

DETROIT DIGS IN FOR DEFENSE

$900,000,000.00 in contracts is now assigned to Michigan industries for materials of national defense. Orders from other countries, and sub-contracts from firms in other states, sends the total of defense dollars being poured into Michigan to an estimated 1½ billion.

The Fords are spending $42,000,000 for a huge bomber-parts plant to employ 20,000 men, an airplane engine factory to employ 10,000 skilled men, and a magnesium alloy foundry; and 1,500 blitz buggies and 1,800 staff cars are rolling off the line.

Two pilot-model 28-ton tanks have been delivered to the Army by Chrysler's almost-completed $20,000,000 tank arsenal. In Chrysler plants and additions, are orders for 63,800 cars and trucks. Buick is putting up a $24,000,000 engine plant near Flint, and A. C. Spark Plug is delivering machine guns months ahead of schedule.

Battle-tested motors will soon come out of Packard's new plane-motor plant. Hundreds of Packard marine engines are being built in increasing volume for the United States and Canadian navies. Hudson's new Naval ordnance plant of fifteen buildings will use 7,000 workers.

Approximately 500 other Michigan plants are geared up to produce everything from shoes to ships and from bugles to bullets.

Meanwhile the business of buying things goes on at an accelerating pace. New automobile deliveries in Detroit are from 30% to 50% ahead of last year. Department stores sales are up 17%; bank clearings, from 30% to 60% each week.

Detroit is the number one market for increased selling effort NOW. Advertising schedules need revising to put more advertising money where it can do the most good.

In considering this market, remember that the Free Press is the newspaper preferred throughout the entire Detroit defense area. It is the one newspaper that has earned the confidence of the earning and spending families so completely that whatever is said in both its editorial and advertising columns is accepted as gospel.

The Free Press can make sales for you NOW in profitable volume and at a lower cost per line, per unit of circulation.

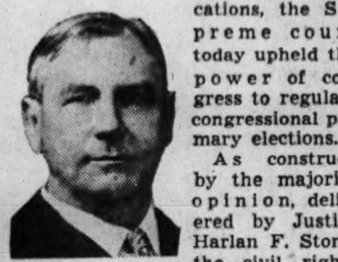
UPHOLDS POWER OF CONGRESS TO RULE PRIMARIES

Decision Comes in Case from Louisiana.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—In a 4 to 3 decision of far reaching implications, the Supreme court today upheld the power of congress to regulate congressional primary elections.



Justice H. F. Stone.

As construed by the majority opinion, delivered by Justice Harlan F. Stone, the civil rights act of 1870 clearly makes it unlawful to exclude Negroes from the Democratic congressional primaries in southern states.

Justice department attorneys said the opinion left some doubt as to the power of congress to abolish state poll taxes by statute, but that it unquestionably would sweep away many of the impediments by which large classes of citizens are disfranchised in the so-called solid south.

Hughes Takes No Part.

Justices Owen J. Roberts, Stanley F. Reed and Felix Frankfurter concurred in the majority opinion. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes took no part in the case. Justices Hugo L. Black and Frank Murphy concurred in a dissenting opinion by Justice William O. Douglas, which affirmed the power of congress to regulate primary elections but objected to the procedure invoked in the case decided today.

The majority opinion overruled a federal District court and sustained the indictment of five New Orleans election commissioners, who were accused of altering and falsely counting votes cast in the Democratic primary for the Second Louisiana congressional district last Sept. 10.

The defendants, Patrick B. Classic, John A. Morris, Bernard W. Yeager Jr., William Schumacher, and J. J. Feddermann, were charged with depriving citizens of rights guaranteed to them by the constitution, in violation of sections 19 and 20 of the criminal code.

Reverses Newberry Ruling.

These sections of the post civil war statute make it a crime, punishable by imprisonment of not more than 10 years and a fine of not more than $5,000, to deprive any inhabitant of any state of rights, privileges, and immunities guaranteed by the constitution and laws of the United States.

The indictment charges that the defendants infringed the right of voters to have their ballots counted as cast and the right of candidates to have votes in favor of their nomination counted as cast.

The District court sustained a demurrer on the strength of the Supreme court's 5 to 4 decision in the Newberry case in 1921, holding the federal corrupt practices act unconstitutional as applied to senatorial primary elections.

Justice Stone's opinion, which specifically over-ruled the Newberry case, said:

"In fact, as alleged in the indictment, the practical operation of the primary in Louisiana is and has been since the primary election was established in 1900 to secure the election of the Democratic nominee for the second congressional district of Louisiana.

"Interference with the right to vote in the congressional primary in the second district for the choice of Democratic candidate for congress is thus as a matter of law and in fact an interference with the effective choice of the voters at the only stage of the election procedure when their choice is of significance, since it is at the only stage when such interference could have any practical effect on the ultimate result, the choice of the congressman to represent the district.

Called Integral in Choice.

"The primary in Louisiana is an integral part of the procedure for the popular choice of congressman. The right of qualified voters to vote at the congressional primary in Louisiana and to have their ballots counted is thus the right to participate in that choice."

Obviously, the opinion states, the constitutional right of the electors to choose members of congress includes "the right of qualified voters within a state to cast their ballots and have them counted at congressional elections."

"Unless the constitutional protection of the integrity of elections extends to primary elections," the opinion adds, "congress is left powerless to effect the constitutional purpose, and the popular choice of representatives is stripped of its constitutional protection save only as congress, by taking over the control of state elections, may exclude from them the influence of the state primaries.

"Such an expedient would end that state autonomy with respect to elections which the constitution contemplated that congress should be free to leave undisturbed, subject only to such minimum regulation as it should find necessary to insure the freedom and integrity of the choice."

SUPREME COURT REFUSES BOOST IN SEAWAY FLOW

Denies Illinois Appeal for More Water.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—The petition of Illinois for permission to increase the diversion of water from Lake Michigan into the Illinois waterway, on the ground that conditions at Joliet and Lockport constitute a menace to health, was dismissed today by the United States Supreme court.

A brief order noted the denial of the petition, assessed costs of the proceeding against Illinois, overruled all exceptions to the report of Special Master Monte M. Lemann, and confirmed the report. Justice Frank Murphy took no part in the case and Justice Hugo L. Black dissented.

State Asks Increase.

The latest phase of long controverted sanitary district legislation was begun in January, 1940, when Illinois sought permission to increase the Lake Michigan diversion from 1,500 cubic feet per second, plus domestic pumpage, as allowed by the Supreme court's decree of April 21, 1930, to 5,000 cubic feet per second in addition to domestic pumpage. The petition later was modified to request a graduated and somewhat smaller increase from April to October, inclusive, in 1941 and 1942.

The report of the special master held that the condition of the waterway by reason of the introduction of untreated sewage creates in the summer months "a nuisance thru offensive odors at Joliet and Lockport, but does not present a menace to health." The report also found that the offensive condition could be eliminated by certain remedial measures available to Illinois, including the dredging of Brandon Road pool to remove old accumulations of sludge.

Doubts Health Menace.

The report further noted that one of the years for which relief was sought, 1940, has passed without serious consequences to the health of the people of Joliet and Lockport.

"If relief is denied for the years 1941 and 1942," it added, "the authorities of the sanitary district may be spurred to increased efforts in the treatment of Chicago sewage.

Illinois excepted to the master's findng that the untreated sewage constitutes only a nuisance and not a menace to health. This conclusion was erroneous, Illinois contended.

COURT UPHOLDS STATE STATUTES AIMED AT ASCAP

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—The Supreme court held today, in litigation involving the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers [ASCAP], that a state has the power to bar combinations intended to fix prices. Justice Black delivered unanimous opinions, applying specifically to legislation passed by Nebraska and Florida which was challenged by ASCAP.

Justice Black dismissed attacks on the statutes by ASCAP, holding that the state courts had not passed on many of the detailed provisions of the legislation and that hence the Supreme court should not act on them at this time.

The decision also upheld another Florida statute requiring registration with the state controler of a list of all music copyrights and imposing a 3 per cent tax on gross license fees.

The controversy over the legislation grew out of the attempt by ASCAP to control prices charged for public playing of music produced by members of the organization.

HAILED A GREAT BOON TO EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IN AMERICA!

Heaven-Sent to Those in Every Walk of Life Who Now Are Paying the Penalty in "Nerves" and Lack of Vitality Due to Deficiency in the Vitamins and Minerals It So Richly Contains

NO OTHER BREAD IN THE WORLD BRINGS YOU IN THIS AMAZING WAY VITAMINS WITH A TASTE—BECAUSE ONLY STAFF IS MADE UNDER THE EARLE PATENTED PROCESS

Continental Baking Co., Inc.

At Last! Sun-Ripened Wheat's True, Good Flavor—Thanks to the Earle Patented Process

Read this Amazing Story:—How a Mining Engineer's Curiosity Led to the Invention that Made Possible this Great New Benefit to Your Family!

HERE now is that utterly new and revolutionary kind of bread you have heard so much about. Different from any bread ever before known, many scientists believe it may influence profoundly the lives of millions. Because of its power to improve their physical and mental processes of life amazingly.

For this new bread brings the treasure-trove of life-giving elements, the rich hoard of vitamins and minerals with all the wealth of flavor Mother Nature amassed in each bursting grain of sun-ripened wheat. And, of the utmost importance, none of the bad outer, bitter, and indigestible, splintery "skin"!

Better Than Ordinary White
Better Than "Whole Wheat"

Never before have you tasted bread like this. Here's aroma to make your mouth water—as fresh as the sight of fields of wind-rippled, sun-splashed wheat. Here's taste to delight you—even better than bread fresh-baked from wheat ground at the old mill on the creek. And a texture to melt in your mouth—as delicate and lacy and velvety of crumb as that of a blue-ribbon winning loaf at the State Fair.

That wheat can be one of man's finest natural foods—there is no question. But until now it has never been possible to give you ALL the rich benefits of wheat in a bread all people would eat. Or, fit for all people to eat!

A Mining Engineer
Solves The Problem

Despite fortunes spent, no miller ever found, without losing precious vitamins and minerals, how to get rid of wheat's bad outer, bitter, and indigestible, splintery "skin." Then came this epochal and far-reaching discovery.

In the "flotation" process, which separates the dross from the gold of the hills, Theodore Earle, mining engineer and inventive genius, at last found the clue toward separating the bad from the gold of the plains.

First, scientists of a leading university set out to prove the new health values; milling and baking experts of the Continental Baking Company spent 6 months perfecting formulae; over $340,000 for new facilities. Then, came the development of Staff—a new bread better for health and flavor!

A Boon In Better Health,
Better Nerves, Renewed Vitality

In England, to help combat the terrible nerve strain of blackout horror and correct the deficiencies of rationed food, all bread has been fortified artificially with Vitamin B_1. Over here, the strain increases daily. Food is not rationed, but millions of people in all walks of life, authorities on nutrition say, fail to get enough Vitamin B_1 alone for their best physical and mental health and vigor.

Actually, millions of people who now believe it their lot to feel "jittery," easily fagged out, may again experience the happiness of renewed vitality a more adequate diet provides.

Let Staff remain in the toaster about 50% longer than white bread for perfect toast.

No Other Bread
In The World Like Staff

The only bread made under the Earle patents, you can tell Staff is a natural wheat bread by its golden wheat color. For Staff contains 4 times more natural Vitamin B_1; twice the natural minerals; and more protein than in many ordinary white breads.

Hence, for better meals, better health, better spirits, you are urged to serve Staff in your home. Note the amazing difference the good flavor of sun-ripened wheat makes. Get fresh Staff today—and "Eat Staff For Life." Serve it every day and take comfort in the knowledge that you have left no stone unturned to give your family this wonderful opportunity for better well-being that Staff affords.

Miss Mary Louise Corley's Engagement Being Announced

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Corley yesterday at their home in Lake Shore drive was an unusually gay and festive occasion, for it not only marked the 21st birthday of their only child, attractive Mary Louise, but it was an engagement announcement party as well. Miss Corley's engagement to Joseph C. Sampsell is being announced formally this morning by her parents.

Miss Corley was educated at the Girls' Latin school, the Fermata school in Aiken, S. C., and Bennington college. She made her debut during the Christmas holidays in 1938. Her fiancé, one of four sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Marshall E. Sampsell of Highland Park, went to the North Shore Country Day school and Hill school. No definite date for the wedding has been set, for Miss Corley's and Mr. Sampsell's plans are somewhat dependent upon the army's plans for him, as is the case with so many young couples these days.

Giving Shower Tomorrow for Miss Louise Blossom.

Miss Mary Trumbull and Mrs. Way Thompson are giving a luncheon and kitchen shower tomorrow at Mrs. Thompson's home in Palatine for Miss Louise Blossom, who is to be a bride early this summer. Miss Blossom is engaged to be married to Ensign J. Dunham Reilly, who has been stationed in Honolulu. His ship is en route to the United States now, so he and Miss Blossom hope to be able to make wedding plans next month.

Mrs. Eugene Swigart is giving a luncheon and linen shower on Thursday for Miss Althea Cunningham, who is to be married on June 12 to William B. Johnson. Mrs. Henri P. Junod and Edward P. Russell II. have given cocktail parties for Miss Cunningham and her fiancé, and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Curtis and Mrs. Snelling Robinson are planning a party for them when Mr. Johnson and his bride return from a wedding trip west.

Organ Added to Kopp Ensemble to Good Effect

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Leo Kopp and the Illinois Symphonic ensemble took advantage of Kimball hall's new organ to include two of the Handel organ concertos on last night's program.

It is uncanny the way Handel's grandeur of mind shines thru even when he is dealing with comparatively minor matters. But then, a really great man can say "I'll try the beans today" and given even such a phrase some suggestion of his own loftiness. Not that the content of the Handel concertos is on such a lowly level as this. These pieces are minor only when compared with such music as their own creator's greatest products.

The soloist, Robert Kee, and the ensemble coöperated splendidly to reveal the purity and flow of the concertos and to preserve their very great dignity.

Vying with the Handel in interest was a warmly melodious chamber symphony of Wolf-Ferrari. It is an early work—earlier than either "The Secret of Suzanne" or "The Jewels of the Madonna." In its every turn it has a southern graciousness.

The principal problems it offers have to do with rhythmic flow and sustained melodic line. These Mr. Kopp and the ensemble solved triumphantly. The piece fairly sang—which is obviously what its composer intended it to do. Marion Hall was called in for the piano part.

The puzzled concertgoers who have puzzled over the curious opus number of Beethoven's "Farewell" sonata—81a—had the satisfaction of hearing Opus 81b, a sextet for two horns and strings. The horns were played by Charles Jackson and Charles Misare.

Two pieces for string orchestra by Shostakovich, bearing the opus number 11 [which should put them in the period 1925-'26], were presented in such a way as to point up their different characters cleverly. The first was almost lyrical, the second exuberant and full of hard youthful laughter.

The program also held the Bach chorale-prelude, "O Man, Bewail Thy Grievous Sin," in the Reger arrangement. It was played expressively, tho with not quite the purity and austerity that the best Lutheran musical tradition demands.

Anti-Cruelty Society Gives Dinner for Its Retiring President

John J. Roberts, retiring president of the Anti-Cruelty society, received the good wishes of more than 100 members and friends of the society at a farewell dinner last night in the Chicago Bar association dining room at 26 South La Salle street.

Mr. Roberts has been a supporter of the society for 25 years, a director for much of that time, and president since 1933. He is also retiring from his office as treasurer of the Roberts & Schaeffer Construction company.

The dinner was the occasion for presenting merit award certificates to Arthur Colia, 21, kennel master at the society's shelter at 157 West Grand avenue, and to Bill Hane, 38, helper in the shelter clinic. The awards were in recognition of their work in rescuing a German shepherd dog from a quarry on 27th street a week ago Saturday. Pictures in THE TRIBUNE brought the owner, Peter Oleck, to the shelter to claim his pet.

Blames Church for Failure in Training Youth

St. Louis, Mo., May 26 (AP).—Church leaders were criticized by a Presbyterian educator today for "leaning on the wishing gate" while totalitarianism was getting a foothold.

"Communism, Naziism, and Fascism would have been snuffed out long ago," declared the Rev. Paul C. Payne of Philadelphia, "if the leaders of those movements had been as listless as the leaders of the Christian church have been in the matter of training and guiding youth."

Dr. Payne, who is general secretary of the board of Christian education of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, addressed the 153d general assembly of the church. He warned against failure "to see that recruits obtained thru the fervor of revivals were rooted and grounded in the faith."

During the last 20 years more than 1,770,000 have joined the Presbyterian church, while over 1,287,000 have been placed on the suspended roll, Dr. Payne said. Then he added:

"Not only have we failed to provide Christian training for converts, but the church has never had an impressive program of Christian training for its youth.

"I say the church, and that includes Roman Catholic as well as Protestant. There has never been a time in Christian history when the church has thrown itself into the training of its youth with a zeal and passion and sacrifice that can begin to compare with that of the communists, the Fascists, or the Nazis for their own youth programs."

Religious Study Plan Approved by Church Federation

The Chicago Church federation yesterday approved a plan under which high school pupils would be released from schools for certain periods to receive religious instruction in churches and synagogues. The plan, proposed by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, has not yet been approved by the board of education.

The federation's approval commits only the Protestant churches to the program. An interfaith committee has been set up to carry the plan thru its experimental period and the federation's department of Christian education will coöperate with that committee.

Dr. Howard A. Vernon, president of the federation, yesterday received a letter from the Illinois Council of the Friends of the Public Schools expressing opposition to the plan.

Music Notes

Several additional soloists for the 1941 Ravinia festival were announced yesterday at the annual Ravinia Festival association luncheon in the Casino club. At the suggestion of Sir Thomas Beecham, first of the summer's guest conductors, Rudolph Firkursny, Czech pianist, has been engaged to play Antonin Dvorak's piano concerto on July 5. Altho the concerto was composed in 1876, it is not well known, and no record is to be found of a previous Chicago performance.

Rene Leroy, noted French flutist, will play a Mozart flute concerto with Sir Thomas Beecham and the Chicago Symphony orchestra on July 12. In the following week, on a date not yet announced, Gitta Gradova, Chicago pianist, will appear with the orchestra under the direction of Nicolai Malko. Soloists previously announced are Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, and Helen Traubel, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Clubs to Enroll 40,000,000 in Defense Drive

Atlantic City, N. J., May 26 (AP).—The General Federation of Women's Clubs created today a new department designed to organize "at least 40 million American women" into a national defense campaign.

This new department was set up by the federation's committee, with instructions to organize "every group of women in every county of the United States."

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, president of the federation, said the proposed women's defense organization would be "the mightiest ever witnessed anywhere in the world," and that "when it begins to function Hitler won't dare attack us."

Every women's organization in the country, would be enlisted, Mrs. Whitehurst said, adding that "this federation will in no way attempt to dominate it."

County, state and national coördinators would be elected.

SYNOPSIS.

Carol McFee, whose father is about to lose his ranch to Tate Wallace, because of a forged deed, writes to Dave Coyle, notorious outlaw, asking for help. Wallace, blackmailing Sholto because of a murder he knows Sholto committed, is making him testify he saw McFee sign the deed. Will Usher, crook and enemy of Coyle's, proposes to Coyle that they kidnap Sholto and make Wallace pay ransom. Dave agrees only because he feels it will help McFee, but when he does kidnap Sholto and turns him over to Usher, he finds he has been double-crossed and escapes just in time to prevent Usher turning Dave over to the police to get the reward offered for him. McFee is arrested for Sholto's kidnaping and possible murder, but with Dave's aid, he escapes, rescues Sholto from Usher and he and Dave bring Sholto back to the town jail. But just as they reach the jail, Sholto is shot and killed. McFee is arrested for Sholto's murder but Dave escapes. He saw some one on a roof shoot Sholto and feels that it must have been either Sheriff Beal, Deputy Ernie See, Lacey Thornton, McFee's disgruntled partner, or Senator Maitland, McFee's lawyer, as they were the only ones besides himself and McFee who knew they were bringing Sholto to town. Dave has good proof Ernie did not do the killing. With his usual bravado, Dave appears in Ernie's room and tells him about the man on the roof and the persons he feels are the only possible guilty ones. In the meantime, Wallace has secretly offered Usher $25,000 to kill Dave. Dave persuades Ernie to help him steal the forged deed and lay a trap for the murderer. Dave hides in the McFee ranch house as Wallace takes possession.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.
LOCKED CHEST.

Suddenly aware that the iron box was heavy, Wallace walked over to the dresser and grabbed the handle of a drawer and pulled. It didn't budge. He set the box on top and tried both hands. Still, the drawer wouldn't budge. He kicked it savagely, strode out into the hall and bawled, "Get that chest up here!"

There was no answer. Marty and Will were on the roof. Swearing, Wallace picked up the box and went downstairs.

The attic, which Marty and Will had searched, was small and empty. A short ladder rose to the trapdoor in the roof. Will went up, lifted the door, looked at the roof, then stepped down.

Marty was watching him, chewing deliberately and delicately on a cud of tobacco. When Will stepped down off the ladder, Marty said: "I ain't had a chance to talk with you alone since you joined up."

"That's right," Will said, wondering what was coming. He didn't like the tough set to Marty's jaw.

"What are you doin' here?" Marty asked.

Will said blandly, "Didn't Tate tell you?"

"So it's 'Tate' now," Marty mocked. "No, he didn't tell me."

"You better ask him."

"I'm askin' you," Marty said slowly, quiet menace in his voice. "I pay off this crew, and so far I ain't had any instructions to pay you off. You look like a joker to me, mister."

Will smiled contemptuously, and hooked his thumbs in his belt. "Cord," he drawled, "you're dirty, and you're dumb. Maybe Wallace hired me so he'd have some one to talk to besides an ape like you."

Marty flushed and straightened up. "Did he hire you, tho?"

Will grinned faintly. "I told you to ask him—or are you afraid you'll get your teeth knocked down your throat?" He paused, amusement in his eyes, as he watched Marty. Then he said, "Before you decide to put a slug in my back, tho, you better make sure what it'll get you."

Marty spat without turning his head. The tobacco plopped on Will's boots, but he pretended not to notice it. "Just remember one thing," Marty drawled. "I'm roddin' this spread—both spreads. Tomorrow, I aim to have Wallace tell you that."

"Afraid of your job?" Will taunted.

"No, but I reckon you better be afraid of it," Marty said. He turned and went down to the second floor. It was a warning and plain enough, and Will smiled faintly at Marty's back. It was apparent that he wasn't liked here, only tolerated, because Wallace had passed out the word. That was all he wanted, all he needed.

Before the cook called supper, the house was overrun with the crew. At first they approached it gingerly, but after supper a poker game started in the living room. Soon, there were cigaret butts burning the rugs. Some one had tipped his chair back into a glass-covered bookcase. A vase served as a spittoon, but soon it was abandoned entirely. Bedrolls were thrown on the bedroom floor, riders rested on the beds with their spurs on, rifles were stacked on the hall hatrack, and there was a familiar smell of unwashed bodies, horses, leather, whiskey and tobacco smoke. Wallace took over the dining room for his office, and Bib M had changed hands.

Along toward midnight, the crew broke up, and some of the riders drifted off to bed. The droning voices of the two men on watch out by the front tie-rail was interrupted by the curses of the men playing poker. Wallace still held a hand in the game, and Will Usher was playing, too. The upper story had settled into quiet.

It was then that the heavy dresser in Wallace's room moved out from the wall and Dave crawled stiffly from where he had been hiding all day. The noise Lily Sholto had heard that morning had been Dave carefully kicking out the bottoms of the dresser drawers and the back of the dresser. One stick, nailed to the back of the front of all the drawers, insured their being kept closed. Its weight and size insured against its being moved. And in that space, Dave had waited, listening, trying to pick up something of what was happening since morning.

He stretched, flexing his muscles, and then went to the open door and looked out in the hall. All the other doors were closed, so the crew could sleep. Softly, then, Dave started down the stairs, wondering if Ernie had failed him. The stairs were carpeted, and he made no noise. The card game went on, with desultory talk interrupting the silence. Dave listened until he distinguished Will Usher's voice, and Tate Wallace's.

Afterwards, he moved softly down the dark hall to the door that let onto the kitchen. The door was shut. Dave opened it, then softly struck a match and looked down the hall. The game was going on without interruption. Then Dave set about his business.

When the door was closed, there was a space on the jamb to which the hinges were fastened that was hidden. When it was opened, this space was suddenly revealed, as when a book is opened. And in this space, just below the hinge, was firmly written in pencil in Ernie's handwriting: "It's in a locked iron box 6x9 Will."

Dave blew out the match and pondered. An iron box, 6 inches by 9 inches, contained the deed. The box could be anywhere, buried or hidden, but it was Dave's guess that it was not. He had heard Wallace come in the room where he was hidden, try the dresser drawer, then bawl, "Get that chest up here." It seemed reasonable enough that the iron box was in the chest. Anyway, he was sure of one thing. Two men, directed by Wallace, had delivered something heavy into Wallace's room that evening. Wallace had ordered them out, then had deposited something in the chest.

Dave softly made his way back to the stairs. Still, from the door into the living room the talk of the card players drifted out. He went back into Wallace's room, closed the door softly, and struck a match. There was Wallace's saddle thrown on the floor against the wall, and beside it a stout chest. The match died, and Dave struck another and went over to look at the chest. It was made of oak, iron-bound, and its lock was a heavy padlock. Dave's heart sank as he saw it. When the match died, he tried to lift one end of the chest. He could move it, but it was heavy.

He sat down on it and thought a moment. If he got the chest to the window and dropped it, the noise it made would wake the dead. Even then, the chest wouldn't break and open. That was out. He couldn't burn it, because it would take half the night, and he would be discovered. That was out, too. There was only one thing left, and that was to shoot the padlock off. That would bring the whole swarm of them down on his neck. Wallace's crew, Ernie had said, numbered over a dozen. They would cut him to doll rags before he got to the stairs. For the stairs was the only way out. For, if he went out the window, he would leave unfinished a little piece of business that he was determined to carry out, a piece of business that, if it went right, would straighten accounts with Will Usher for good and all.

For a long moment he sat there in the dark, his face bleak and bitter. For the first time in his life, he took into account the possibility of being killed. He wasn't afraid; he just wanted to live to see this thing settled. And then the bitterness passed, and he knew what he was going to do.

His chances would improve a dozen fold if he could keep some of Wallace's men out of the fight, and he thought he could. Remembering Wallace's saddle thrown on the floor, he knelt down and fumbled around. Yes, there was his rope. Dave untied it, and took it with him to the door again, and glanced out in the hallway. Everything was quiet. A raw snore from one of the rooms across the hall melted in with the slow talk from the card game below.

Dave went into the hall and passed the closed door across the way from Wallace's room. The other two bedroom doors faced each other across the hall. Dave looked at them and noticed that they swung in. The remaining door was the half glassed one that opened onto the gallery. It swung into the hall, he noticed. That was a weakness, but he' have to count on the sleepy thickness of these men and their unfamiliarity with the house.

2 Mistakes Wives So Often Make

Because of inward shyness or ignorance, many married women make needless mistakes—risk health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use over-strong solutions of acids which can burn or scar delicate tissues. Today risks are needless. For science has given womankind Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Is Your Child Naughty or Misunderstood?

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

We are so likely to say "You are a naughty boy," or "You are a naughty girl," when a little child does something of which we, as adults, disapprove, that we overlook the fact that often the thing we are talking about is not the fault of our child. We are the ones who should be alert to prevent the occurrence.

A little child must always be occupied. He never can stand or sit and just wait for adults to attend to their own affairs. He'll get into what we consider mischief every time unless we see to it that things he mustn't touch are out of his reach, and things he can have are available for his amusement. A normal child is naturally inquisitive, interested and invariably eager to try his hand at anything he sees his grownups do. It doesn't follow that because of these characteristics he is deliberately naughty.

Naughty? I say, "No!" Children have to learn "what's what" and "how's how," but they don't learn it all in a minute. However, allow little boys and girls to be active and occupied in a healthful, peaceful, loving atmosphere and they are "good," happy as the day is long. Just think a moment. Did you ever see a happy child really naughty?

Treat your little child as an individual with thoughts, feelings and reactions similar to your own. Watch each new development closely, treat it as normal growth, and try your best to meet each issue with intelligent direction.

"How to Gain Obedience Without Punishment" is the name of a booklet sent out on request. Send a self-addressed, large, stamped envelope to Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Contrasts.

Mme. Salvatore Dali, wife of the painter whose work is on exhibit at the Arts club, recently went to Snedin's Landing, not far from New York City, to a luncheon party at the home of a young pianist. He met them, to show them the way to his home in the woods, and on the way saw a man selling fish.

"Let's buy some and cook them for luncheon," he said.

The guests' hearts fell as they suspected from his tone there would be no luncheon until they cooked it, and they were already hungry. Arrived at his studio cottage, Mme. Dali and another guest went into the kitchen and, finding facilities and supplies completely inadequate, pooled what funds they had with them, drove into the village, and bought $9 worth of hamburgers, western sandwiches, doughnuts, and whatever else they could find. These they brought back and spread out on the table and the party had luncheon.

"Now," said the host, "we will plant my 12 apple trees."

The guests fell to, dug holes, and planted the trees, Mme. Dali the most efficient and untiring of the workers. A member of the party met her at luncheon a few days later in one of New York's most fashionable restaurants. Mme. Dali complained about the food and the service. And they smiled at one another, remembering their recent luncheon together.

Soldier's Luck.

A little mishap that befell a draftee at Camp Forrest, Tenn., has made the rounds of the camp and is relayed by Lieut. Thomas L. Brejcha of the 131st infantry: The budding soldier decided to take a drink of water from his canteen just as his squad started to march forward. He stumbled and fell, with his canteen raised to his mouth. The rifle slung over his shoulder hit him on the head, the man behind him stepped on his hand, and the canteen hit him in the teeth. When he pulled himself to his feet the sergeant gave him a dressing down. And the water from his canteen spilled, so he didn't even get the drink.

Incidental Info.

The menu at one of the better hostelries of the city lists "imported" Liederkranz cheese. But there is no such thing, according to Cheese Expert John Weigel. Liederkranz is strictly an American cheese—according to Weigel. It was first made at Monroe, N. Y., in 1893, and is supposed to have been developed by a German-American cheese maker named Emil Frey. It was named for a singing society, as noted for epicurean tastes as for singing, that was touring New York at that time. All real Liederkranz is now made at Van Wert, O. . . . Chicago Author Louis Zara has a short story in the June Coronet, Rendezvous with Death.

Good bidding is not a simple matter of announcing high card and distributional values to partner. It also involves some highly complex and subtle implications and inferences. Note the very unusual, but completely logical, maneuvering of East in today's hand. It was not his fault that his partner "missed the point" and let the opponents off the hook.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Double	Pass	Pass
2 diamonds	Double	2 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

A great many readers [the majority, I fear] will object violently to my statement that East's bidding was extremely shrewd. They will point with derision to the fact that East elected to play against one heart doubled, but then, "with amazing inconsistency," failed to double two hearts!

Actually, East's pass to two hearts was completely consistent with his previous decision. Let us consider:

When the double of one heart reached East, he was faced with a difficult decision. His hearts were pitifully weak, hence, academically speaking, he had no right to pass and thereby convert West's double from the take-out to the penalty status. However, East had strength in spades and minor honors in diamonds and clubs; these, with his four card length in the doubled bid, made him optimistic about the defensive possibilities. And, of course, the vulnerability conditions made a pass an attractive gamble.

However, after South had rescued himself at two diamonds, had been doubled by West and taken back to hearts by North, it was no longer necessary for East to gamble. His previous pass had informed West that he [East] was anxious to play against a low heart contract. Why double, and run the risk that North would turn up with good heart support and a singleton diamond, thereby making a cross-ruff possible? After East's penalty pass to the double of one heart, his pass to two hearts conveyed this clear message to West: "If your holding is such that you can tell, assuming heart length in my hand, that dummy cannot show up with four or five hearts, for heaven's sake double this two heart bid!"

Obviously West, with the Q-10 of hearts, should not have had the fear that was natural to East, hence should have doubled two hearts. On the correct opening lead of the heart queen [duly made by West], and subsequent heart leads to prevent more than one diamond ruff, declarer was held to five tricks. The three trick penalty, however, gave East-West only 300 points instead of the 800 which should have been theirs.

Tomorrow's Hand.

North, dealer.

Men Give O. K. to Dark, Sheer Chiffon Hose

BY REA SEEGER.

Not since the excitement over the wasp waist corsets has there been so much dither and fuss pro and con about something revolutionizing—the sheer, dull black and dark hosiery. This dark wave sweeps in from the east, where it is said all the smartest ladies wear them all day long.

First introduced to wear with dull black sophisticated town clothes, the hosiery staged a near riot, but captured the approval of many, and here we have them!

If you ever listened to some old beau wax poetic over the provocative charm and beauty of lovely legs and ankles under dull black filmy chiffon you have had some sort of a hint of the effect these sheer chiffons have on our masculine public. We heard more lyrical comments the last few days about sooty black shapely ankles than we've heard in five years.

At first you'll have difficulties recognizing your own "understandings." Looking down on a pair of black ankles causes a shock that takes your breath away, but after the initial tryout you'll no longer wonder why the men like them so well. Nothing looks quite so worldly, quite so mysterious or so sleekly sophisticated as these filmy black chiffons. They provide the same allure as the shadow brims of thin black summer hats, and every one knows the sternest bachelor starts to melt when he sees a lovely face half hidden under a shadowy black brim. They even admit it.

So if you crave a new adventure, want something different, if you're satiated with neutral tints and loathe those few new very pale tints that look almost white after the first dunking, try the latest whim of fashionable ladies, the smooth, flawless textured, sooty black chiffon hosiery. Acquire the charm of a femme fatale capable of dictating peace terms to the most belligerent man you know!

Robert A. Gardner New President of Community Fund

Robert A. Gardner, investment banker, twice national amateur golf champion, and civic leader, was elected president of the Community Fund of Chicago at the organization's annual meeting in the Palmer House yesterday. Gardner succeeds George A. Ranney, chairman of the People's Gas Light and Coke company.

Charles C. Kerwin, a member of Halsey Stuart & Co. and president of the Catholic Charities of Chicago, was elected one of the vice presidents. Others, all reëlected, are: Brig. Gen. R. E. Wood, James H. Douglas Jr., Clifford W. Barnes, Lester N. Selig, and Victor A. Olander. Laurence B. Robbins was reëlected treasurer, and Pierce Atwater reëlected executive secretary.

Six new directors were chosen—Champ Carry, Charles F. Clarke, Harriet McLaughlan, Mr. Ranney, retiring president, Harold H. Swift, and Merle J. Trees.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

You're mistaken if you think men don't notice your handbag and the confusion therein. We discovered recently, taking a little survey of our own, that men react violently to discussion of the whole subject. They feel about cluttered bags with dirty linings the way they feel about crooked stocking seams and greasy hair and such affectations as purple lipstick. In other words, they sizzle about 'em.

If you take this as a word to the wise you'll look into the matter of the lovely bags some of the beauty houses are making. Being fitted, these prevent confusion. Everything you need to keep your face and hair in good order is right in its own little compartment, which means that you have no scrabbling around for lipstick and powder and that bag linings last much longer.

These bags are fashion right, too. There's one new one, just launched this spring, that's a little pet. It's of corded silk faille, neither too large nor too small, beautifully made, with a shiny, gold colored eagle mounted on one corner of the flap. It's in black or blue with a zippy red silk lining, or in red or beige with a navy blue lining.

These bags are equipped with change purse and pocket comb, space for cigarets and handkerchiefs, and a beautiful compact and lipstick. The compact is one of those roomy, well executed vanities for loose powder, fitted with a good puff and a good mirror.

Looking at Hollywood By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., May 26.—King Vidor replaces Victor Fleming on "The Yearling," which Metro has been shooting in color in Florida. One of the difficulties has been that Fleming, a man of intense nervous energy, can't stand working with animals. Waiting around for a beast to do the right thing drives him nuts. . . . Betty Grable, actor's agent: She has got her standin, Bobby Coleman, two jobs in the last month. She had a bit in "Dance Hall" and now will be a siren in "A Yank in the RAF"—in which her job will be to take T. Power away from Betty. Miss Coleman was a cashier in the 20th Century-Fox café until Miss Grable signed her on. . . . The one outside film Preston Sturges can make under his Paramount contract will be shot at 20th Century. . . . Ellen Drew, who's soon to marry Scripter Sy Bartlett, gets a star's rôle in Brian Donlevy's "The Remarkable Andrew." . . . D. Lamour, the sarong girl, had 70 pounds of excess baggage on her return flight from New York—all new clothes.

Note on the state of el oh vee ee in this locality: Richard Arlen operates a thriving airport, keeps one pilot on duty all night in case of a hurry call from drunks who want to fly to Las Vegas or Phoenix. Taking too-fried people aboard a ship isn't done, for they might become troublesome in the air. So, when such a pair of customers shows up, it is gently suggested that they might become airsick, and they'd better take a simple preventive. The medicine is just a harmless sleeping tablet. The customers come aboard, fall right asleep, and wake up fresh as daisies when they arrive in Las Vegas or Phoenix. But the fascinating thing is that many of them, after a good nap, decide they don't want to get married after all, and tell the skipper to take them right back home. In the last little while there have been five such cases, and they interest Arlen so much that he, with Bill Pine and Bill Thomas, is going to make a movie about them.

Hollywood is using two real ships for films at the moment. Frank Lloyd has a reproduction of J. J. Astor's fur boat at Catalina for shooting "I, James Lewis," and C. D. De Mille has a 40 ton fishing schooner, Union, in a tank at Paramount for "Reap the Wild Wind." The schooner was hauled 30 miles inland by two trucks. . . . Greta Garbo's picture is a long way from production. Story trouble. . . . Newest actors-turned-landlord are Irene Hervey and her husband, Allan Jones. They're putting up a four story office building in Beverly Hills, to be known as the Jones building.

They're throwing a party at Harry Carey's ranch on June 14, the 33d anniversary of his film debut. In 1908 he made four westerns on Staten Island. When the check bounced on his fourth picture he became a producer himself—and went broke. D. W. Griffith brought him to California in 1910 for "The Sheriff's Baby." Carey's newest picture is "The Shepherd of the Hills."

Help the Man Financially, and Lose Him!

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

Again, we have the tale of the woman who pay and loses!

How we wish women would learn that the shortest route to romance killings is to undermine the masculine ego by either contributing money directly to him, or making his end of the entertainment too easy for him.

Aside from the fact that the man is a cad to ask for or accept money from a woman, it is disputable psychology that dictates complete contempt for the individual who puts a man in the position of obligation.

Our tale today is that of a woman of 31 who, for five years, has been helping her so-called suitor financially. And, as ever follows, now that the fellow has a good job, he wants to be off with the old flame and take on a new one. And that's what they do! Why? They want to restore that forgotten sense of importance, of self-respect. They want to rebuild their ego. You may call them cads and rotters and selfish beasts, but basically, their eventual neglect of their cash provider is simply that they want to branch forth in a new character rôle.

Women ought to recognize the fact. They'd save themselves no end of disillusion, of embarrassment and unhappiness. It's an entirely different thing, understand, when a pair is married to help in the event the woman is the bigger and better earner. Even here it's a rare man who can accept help without a terrific shrinking of ego and self-respect. That's why, so often, he becomes a difficult husband, with ingratitude read into motives that are really founded on resentment at being in the unpleasant position.

Universal day—Anxious thoughts may fill your mind, but keep calm.

June—Those in a seven year will find that June is far from being a vacation month. They should stick to the job and get everything shipshape so they can have a good time in July when they have a better chance of being free from duties. They must plug along the old routine. It would be best to think a little about saving—even if it is only to spend in the month of July. This whole year is not one of complete absence of the disciplining effect of obligations, so, altho you can get a little relief here and there, the year as a whole suggests that you keep pretty much to the sober facts. This would be a good period in which to concentrate on some study.

BULLA'S 147 IS LOW AMONG U. S. OPEN QUALIFIERS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

John Bulla, the big North Carolinian, who is the flyingest man in golf, yesterday flew low and swift over the No. 1 and No. 3 courses of the Medinah Country club to lead the field in the Chicago qualifying rounds for the National Open tournament with a 36 hole total of 147.

Marshall Springer.

In a few days, John will tuck that 147 into his new four passenger Fairchild plane, wing it down to the ancestral manse at Greensboro, N. C., and then take off for the Open itself, to be decided at the Colonial club in Fort Worth, Tex., on June 5, 6, and 7.

Bulla made a happy landing on the eighteenth green of Medinah's No. 1 course with a 72, two over par. He then adjourned for his final eighteen hole flight over the No. 3 layout and proceeded to strafe it with a 75, four over par, but highly creditable in view of the fact that No. 3 was the scene of several crackups and forced landings during the day.

He's a Regular.

Johnny, one of the game's more temperamental practitioners, had cause to rejoice. Four years ago he was second in the local trials on these same Medinah courses. Two years back, he squeezed into the national cast as the fourth and last alternate from Medinah. That would be the same year in which he finished second in the British open. And in his alternate's rôle in the American open that season at Philadelphia, he caused considerable to do by leading at 54 holes.

Twelve places in the tournament proper were the targets at which a field of 100 starters aimed yesterday. Following Bulla was a pair of 150 shooters, including the veteran Bill Mehlhorn of the Foster Range, and Ernie Harrison, former Oak Park assistant, who still registers from Chicago and who currently holds the Illinois PGA championship. Bill had a 74 to pace the morning field over No. 3 and then came back in the afternoon for a 76 on No. 1. The lanky Harrison put together a 72 on No. 1 and a 78 on No. 3.

Three Have 153.

Tied at 152 were Denny Shute, the former British open and National PGA champion, who now receives his mail here, and Marshall [Moe] Springer, the voluble Evergreen youth, who learned the game's ABC's on the public links and who has held the Chicago district junior and Cook county amateur championships. Joining Denny and Moe at 152 was Jim Milward, former Madison, Wis., amateur star, who has turned professional.

The 153 bracket produced some of the most interesting developments of the day. For one there was Abe Espinosa, one time Medinah pro, who is now stationed at Decatur, Ill. Abe started out with a sorry 80 on No. 3, then whipped around the front nine of No. 1 in a magnificent 30, four under par. He holed out a 2 iron on the 387 yard 8th. This prosperity must have affected the little man's game, for coming home he required a 43 for a 73.

Espinosa in Tie.

Deadlocked with Espinosa was another foursome. Most important of these was the brilliant Harry Cooper, twice a runnerup for the championship and being forced to work in a

The Law of Love.

You paused for just a moment as you passed
To waken in my breast a dying dream,
To brighten skies by sorrow overcast
With laughter silver as a sunshine beam;
We never met again along life's trail
And yet that simple deed of charity
Left roses in the cheeks that once were pale,
And turned to joy a heart's mute misery.

And when you stand before the great white throne
To render an account on that last day,
Who knows but that the evil you have done
Will, for that kindly deed, be washed away;
And you shall find a place in heaven above

HOSTAK CLEARS WAY FOR FIGHT; FILES CONTRACT

Gets Permission to Use Extra Tape.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Eddie Marino and Nate Druxman, managing directors for Al Hostak, who challenges Chicago's Tony Zale tomorrow night in a 15 round battle for the world's middleweight championship, filed their contract for the bout with the Illinois Athletic commission yesterday. This formality, preceded by the concluding ring exercises of the rivals, completed the requisite technicalities.

Hostak's contract provided that the referee of the championship match must be agreeable to both contestants. This clause was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the commissioners and the managers of both fighters. Chairman Sheldon Clark ruled that the commission would disregard the clause and that any referee appointed must be accepted.

Protect Hostak's Hand.

The commissioners, however, will permit Hostak to use additional pieces of tape on his left hand. This hand was fractured in the first Hostak-Zale fight in Chicago and the injury possibly prevented Hostak from winning a decision in the nontitle fight.

Hostak lost his title last July to Zale by a 13th round knockout. Later he blamed his inactivity because of his fractured hand for the defeat.

According to the contract filed yesterday Zale will receive 35 per cent of the net receipts which will be approximately $63,000 if all the 20,200 seats in the Stadium are sold. Box office men reported yesterday that the advance sale was $40,000. All $1.20 and $2.40 tickets are gone. Those remaining are $3.60 and $6.

No Ruling on Oxygen.

Hostak will receive 20 per cent of the net, but his contract also calls for 20 per cent of the movie and radio rights. Zale will not share in these, it is said. No definite announcement has been made but it was rumored yesterday that a national radio chain would broadcast tomorrow night.

The commission did not rule on use of an oxygen tank in a fighter's corner. Pete Reilly, manager of Solly Krieger, who meets Booker Beckwith, Gary, Ind., lightheavyweight, in a supporting 10 round bout tomorrow night, has said he would bring such equipment to the corner. Duke Calloway, one of Beckwith's managers, who had asked for a ruling on the oxygen tank, later sought similar equipment to checkmate Reilly's maneuver.

Hostak tried on the gloves he will use tomorrow night at the commission offices. Sammy Frager, who manufactured the gloves, reported that Zale previously had been fitted satisfactorily. The gloves now are in possession of the commissioners and will not be produced until the fighters are in the ring tomorrow night.

Zale Finishes Boxing.

Zale finished training yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium with three rounds against Speedy Schaefer. Zale will report at the gymnasium today for light exercise. Hostak will conclude with the same routine at the Catholic Youth gymnasium. Yesterday Hostak breezed thru three rounds with Isaiah Wells, CYO boxer, and in the second round, duplicating Sunday's drill, he loosed a series of stiff punches.

Marino expects to have Hostak on the road early this morning for a short jog before breakfast. Both fighters have been indulging in their sunrise jaunts in Lincoln park, but so far as any one knows their paths have not crossed.

Zale is recognized as middleweight champion by the National Boxing association, which includes the overwhelming majority of the states, but does not include New York, financially the most important to all professional boxers. Billy Soose is middleweight champion in New York. A match with Soose actually is the prize for which Hostak and Zale will be fighting tomorrow night. That bout, particularly if held in New York and to a lesser degree if held in Chicago or Seattle, should produce the largest purse either Zale or Hostak ever has received.

Rigney Greets Browns Today for White Sox

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox will be back on their own Comiskey park grass this afternoon, hopeful of prolonging the splurge started just before they took off for eastern battlefields. They captured their last two home games and then proceeded to pick up nine more while losing five in their travels, a pace good enough for pennant purposes—if it can be maintained.

Seek No. 5 Over Browns.

Of course Mr. James Dykes, the manager, doesn't speak of pennants, but that's merely his way of doing business. Altho quite happy about the way things have been going, he continues to confine his predictions to fourth place or worse, but his views aren't shared by his employés. They actually believe they have something on which to ride to high places. Proof that they may be partly right is that all the other teams in the league look upon them as possible dark horses.

The Sox reopen their home grounds today with the Browns as opponents, and while Fred Haney's boys are able to stir up a fuss at the most unexpected moments, the Dykes entry hasn't had any trouble with them up to date. They've played four games and all four of these decisions are entered on the winning side in the Sox ledger. They hope to make it five today with the help of John Rigney, who will draw Bob Muncrief as his opponent.

Kreevich Still on Sidelines.

Rigney has done very well for himself in a season that was delayed so far as he was concerned by the mysterious germ which nipped almost half the squad during spring training. He wasn't able to make a start until May 7 and was beaten in 11 innings, 4 to 3, by Boston that day. Since then he has whipped the Red Sox, the Yankees, and the Athletics. In the last three games he allowed only five runs.

The hitch in Mike Kreevich's throwing arm may force him to continue his vacation, but this is no cause for alarm. Julius Solters, after a long layoff because of a hand injury, returned to action Sunday in Detroit.

Conn Stops Buddy Knox in 8th Round

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 26 (AP).—Billy Conn, tuning up for his title bout next month with Joe Louis, tonight battered Buddy Knox, Dayton, O., heavyweight, into helplessness before 27,042 fans. The referee awarded Conn a technical knockout victory in the eighth round of the scheduled 15 round bout.

Starting slowly, as usual, Conn gained speed with each round and opened up with a spectacular succession of left hooks in the seventh that staggered his opponent. A series of right hooks to the head dropped Knox for counts of nine, eight, and again for nine as the bell ended the round.

There were scattered boos when it was announced Knox could not come out for the eighth round.

Starting in the fourth Conn began to find the range with his left hook. Billy softened Knox up with several more left hooks in the fifth. In the sixth Knox partly slipped and partly fell to the canvas. He was up before a count could be started, however, and battling away at the bell.

Conn moved up fast in the seventh and threw four left hooks which staggered his opponent, forced him into Conn's corner, and set him up for the final attack. Knox staggered up after the first knockdown and ran into a fresh storm of leather which dropped him, this time for an eight count. Conn battered his foe across the ring near a neutral corner and dropped him again for nine seconds. The bell sounded as Buddy regained his feet.

Huskie Crews Owe an Assist to White Sox

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Ofttimes the background of a university's sport is as interesting as its exploits and this holds true of rowing at the University of Washington, which will put two of its eights on the Lincoln Park lagoon Sunday, June 15, as a feature of the Central States Schoolboy association regatta.

And what possible connection could a one-time trainer of the Chicago White Sox have with Washington's rowing story—a story which started in the first year of the twentieth century?

Hiram Conibear was his name. Conibear was a part time trainer for the White Sox shortly after the American league was formed. Harry Grabiner, Sox vice president, recalled yesterday that this fellow with the odd name also did training work at the University of Chicago.

Conibear Learns From Books.

Rowing was started at Washington in 1900 and Conibear arrived at the Seattle school in 1907 as a trainer. Armed with paper, pencil, a text book on physics and a shelf full of books on different rowing systems he devised a style which revolutionized rowing. However, the famous Conibear stroke was not finally established until 1916. Later he became baseball coach at Washington, and remained as crew coach until the world war when the sport was suspended.

In 1919 Ed Leader became head coach and remained until 1922 when Russell [Rusty] Callow, now Pennsylvania coach, took the post. He was succeeded in 1927 by Al Ulbrickson, who will be in charge of the two Huskie crews which will meet the Wisconsin varsity and jayvees over the mile course on the lagoon.

Tribune Is Co-Sponsor.

Ulbrickson was stroke of the prize winning crew in 1926. He has given Washington some of the finest crews which ever set shells into the water. The present oarsmen use a stroke developed by Ulbrickson. Last year Washington's varsity and jayvees

CARDINALS' TWO HOME RUNS BEAT PASSEAU, 12-11

Nicholson, Novikoff Connect for Losers.

Ford Frick, National league president, yesterday upheld Brooklyn's protest based on the Cubs' alleged violation of the player limit and fined the Chicago team $500. He refused, however, to order the games of May 18 and 19, both Cub victories, replayed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 26.—A torrid wave hit St. Louis today and all the Cardinal and Cub ball players went crazy with the heat in one way or another. The Cubs, however, lost one of the oddest of up and down struggles of recent record when Jimmy Brown and Don Padgett knocked eleventh inning homers off Claude Passeau for a 12 to 11 St. Louis victory. This was just after Bill Nicholson had put Chicago ahead with his season's ninth homer with two out in the first half of the eleventh.

The Cards had a 9 to 0 lead before the first Cub reached first base, but seven hits in a row off Clyde Shoun at the start of the fourth and another off Lon Warneke were good for six runs. A Chicago run was added in the fifth and in the seventh Lou Novikoff hit a homer with two on, his second in two days, to put the Cubs ahead, 10 to 9.

Cards Tie It in Ninth.

This edge stood up until Tot Pressnell retired the first two batsmen in the ninth, when Terry Moore was hit by a pitched ball, and Padgett, who wasn't in the starting lineup, by the way, perpetrated his first depredation. He scored Moore with a double to tie the score. A pass to Johnny Mize and another hit batsman, Enos Slaughter, loaded the bases and brought on Passeau, who made Steve Mesner line to Lou Stringer.

In the tenth, with two down and Passeau on first, Stan Hack socked his fourth hit and second double, but Passeau was thrown out at the plate.

Martin Marion then opened the home tenth with a single and stole second while Gus Mancuso was striking out. Morton Cooper, third and winning Card pitcher, then lined to Stringer, and Marion was doubled when the Cub second baseman slid into the bag a split second ahead of him.

Bill Hits One 410 Feet.

Phil Cavarretta opened the Chicago eleventh with a single, but Dom Dallessandro hit into a double play. Nicholson then put the Cubs ahead with a 410 drive into the bleacher in left center.

The Cards scored one earned and eight unearned runs before the Cubs got a man to first. The two run warm up in St. Louis' second inning got under way when Hack fumbled Mesner's bouncer, then tossed the ball to the bullpen and Steve pulled up at second base. Mesner went to third while Vern Olsen was throwing out Marion and scored on Mancuso's double to right center. Shoun was called out on strikes but Brown singled to center, scoring Mancuso.

And here's the detail of the horrible third: Stringer threw out Coaker Triplett, then Mize's easy grounder went thru Cavarretta's fingers for the Cubs' second two-base error. Slaughter and Mesner walked, loading the bases, then Olsen pitched a single to Marion, Mize and Slaughter scoring. Paul Erickson replaced Olsen and Mancuso fouled to Cavarretta, but

DODGER PROTEST UPHELD, BUT TWO DEFEATS STAND

Frick Levies $500 Fine in Gilbert Case.

New York, May 26 (AP).—Ford Frick, president of the National league, today ruled that the May 18 and 19 games between the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers in Chicago, and protested by the Dodgers on the grounds the Cubs had violated the 25 player limit rule, should stand as played. But he fined the Cubs $500 for a technical violation of the rule.

The protest involved Charley Gilbert, obtained by the Cubs in the Billy Herman deal and left at Montreal on option. He suffered a leg injury at Montreal and the Cubs notified the Montreal club to send the player to a Philadelphia hospital. The Dodgers claimed this constituted a recall, giving the Cubs an active roster of 26 men.

Frick Analyzes Rule.

Frick ruled that evidence in the case, including telegrams exchanged between Jim Gallagher, Cub business manager, and Hector Racine of the Montreal club, showed that Gallagher, in ordering Gilbert sent to Philadelphia and issuing a check for $500 May 17 in payment of a recall, tactically acknowledged that a recall was intended.

The wording of the rule involving the transfer of a player also entered the case. The rule states a player shall be included in the active player limit of the assignee club [Chicago] when he joins that club.

The question involved, Frick pointed out, is the intent of the qualifying phrase "when he joins that club." He said Gilbert had not physically joined the Cubs prior to the protest, that he had not appeared on the playing field, and that he had not reported to the Chicago manager.

Must Protect Rule.

Frick said it was his opinion that ball games should be won on the playing field, and any ruling which would establish a precedent whereby games may be forfeited or ordered replayed on a protest based on a technical rule that has in no sense affected the play on the field would be harmful to the game.

He conceded the Cubs may have had the best interests of the player at heart and were without guile or intended violation of the rules, but inasmuch as the player limit is a fundamental rule of both major leagues and must be protected from even a technical infringement, he felt such a violation should not go unpunished.

SMILIN' JACK—ICE CUBES FOR CUPID

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—STANDING BULL

Card Homers Beat Cubs in 11th, 12 to 11

Now It's Cards' Turn.

It wasn't long until the same crowd was jeering the Cards. Here's the step by step account of what made the hecklers change their tune: Hack opened the fourth with a single to right. Cavarretta doubled to right, and Dallessandro doubled to center, scoring Hack and Cavarretta. Nicholson singled to center and so did Novikoff, Dallessandro scoring. George singled to center, Nicholson scoring and Novikoff reaching third.

Stringer made it seven hits in a row off Shoun with a single to center which scored Novikoff. Warneke replaced Shoun, and Sturgeon flied to Moore. Augie Galan batted for Erickson and flied to Slaughter, George taking third. Hack then knocked his second single of the inning, scoring George. Cavarretta flied to Slaughter.

The Cubs scored their seventh run after two were out in the next inning. Dallessandro walked, then Nicholson fouled to Mize and Novikoff flied to Moore. George doubled to center, scoring Dellassandro. The score at this juncture was Cards 9, Cubs 7.

Novikoff's homer put the Cubs ahead, 10 to 9, in the seventh. After Cavarretta walked, Dallessandro bounced a double play ball to Brown who foozled his attempted toss to Marion, Cavarretta reaching second and Dallessandro first. Nicholson struck out, but as he did so Cavarretta and Dallessandro executed a double steal. Novikoff then knocked his homer.

Pressnell, winner of the 11 to 10 rough and tumble here on April 20, who had taken over at the start of the home fourth, continued to pitch stellar ball until two were out in the ninth. Then he lost control. You've been told what happened in the home ninth and thereafter. Whew!

Mooty Picked to Halt Cardinals' March Tonight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 26.—The Cubs will play in their first night game of the season here tomorrow night. Jake Mooty will pitch for the Cubs and Max Lanier has been nominated by the Cards. Lanier hasn't started a game since he held the Cubs to two hits in Wrigley field a month ago. He has been performing frequent and sterling service as a reliever however.

Steve Mesner, former White Sox and former Cub, who scored the first run of today's game on a double by Gus Mancuso, another former Cub, became a regular yesterday when Frank Crespi suffered a broken finger. Mancuso is first string Cardinal catcher because of the absence of Walker Cooper, severely injured some days ago.

Tomorrow night's game will not start until President Roosevelt's speech is broadcast over the ball park public address system.

Cincinnati, O., May 26 (AP).—Doubles by Chuck Aleno and Ernie Lombardi and a home run by Harry Craft in the fifth inning broke a tie to give the Cincinnati Reds a 7 to 3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight.

Baseball's Men in Blue

[This is the first of a series of sketches of American league umpires.]

As a pitcher George Pipgras had to look at a lot of umpires. . . . Now he is looking at a lot of pitchers. . . . As a member of the New York Yankees' staff he won 10 games in 1927, topping this with a world series triumph over the Pirates that fall. . . . Won 24 games for the Yanks in 1928. . . . Born in Alameda, Cal., Dec. 20, 1899, but spent most his youth on an Iowa farm, pitching sandlot ball when there was some spare time on his hands. . . . Served in France with the United States army in the world war. . . . After his return he took up pitching seriously but only with fair success. . . . Developed suddenly with the Yanks as the result of tutoring by Bob Shawkey. . . . Yanks eventually traded him to Boston Red Sox. . . . With his mound career finished Pipgras went into the Eastern league to umpire, remaining there three seasons. . . . In August of 1938 injuries cut into the American league staff and Pipgras was called in as a replacement. . . . Proved worthy of the summons.—IRVING VAUGHAN.

sectional trial for the first time in a decade. The Northmoor pro matched the 72's of Bulla and Harrison on No. 1 in the morning, and then came down with the left shoulder misery which has been pestering him for more than a week. He four putted the second green from 20 feet and thereafter found his forte—tee shots—missing completely.

Matching the work of Cooper and Espinosa were Sam Bernardi of Old Elm, with a 77—76—153; Bob MacDonald with a 78—75—153, and Charley Penna, popular Medinah assistant of Tommy Armour, with a 77—76—153. Byron Chamberlain, Glen Oak's tall professional, completed the bracket of 12 with a 78—76—154.

Twelve Get Pass.

Gene Battistoni of Ridgemoor, took the first alternate's place with a 76—80—156, followed by Bill Rhodes of Sunset Ridge, with a 75—82—157. Bill Gordon, Tam o'Shanter's pro, won the playoff for the third alternate's post from Skee Riegel, Glendale, Cal., amateur, and Phil Greenwald, Milwaukee pro, on the second extra hole.

In addition to the dozen who qualified yesterday on their 36 hole performances at Medinah, 12 others from this section are guaranteed places at Fort Worth. They were exempt from the sectional trials, whither by reason of having finished in the first 30 and ties in last year's tourney at Cleveland or by right of having won the championship before. These included Horton Smith, Ralph Guldahl, Lloyd Mangrum, Dick Metz, Tommy Armour, Jimmy Foulis, Johnny Revolta, Jock Hutchison Jr., Wilford Wehrle, Jim Ferrier, Al Huske, and Chick Evans.

Among the outstanding failures in the test were Ky Laffoon of Chicago; Butch Krueger of Beloit, Wis., and Arthur Doering of Medinah.

each won in the Poughkeepsie regatta.

The Central States Schoolboy regatta is a development of the Chicago Interscholastic regattas of 1939 and 1940, which were sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Lincoln Park Boat club, and the recreation division of the Chicago Park district. These three organizations are sponsoring this year's larger show.

The seniors and juniors from Lane Tech have won two legs on The Tribune trophies by scoring victories in past regattas. They need only one more victory to gain permanent possession.

If the boys from Lane win in the eliminations to determine which Chicago crew will row against the half dozen or more out of town prep crews in the June 15 regatta, their school will gain the trophies. New awards will be set up for the Central States Schoolboy regatta senior and junior champions. Individual medals also will go to winners in the various events.

Tilden Beats O'Connell in Pro Tourney

William T. Tilden II. proved that he must be considered seriously as a title contender when he defeated George O'Connell, home pro, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0, in a second round match yesterday in the national professional championship tennis tournament at the Chicago Town and Tennis club.

Tilden, by virtue of his victory over O'Connell, joined John Nogrady of Dallas, Tex., in the quarter-finals. Nogrady, earlier in the day, had defeated Allan Wylie of Indian Hill Country club, Winnetka, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

Tilden at His Best.

Big Bill, in whipping O'Connell, gave the gallery a treat in accuracy with a tennis bat. At some time during his career he might have been slightly faster on his feet, but he was never a better all around player than yesterday.

A high wind did tricks with the ball and it took the players a little time to solve it. Tilden accomplished this by belting the ball across the net by what seemed to be a fraction of an inch most of the time with the result that the ball landed just inside of the tape thruout the three sets. For a time in the second set, when O'Connell brought the games to 3-2, it seemed that the host pro might rally and at least win a set, but Tilden then took command and kept it.

Nogrady, a strong contender last year when he went to the semi-finals, served notice on the balance of the field today when he whipped Wylie with ease.

Keith Gledhill of Los Angeles, beat Berkeley Bell of New York, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-4, in the day's most gruelling match.

Skeen-Faunce Win.

Richard Skeen, the Hollywood star whose additional claim to fame is his tutoring of movie stars, teamed with John Faunce to defeat Joe Whalen of Coral Gables, Fla., and Karel Kozeluh of Greenwich, Conn., 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, in the first doubles match of the tournament.

Vinnie Richards of Bronxville, N. Y., and Tilden were the second duo to enter the quarter-finals in the doubles, the veteran pair advancing when they defeated Louis Volpe Jr., Highland Park, and Ed Underwood, Evanston, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1.

Champion Donald Budge, who was married yesterday, will make his tournament debut today when he faces John Faunce of Hollywood in a second round match.

Yesterday's results:

Yes, Sir! Hospitality Quarts of a beer with
No Sugars or Syrups Added
—the old-time way of brewing so you get real all-grain flavor

YES, folks, our brewing methods are just as old-fashioned as this picture. Of course, our equipment, like for bottling, is up to the minute. And our packages are just as handy as we can think up, so you can enjoy our beer anywhere—our Hospitality Quart Bottle, for one. But the beer you get is old-time, all-grain brew—made as it was 50 years ago.

We never have, and won't add sugars or syrups to the brew. We won't take short-cuts of any kind because we found out long ago that new-fangled methods don't make old-time beer. Real beer lovers buy more of our beer all the time, so we'll keep on the old way.

Compare MEISTER BRÄU flavor by the "50-Degrees" Test—the way experts get the truth, undisguised by too much cold. True flavor, good or bad, shows up at 50 degrees—all the delicate tastes cold hides.

So get a MEISTER BRÄU Hospitality Quart from your favorite tavern or store and do this show-down test. Order today.

3 OLD PLATERS PROVE BREEDING DOESN'T MATTER

Sweet Forever Wins by a Nose at Lincoln Fields.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The thorobred horse has a knack for upsetting theories, thereby keeping everybody guessing. It's just as well, too. It stops the more scholarly authorities from making a pedantic display of their research work and it prevents the pool room boys from convincing any one that they have a consistently reliable knowledge of where the wise money is being placed.

Yesterday at Lincoln Fields, three old platers of the $1,000 class ran as tho they'd never heard about one of the widely accepted points of difference between a good horse and a bad one. According to this theory, a performer with class will hang on and sustain his speed when challenged, whereas a cheap one will quit.

Three Battle It Out.

As a rule, when two platers hook up in a speed duel, one or the other soon gives up and drops back for keeps. Yesterday, however, not only two cheap horses, but three figured in a head and head struggle—and they sustained it not merely thru a sprint but all the way around the track in a run of a mile and a sixteenth. They took turns at weakening and swerving and coming on again—but all three stayed in there running. At the finish it was Sweet Forever, Kiev Singer, and Hill's Palm—nose and nose across the line in that order—with the winner at nearly 46 to 1.

It's unfortunate that two horses with such intriguing names as Sweet Forever and Kiev Singer couldn't be running in the big handicaps. But they did the next best thing yesterday by making a real horse race out of a struggle for an $810 purse.

Bushwhacker Back in Form.

A former member of the aristocracy returned to winning form yesterday. R. W. McIlvain's Bushwhacker, which had been ranked among the first 10 juveniles of 1940 because of his victory in the rich New England futurity, won a six furlong allowance event.

George Jessel, after whom the race was named, was on hand with a bouquet of lilacs and carrots as the winner cantered back to be unsaddled. Bushwhacker liked it better than a silver trophy. He sniffed the lilacs appreciatively and then bit off a carrot, narrowly missing one of the entertainer's fingers.

Wilman Leads Varipapa, 2,139 to 2,115 in Pin Match

Varipapa—194 213 208 191 193 167 223 219 279 228—2,115.

HOLIDAYS WILL FIND ANGLERS ON TROUT WATERS

BY BOB BECKER.

Altho the bass season will not be open for the Memorial day weekend, the thousands of fishermen who will invade Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota will find they can keep their tackle busy on the wall-eyes, northern pike, trout and panfish. Michigan, noted for its trout streams, offers a number of delightful weekend fishing jaunts on rivers that are well stocked with rainbows, brown and brook trout. We suggest that the anglers who like a float trip on a trout stream keep the Manistee and the Au Sable in mind.

For example, it's possible to slip a canoe into the Manistee northwest of the town of Grayling where highway 76 crosses the river. From this point you can drift downstream and row out late in the evening at the town of Sharon. Ernest Borchers of Grayling reports this delightful stretch of trout water can be negotiated in a day if you get on the river by 8 o'clock and keep moving. For the more leisurely trout fisherman who wants to cover less water, it's possible to start above Sharon. If fishermen want further details about this stretch of the Manistee or the Au Sable at Grayling, they can get these details by addressing Ernest Borchers of Grayling.

Try Fishing Above Newaygo.

There are scores of lakes and rivers in southern and west Michigan on which anglers can use either their trout and wall-eyed pike outfits during the Memorial day holiday. One of the nicest float trips on flowing water is on the Muskegon from the Croton dam down to the backwater above the town of Newaygo, Mich.

When the wall-eyes and rainbows make their spawning runs up the Muskegon the state lifts many of these fish over the dam to stock this stretch of water. Fishermen will find wall-eyes, some rainbows, small mouths [for fishing late in June], and even brown trout in the river between Croton and the Newaygo dam. Boats are available for this one day outing and fishing trip.

Another Nice Trip.

There is another nice float trip above Croton. You can get a boat there and have it taken up the river for a trip down from Big Rapids [highway 131]. One really needs an outboard for this jaunt of about 15 miles. The fishing is for northern pike, wall-eyes and later bass. The idea is to fish the holes for the wall-eyes. This species, especially during the warm weather, is a cool water fish which likes to loaf in a deep hole at the bend of a stream or in a similar hangout.

FRENCH DRIVERS CAUSE A FUROR AT INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26 (AP).—Ted Doescher, Indianapolis Motor Speedway track steward, said tonight two Talbot specials imported from France would be permitted to compete in Friday's 500 mile race if they qualified, despite a protest of American drivers against alleged discrimination in favor of the foreign entries.

A committee headed by Russell Snowberger, Detroit driver, called on Doescher today and contended the French speedsters had not been required to be weighed in or to undergo tests for structural defects. Doescher and Col. Art Harrington, chairman of the speedway technical committee, asserted the French racers had been tested.

A Veiled Threat.

Other members of the committee were Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, Harry McQuinn of Indianapolis and Cliff Bergere of Hollywood, Cal.

Snowberger said earlier the drivers intended to do something if track officials failed to take action on their protest.

Snowberger said the French cars are lighter than the track requirements.

"It is unfair to the American drivers who come here every year to permit a relaxation of rules for the benefit of the French cars," Snowberger said.

Two More Qualify.

Two cars were qualified today to put the list of qualifiers at 30, leaving only three places open in the starting lineup. A 10 mile run at 115 miles an hour is required to qualify. Only the 33 fastest cars get into the race. Joie Chitwood, Cherokee Indian from Topeka, Kas., made the grade in his four cylinder speedster at 120.329 miles an hour. Louis Durant of Hollywood, Cal., went thru the run in his eight cylinder car at 116.52, lowest qualifying speed yet.

PRESIDENT PENS 85% CROP LOAN BILL INTO LAW

Demands Reduction in 'Parity' Funds.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—President Roosevelt today signed the bill for crop loans up to 85 per cent of parity but demanded that farm prices shall not be permitted to rise above parity [prices equaling in purchasing power the average for the period 1909-'14].

Rep. Clarence Cannon expects permanent legislation.

The action is aimed at raising the prices of wheat, corn, rice, tobacco, and cotton.

Before signing the measure, the President mentioned certain objections and won an agreement from congressional farm leaders that they will reduce the direct parity payment item in the pending farm appropriation bill from the 450 million dollar senate figure to the 212 millions originally allocated for parity payments in the budget.

May Become Permanent Law.

Meanwhile there were predictions on Capital Hill that the parity loan act, which applies to only one crop year, will be extended into a permanent law which the house committee on agriculture will soon report. According to Representative Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.], the present act is merely paving the way for permanent legislation.

"The bill which the President has just signed," said Cannon, "places a floor under farm prices similar to the floor already under wages. For the first time in history the farmer is guaranteed a parity price."

"When this bill vecomes law," Mr. Roosevelt commented in a memorandum, "the coöperating farmer will be able to receive an 85 per cent parity loan plus a cash parity payment plus a cash soil conservation payment. Under no circumstances should the sum of these three exceed parity.

Understanding on Prices.

"Therefore I have taken up the construction of the law with certain legislative leaders chiefly responsible for it and have received from them letters stating in effect that for the 1941 crop the broad intention is that parity payments should if necessary be so curtailed as to avoid a price above parity when added to the loan and the soil conservation payments.

"Furthermore, it is my belief that in the omnibus bill submitted to the congress by the secretary of agriculture minimum cotton and wheat allotments should more closely approximate current demand; cotton and rice penalties should be increased; all with the thought that wholly unmanageable surpluses should not accumulate in the hands of the government. Finally, the Commodity Credit corporation should be free to dispose in an orderly manner of many commodities acquired under the loan program.

"I am approving this joint resolution on the distinct understanding that parity payments will be limited to the amount necessary to bring the basic commodities to parity but not beyond parity."

Purposes of Legislation.

According to sponsors of the legislation the aim is to give famers equal purchasing power to that enjoyed between 1909-'14, the criterion for farm conditions established by the department of agriculture. The legislation requires price-pegging loans on corn, cotton, wheat, tobacco, and rice and imposes drastic penalties for marketing of "abnormal production."

Backers of the legislation claimed that it would assure farmers a return of $1.15 a bushel for wheat, 87 cents a bushel for corn and 16 cents a pound for cotton, including government benefit payments. Under the new act loan rates would be:

Cotton, 13.49 cents a pound; corn, 69.87 cents, and wheat, 69.22 cents a bushel; flue cured tobacco, 19 cents; fire and dark cured tobacco, 8.41 cents, and burley, 18.53 cents a pound.

WHEAT PRICES DECLINE

Signing of the 85 per cent of parity federal crop loan bill yesterday resulted in erratic price movements in the grain markets. Wheat futures advanced about 1 cent, but reacted quickly on selling and closed ⅝ to ¾ cent lower.

All deliveries of corn advanced to new highs since 1937 and closed ⅝ to 1⅞ cents higher. After an early bulge soy beans reacted and closed ⅛ cent off 7½ to 10 cents per 100 pounds.

President Roosevelt in signing the loan bill announced that farmers were not to receive more than the wheat parity price, which is $1.14 a bushel after taking into consideration federal benefit and soil conservation payments. This tended to create confusion in the trade, as benefit payments alone are estimated at 18 cents a bushel. Brokers said that it would probably take an official department of agriculture statement to clarify the situation.

President Approves 35 Million Housing Program

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—President Roosevelt approved today housing construction estimated to cost between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000. C. F. Palmer, defense housing coördinator, said the program included 9,883 dwelling units in 32 localities.

House Refuses to Kill F. D. R. Rule of Dollar

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—A determined Republican effort to discontinue President Roosevelt's extraordinary powers to alter the metallic content of the dollar was defeated in the house today by a vote of 177 to 122.

The fight against a measure continuing for two years Mr. Roosevelt's monetary powers, first given him eight years ago, was led by Representative Chauncey W. Reed [R., Ill.], ranking minority member of the committee on coinage, weights and measures.

Reed urged members to vote against a rule permitting debate and a final vote on the bill. The rule was approved, however, and passage of the legislation tomorrow was assured. The bill also continues the 2 billion dollar gold stabilization fund, created when the President reduced the gold content of the dollar by 41 per cent and fixed the official price of gold at $35 an ounce.

Reviews Perils in Bill.

The Illinois congressman noted one administration argument in behalf of the measure termed the monetary power "a weapon in reserve." Another was the promise of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. that the President has "no present intention whatever to devalue the gold content of the dollar."

"To argue," Reed told the house, "that the chief executive should be given such enormous and far reaching powers, to be used at a time and under conditions which we cannot foresee, is to argue that he should be entrusted with all of the governmental powers now residing in the congress, the courts, the states, or the people on the ground that at some time in the future, some conditions might arise which would make it necessary or desirable for the President to have such powers. Such an argument strikes unerringly at the heart of all constitutional government."

Excuse for Dictatorship.

If it appeared in the future, Reed argued, that there was a need for vesting such powers in the chief executive, congress could delegate them immediately.

Discussing the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund, Reed said that only 200 million dollars of the amount ever had been used by the treasury in its operations.

"Since 200 millions is sufficient, it is obvious," he said, "that 1 billion, 800 millions is lying idle in the treasury at a time when we are confronted with tremendous borrowing operations and despite the fact that taxes on the American people are being greatly increased."

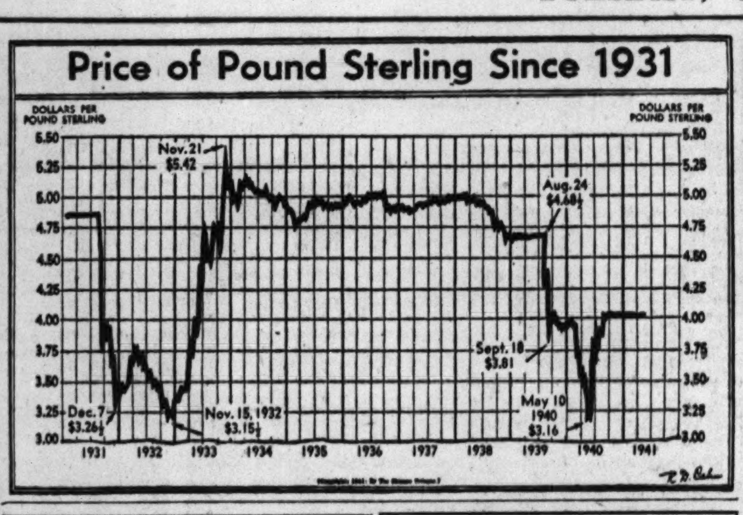
GARRETT ADVISES AGAINST CURB ON ADVERTISING

Boston, Mass., May 26 [Special].—Advertisers of the nation were advised today to keep their sales messages before the consuming public during the arms emergency. Paul Garrett, vice president of General Motors corporation in charge of public relations, told the annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America that the organization's task of "smoothing the way all along the channels of distribution between factory and market will become infinitely more intricate as defense requirements extend the area of dislocation."

"Advertising should play a leading part in the nation's preparedness program," President Roosevelt said in a message to the delegates. "Advertising can assist in creating and maintaining morale," he said, and added that "those who are expert in it can be of great aid to the government."

Illinois Brick to Reopen Plant Closed for 10 Years

Increased residential construction has made it necessary for the Illinois Brick company to reopen its Northbrook plant that has been closed for 10 years, William T. Schlake, president, announced yesterday. The company has 60 men at work getting the plant in condition and will employ 100 or 120 men when production begins, he said. The yard is expected to produce 300,000 common bricks a day, raising the company's daily output to nearly a million bricks.



TVA Searches for Way to Cut Use of Power

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., May 26.—The drastic power curtailment program which the Tennessee Valley authority has been forced to adopt in order to meet the demands of war industries in this area was outlined to divisional managers of the TVA today at a four hour closed conference in Knoxville. The meeting was called by J. A. Krug, chief of the power division of TVA.

The program of curtailment has been made necessary by low water which TVA engineers contend they could not foresee and which is endangering the power output of the authority's 400 million dollar network of hydro-electric dams in the Tennessee valley. Large advertisments which appeared yesterday in all metropolitan newspapers of Tennessee announced the need for curtailment, and requested citizens to be sparing in the use of electricity.

Plan to Tap Private Sources.

Other developments today were:

1. TVA workmen this morning started the rush construction of a 110 mile transmission line from nearby Norris dam to Hazard, Ky. The 154,000 volt line will cost 1½ million dollars and will enable privately owned utility companies to come to the aid of the TVA in meeting the power shortage.

2. The first few of 50 old steam-electric plants in this area, abandoned several years ago upon the TVA's promise to provide cheap and unfailing electricity from its hydro system, were put back in operation.

3. At Knoxville the municipal utility system began pumping the city's water with its own steam plant, thereby saving 1,200 kilowatts an hour of TVA current.

Reports concerning today's conference were meager. Krug said after it was over that it was mainly devoted to "acquainting the divisional managers" with the proposed curtailment scheme.

Discuss Aluminum Company Need.

"We talked over various methods by which we might save power for defense industries as the big Aluminum Company of America plant at Alcoa, Tenn.," Krug said, "and, among other things, we took up suggestions by which residents of the cites and towns of the area served by TVA might help us save power."

Krug said the list of the possible restrictions upon municipalities will not be ready until next week. It has been suggested, however, that the cities and towns of Tennessee and adjoining states will be called upon to discontinue street light, night baseball games, and other such usages of current.

Citizens already have been asked, via yesterday's advertisement, to save on electricity in their homes and businesses. If these measures prove insufficient, it was reported, the use of power in theater and store air-conditioning systems, a real necessity in the south, may possibly be restricted.

Lilienthal to Explain Shortage.

Knoxville is expecting further disclosures tomorrow when David Lilienthal, vice chairman of the TVA, will address members of the local Rotary club. Lilienthal has announced that his subject will be "The Why and Wherefore of the Power Shortage."

The transmission line, which TVA expects to complete by Nov. 1, will tap two private power companies which depend upon coal-burning steam plants, and not upon hydro-electric dams, for their main source of electricity. The fifty steam plants are owned by cities and manufacturing companies.

NEW TYPE TREASURY BOND WILL BE SOLD ONLY TO AGENT BANKS

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—The treasury announced today creation of a new type of bond to be sold to banks which carry government deposits or act as government fiscal agents.

The bonds, which will bear 2 per cent interest and mature in 12 years, will have a double purpose. They will serve as collateral, since a bank must pledge an equal amount of government bonds to protect any government deposits. Also, officials said, the interest from the bonds will recompense banks for fiscal services performed for the treasury without other charge.

The treasury said that investors who subscribed for the new $600,000,000 of treasury bonds offered last week would be alloted approximately 8 per cent of subscriptions.

BANKS' BUSINESS LOANS CLIMB 35 MORE MILLIONS

The upward trend of business borrowing from banks in the nation was maintained in the week ended May 21, the federal reserve board announced yesterday.

LACK AGREEMENT ON AMENDMENTS TO OIL MEASURE

Springfield, Ill., May 26 (AP).—Legislative leaders and representatives of the Illinois oil industry failed in a conference today to reach an agreement on the type of oil conservation legislation that should be enacted by the general assembly.

A closed three hour conference attended by spokesmen for various oil interests ended with an announcement by Senator Arnold P. Benson of Batavia, Republican floor leader, that "apparently there is no common ground on which we can agree."

Senator Benson announced that an oil and gas conservation bill supported by Gov. Dwight Green would be amended "so as to remove any possible proration features and to meet the argument that it is a proration bill."

Pullman Clerks to Ask 30 Per Cent Wage Boosts

A 30 per cent increase in salaries for clerical and miscellaneous employés of the Pullman company represented by the Pullman Clerks' association will be asked when the company representative meets with the conference committee of the association in June, P. A. Doud, secretary-treasurer of the association, announced yesterday.

MORE RATIONING OF METALS FOR ARMS FORECAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 26.—Various degrees of rationing controls have been placed over 24 materials or forms of materials and additional measures will be necessary, E. R. Stettinius Jr., director of priorities for the Office of Production Management, reported tonight.

In summing up the activities of his division after one year at rearming, Stettinius said that "the basic policy of the priorities system demands that defense needs shall uncompromisingly be put ahead of nondefense requirements. The difficulties entailed we shall have to accept."

Urges Small Inventories.

"Increasing attention must be given to the need for reducing excessive inventories and the demands for careful scheduling of production and deliveries," he added.

Strict mandatory rationing is now imposed on the following products: Aluminum, magnesium, nickel, nickel bearing steel, ferro-tungsten, synthetic rubber, and machine tools. Partial control is exercised over zinc and the OPM today requested zinc producers to set aside 15,000 tons of the metal during June for emergency user. Other metals are subject to lesser degrees of control.

Meanwhile the following summary was provided by the OPM on the status of the government's stockpile program, aimed at accumulating raw materials for the armament program:

CHROMITE [ore used in making chromium]: Stockpile sufficient to supply industry for more than a year at current rate of consumption.

Chilean Copper Received.

COPPER: Orders of considerable quantities have been placed with Chile and delivery of first 100,000 tons being completed.

GRAPHITE [military uses principally for foundry and crucible work, paints and pigments, electrical machine brushes, electrodes, and dry batteries]: Stockpile adequate to supply industry nearly a year at present rate of consumption.

MANGANESE [used in iron and steel manufacturing]: Stockpiles sufficient to meet industrial needs for 16 months. Probable domestic production, plus Cuban deliveries, could supply industry thru 1943.

MERCURY [used in the manufacture of a compound for high explosives, drugs, and anti-fouling paint for ship bottoms]: Domestic output has risen to record heights. Stockpile adequate for more than six months.

MICA [used in radio and electrical equipment manufacturing]: Stockpile enough to supply industry for more than a year. New sources in western hemisphere being investigated.

Nickel Available in Canada.

NICKEL [used as an alloy in steel to increase toughness]: Current supplies are low, but most of world supply is in Canada and military requirements are assured.

QUARTZ CRYSTAL [principal use is in radio frequency control]: Stockpile is sufficient for some months and growing.

TIN: Present stock will supply industry more than a year. Large tonnage ordered from China and Bolivia.

TUNGSTEN [used to give alloy steels high tension characteristics]: Stocks are low, largely due to an interruption of imports while the Burma road was closed. Domestic production being stepped up so that peace time needs can be met without imports. Substitutes studied.

ZINC [used in plating storage batteries, for manufacturing brass and galvanizing metals]: Shortage being met by partial priority control and expansion of existing plants. Domestic supply could be supplemented by purchases from other nations of the western hemisphere.

RUBBER: Record imports have built a sufficient reserve for about a year. Exchange of United States cotton for British rubber helped build stock. Synthetic production increasing, but still insignificant.

President of Tobacco Firm Ordered to Repay Big Bonus

New York May 26 (AP).—George W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco company, and certain other corporate officers were ordered by Justice William T. Collins of the state Supreme court today to repay the corporation $2,168,083 as a result of a minority stockholders' suit over bonuses.

George W. Hill.

The suit, filed in 1939 and requiring more than seven months to hear, charged that bonuses paid the officers were computd erroneously in that the percentage of excess net profit was not based on the correct net profit figures running from 1912 to 1938.

Included in the amount ordered returned was $150,000 in legal expenses incurred in connection with litigation over an alleged $250,000 payment by the corporation to former Federal Judge Martin T. Manton, subsequently convicted of selling justice.

Directors Held Accountable.

The suit decided today was instituted by Esther Heller and six others and named as defendants George Hill Jr., Paul M. Hahn, Vincent Riggio, and Charles F. Neiley, all vice presidents. All directors serving when the $150,000 legal expenditure was approved also were held accountable for that payment.

The senior Hill testified last December that he had nothing to do with computation of bonuses received by him and other officers during the contested years. The bonuses, he said, were computed by J. B. Harvey, the corporation's treasurer.

Hill told a stockholders' meeting in February, 1940, that he would quit the company if its plan of "incentive compensation," under which top officers have shared in profits, were changed. Hill's 1939 remuneration was $420,300.

Justice Collins said that the bonuses, with salary added, netted the elder Hill $6,500,000 between 1926, when he became president of the corporation, and 1939 when the action was started. But he decided that the bonuses were paid on an erroneous computation, in that the percentage of excess profits was not based on a correct computation of net profit figures from 1912 to the end of 1938.

Suggests Future Deductions.

He ordered repayment, to be apportioned among the defendants, because of the treasurer's misinterpretation of the bonus plan, and said he thought that a plan could be "formulated whereby the payment of the judgment would extend over a period of years, to be deducted from future bonuses or salaries."

In addition to the erroneous method of computation, minority shareholders charged the bonuses were excessive, and in this connection, after citing a steep increase in American Tobacco sales and profits under the Hill régime, Justice Collins said:

"On this branch of the case, I find for the defendants. Yet it does not follow that I affirmatively approve these huge payments. It means that I cannot by any reliable standard find them to be waste or spoilation; it means that I find no valid ground for disapproving what the great majority of stockholders have approved. In the circumstances, if a ceiling for these bonuses is to be erected the stockholders, who built and are responsible for the present structure, must be the architects."

Carborundum Factory Strike Called by CIO

CIO unionists yesterday walked out of the big Carborundum company plant at Niagara Falls, N. Y., threatening the production of grinding wheels and abrasive machinery for armament plants thruout the country, as strikes continued in other cities and threatened to develop elsewhere.

Union spokesmen declared the Carborundum employés demanded "real" collective bargaining. Company officials said that operations continued despite the walkout. About 3,200 are employed at the plant.

At San Francisco a fist fight between rival CIO and AFL business agents punctuated the two week strike of machinists at bay area shipyards holding 500 million dollars in government orders.

Cross Picket Lines.

Fifteen hundred men, representing all crafts except machinists, went to work at Moore's drydock, which during the day was awarded another maritime commission order for 12 freighters and another shipway. One thousand AFL men marched thru CIO picket lines and the others were carried in navy trucks. The AFL has termed it an outlaw strike.

A senate committee postponed a hearing called for yesterday at Washington, D. C., to investigate the strike. William Green, AFL president, is to be a witness at a hearing called for today.

Resume Work at Arsenal.

Work was resumed after a three day shutdown at the government's 30 million dollar arsenal at Ravenna, O., where 10,400 were affected by a strike of common laborers who demanded a 25 cent increase in their basic wage of 65 cents an hour. AFL union officials, who said the strike was unauthorized, stood at plant gates to prevent the admittance of strike leaders.

At Washington, the defense mediation board began attempts to settle a 49 day strike of the CIO Steel Workers Organizing committee at the St. Louis, Mo., plant of the Curtis Manufacturing company, which produces hoists used in army tank production. Three hundred unionists struck for higher wages.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins dispatched James M. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, to Detroit to offer the government's mediation services in averting a threatened strike at the Packard Motor Car company. CIO unionists demand a wage increase of 10 cents an hour similar to that recently granted by the General Motors corporation.

At Washington Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] introduced a joint resolution asserting that "strikes in industries that affect the national defense effort are contrary to sound policy and they are hereby condemned."

INSURANCE COMPANIES WIN BIGGEST U. S. TAX REFUNDS IN HISTORY

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—The Metropolitan Life Insurance company and the New York Life Insurance company today received the two largest tax refunds in the history of the treasury.

Saying they had no record of larger repayments, officials disclosed payment of $1,454,620 to Metropolitan and $1,210,842 to New York Life.

In both cases the refunds were made after the treasury determined that insufficient credits had been allowed on insurance reserves. The Metropolitan refunds covered the years 1930-'34, inclusive, and the New York Life refunds were on its 1933 and 1934 income taxes.

The New York Central Railroad company won a $1,082,255 tax dispute when the treasury decided its claim for this additional amount on the 1921 income tax was improper and abandoned it.

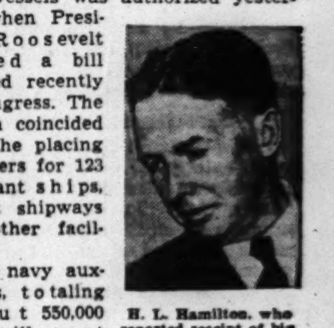
Place 1940 Gross Income of Farmers at 10.3 Billion

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—The department of agriculture in a revised estimate today placed the 1940 gross income of farmers at $10,352,000,000, the highest since 1937.

VAST NEW NAVY SHIPBUILDING IS AUTHORIZED

Let Orders for 123 Cargo Vessels.

Construction of 58 new auxiliary navy vessels was authorized yesterday when President Roosevelt signed a bill passed recently by congress. The action coincided with the placing of orders for 123 merchant ships, eight shipways and other facilities.



H. L. Hamilton, who reported receipt of big locomotive order.

The navy auxiliaries, totaling about 550,000 tons, will cost $300,000,000. The contracts for cargo ships, awarded by the maritime commission, amounted to about $312,000,00, with an additional $6,000,000 going for the shipways and other facilities.

Contracts for 38 of the cargo vessels were made under terms of the lease-lend act, completing negotiations for the 212 ship aid-to-Britain program ordered by President Roosevelt.

Total of 283 Ships Ordered.

Eighty-five of the vessels were ordered as part of the commission's 10 year, 500 ship building program. They bring the total under order, or completed, to 283. Delivery dates were not announced.

The Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad has placed an order totaling about $1,533,500 with the Electro-Motive corporation, near La Grange, for three 5,400 horse power diesel-electric freight locomotives and one 1,000 horse power switch engine. They were among 17 locomotives reported ordered by the road.

Determination of delivery dates and exact cost of the locomotives awaits a conference between representatives of the railroad and the constructing company, H. L. Hamilton, president of Electro-Motive, said. The cost is set by the equipment needed for the routes contemplated, he added.

The Montreal Locomotive works, controled by the American Locomotive company, was reported to have received contracts for construction of 20 steam locomotives for the Canadian Pacific railway.

2,500 Box Cars Ordered.

Car orders disclosed yesterday included 500 box cars placed with Pressed Steel Car company by the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad and 2,000 by Union Pacific railroad in its own shops.

The United States Housing authority yesterday awarded a $1,714,000 contract for construction of 470 dwelling units for Philadelphia navy yard workers and their families to a New York contractor.

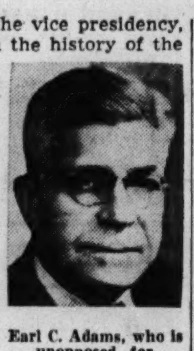
A search has been started for a subcontractor in the Chicagoland area to fabricate a large order of depth charge assemblies for the navy, T. S. McEwan, district manager of the defense contract service, Office of Production Management, announced.

The work would be sub-let from a large Chicago manufacturer who has a naval contract, McEwan explained. Facilities needed for the work, he added, are 20 and 24 inch by 8 foot engine lathes, 20 by 30 inch Bullard or King boring mills, and Warner & Swasey or Gisholt turret lathes capable of chucking [gripping] outside material 16 to 20 inches in diameter.

The war department announced award of numerous supply contracts, including one for $125,892 to Bevry corporation, Chicago, for portable sound motion picture equipment.

Chicagoan, Downstate Man Seek Illinois Bankers Office

A contest over the vice presidency, only the second in the history of the organization, will mark the annual election of officers of the Illinois Bankers association at its 50th annual convention which started last night with a party in the Palmer House. The other battle over the vice presidency was in 1939.



Earl C. Adams, who is unopposed for presidency.

Candidates for the post, which is considered a stepping stone to the presidency the following year, will be Henry G. Bengel, vice president and trust officer of the Illinois National bank, Springfield, and George R. Boyles, president of the Merchants National bank, Chicago.

Both Decide to Seek Post.

Bengel was nominated by group 8 [Springfield] of the association, and Boyles by group 1 [Chicago]. Both chose to run. Each of the 10 groups in the state has the privilege of nominating candidates, but seldom has more than one nominee sought each position.

Earl C. Adams, executive president of the Jersey National bank, Jerseyville, Ill., and vice president of the association, is unopposed for the presidency. L. B. Wilson, president of the State Bank of Rock Island, is the sole candidate for treasurer. The election is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. Charles R. Reardon, president of the First National bank, Joliet, is the retiring president.

W-G-N to Aid Bank Cavalcade.

Regular sessions of the convention will get underway this morning with a radio broadcast of "A Cavalcade of 50 Years of Banking" over station W-G-N. Committee reports and an address by P. D. Houston, president of the American Bankers association, will follow. Dr. Paul F. Cadman, economist for the American Bankers association, will speak at the annual banquet tonight.

Among the other speakers at the convention will be Arthur C. Lueder, state auditor; W. W. Shoemaker, vice president of Armour & Co., and Clifford V. Gregory, associate publisher of two farm journals. About 1,500 bankers are expected to attend.

STOCKS DECLINE ON DISCOURAGING BUDGET OF NEWS

British Naval Reverses Are Major Curb.

New York, May 26 (AP).—The stock market turned downward again today, but without inspiring much liquidation. Sentiment was depressed, brokers said, by the destruction of Britain's biggest warship, the Hood, and German claims that a number of British vessels had been sunk in the Mediterranean.

Part of the day's indifferent drift was attributed to the desire to keep committments small pending President Roosevelt's address tomorrow evening. Prospects of further labor rifts also were viewed as a handicap.

Most Losses Fractional.

A few isolated issues dropped as much as a point or so, but declines generally were fractions at the close.

Rails kept losses to negligible amounts as April net income statements disclosed sharp improvement over a year ago. Steels were lower all day, altho a dip in this week's estimated mill operations was in line with expectations.

Among stocks hitting new lows for the year or longer were Woolworth, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Edison, Dow Chemical, and Continental Can.

Apathy of the session was stressed by the fact Bethlehem Steel failed to open until near the final hour. Many other pivotals were late in appearing on the ticker tape.

CHICAGO LIST DIPS.

Stocks continued on a downward path on the Chicago exchange yesterday in turnover of 20,000 shares. Commonwealth Edison, which led the list in transfer of 1,950 shares, dropped ⅝ to 24½.

Armour and General Motors each gained ⅛ point from the New York close during the trading from 2 to 2:30 o'clock, finishing at 4⅛ and 37⅝, respectively. Swift was off ¼ at 20¾. Others were unchanged.

URGE BROADENED FIELD FOR FHA IN FARM LENDING

Bankers Would Push Life Insurance Loans.

Important changes in the national housing act designed to improve the functioning of Federal Housing administration farm loans were proposed yesterday by the farm mortgage committee of the Mortgage Bankers association of America. S. M. Waters of Minneapolis, chairman of the committee, and former president of the association, said that the suggested broadening of farm loan procedure will open a vast investment field for life insurance companies and other institutional lenders, and materially assist the federal government indirectly in armament financing.

Eliminate 15% Provision.

One of the suggested changes is the elimination of the requirement that 15 per cent of FHA insured farm loans be spent on improvements. Another change would raise the limit of FHA loans to $25,000. Loans would be insured for 5 to 40 years.

"This system" Waters said of the revised program, "would require no federal subsidy and no federal money. The government would retain all necessary control over rates, charges, types of securities issued, and commissions paid.

"It would mean a standardized farm mortgage lending system with greater stability of interest rates in good and bad times—standardization of inspections, appraisals, mortgage documents and titles.

Would Provide Liquidity.

"It would give the farm mortgage something it has never had before—liquidity and marketability. All parts of the nation would be adequately served by lenders."

Waters said he believed that as much as $1,250,000,000 of farm mortgage loans could be transferred from federal agencies to private interests under such a plan. Of the more than 7 billion dollars of farm mortgage debt outstanding, government agencies hold about 40 per cent and life insurance companies 11 per cent, he said.

"Life insurance companies today are great reservoirs of money eagerly seeking profitable investments" Waters asserted. "They undoubtedly would reënter the farm loan field with the FHA farm loan procedure revised."

Thistle Perils Field.

May 26, 1941.

CANADA thistle is threatening to engulf a 12 acre field at the Fox river farm. This type of thistle is the worst weed pest with which the farmer has to contend.

The thistle is a native of Europe. It is believed to have been introduced in America, by way of Canada, thru impure farm seeds. The weed spread rapidly from Canada into the United States. Farm seeds imported to New England from Europe also accounted for its appearance in this country. The first official recognition of the weed was in a Vermont law passed in 1795.

Canada thistle.

The Canada thistle is a perennial, growing one to four feet high. The leaves are from two to seven inches long and usually have numerous hard, sharp pointed spines. The plant has deep seated roots that spread a dozen feet in every direction, sending up new shoots at short intervals.

Pest a Hardy One.

Because of its hardy nature it is extremely difficult to eradicate. Agricultural experts have worked for years to perfect a method of exterminating it. Many states have passed laws requiring the weed to be destroyed wherever it is found.

The thistles have a good start on the 12 acre field at the farm, but the farm manager has mapped out a plan which he believes will eliminate them. The weed still is in the bud stage and will be destroyed before it has a chance to go to seed.

The farm manager will attempt to smother the weed with a heavy crop of soy beans. Canada thistle thrives on plenty of sun and will not grow rapidly in the shade. Alfalfa has proved a valuable smother crop in the war against the thistle, but soy beans will be used in the patch to see what results they will give. The beans will cast a great deal of shade and should do the job.

Field to Be Plowed.

The field first will be plowed and disked until the weed plants are cut down and chopped up. Then the beans will be drilled in at the rate of two bushels to the acre. This is a heavy seeding and may lessen the possibility of getting a good yield of beans for seed at harvest time. Only a thick growth of beans can destroy the thistle, however, and the manager will have to take a chance on realizing a good crop from the patch.

Canada thistle grows wild on roadsides, in vacant lots, in forest preserves, and on railroad rights of way in the city. City people are just as responsible for the spread of the pest as are negligent farmers. Every property owner should inspect his premises for the weed and destroy all that he finds. Early treatment is the best method of control.

Spraying the weeds with sodium chlorate has proved practical in small areas. A solution of one pound of sodium chlorate to a gallon of water is effective. The solution should be applied at the rate of two gallons to a square rod for the first treatment. Three weeks later the thistles should be resprayed with one gallon of the solution to a square rod. Now is the proper time to spray.

Sidelights from Arms Clinic

Yesterday's meetings of the National Association of Purchasing Agents and the preparedness program sponsored by the Illinois and national associations of manufacturers, both held in the Stevens hotel, brought out these sidelights:

The board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers recommended that business put a damper on instalment buying to avoid "a disastrous, 'silk shirt' buying spree by American factory workers."

The board adopted the following resolution: "Institutions providing instalment or other consumer credit should voluntarily curtail an undue expansion of such credit by requiring larger down payments and by shortening the terms of the contracts."

The directors recalled the credit-buying splurge of the last war and said the recommendation was intended to avoid the aftermath of depression which came after the period of high production in the early '20s.

Americans will be faced with shortages and price increases in foods, clothing, soaps, paints, and drugs because cargo space which ordinarily is used to carry raw materials for these products is being diverted to carry crude rubber, Col. George S. Brady, chief of the substitute and secondary materials section of the price division, said. He addressed the purchasing agents.

Purchasing agents must resist price advances and keep the price level stabilized so far as possible under rising costs, George W. Aljian, purchasing agent for the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining Corporation, Ltd., San Francisco, said.

"Speculative buying and overstocking must be discouraged," he commented, "if inflation, which every one dreads, is to be avoided."

At the Informashow of the purchasing agents' meeting, more than 100 industrial companies displayed newest processes and products. The United States Steel corporation displayed a model of a hot saw cutting red hot sections of steel pipe. Bethlehem Steel corporation demonstrated the operations of a blast furnace, open hearth furnace, and a rolling mill.

Plastics substitutes for metal were exhibited by the Plastics Materials Manufacturers' association and Chicago Molded Products company.

Because of the surplus demand for seats at the luncheons and banquets of the various meeting many business executives were unable to obtain reservations and had to sit on folding chairs in hallways or stand in order to hear the speakers. Several high salaried company heads were seen struggling with the simple machinery of the folding chairs. One top executive, after getting red in the face trying to unfold a chair, blushed even deeper when a hotel employé flipped the seat down with ease.

George B. Benson will be admitted as a partner of Swift, Henke & Co., Chicago brokers, June 2. He is now manager of the stock trading department of Goodbody & Co.

The State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance company, Bloomington, Ill., will observe its 19th anniversary June 7.

C. O. Rydholm, a former Chicagoan who has been manager of Butler Brothers' San Francisco house since 1936, will retire June 1. He will be succeeded by Charles H. Eaton, assistant general manager and sales manager.

James W. Speer has been appointed manager of Northwest Airlines' agency department. He succeeds H. Lee Houston who has resigned to become associated with the sales department of Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

HOG PRICES RISE TO 3 YEAR PEAK; CATTLE SLUMP

The average price of hogs rose yesterday to the highest level in more than three years, while cattle fell to the lowest mark in 10 months. Packers paid an average of $9.50 per hundreds pounds for the hog supply, the highest since March, 1938, and the peak May average in four years. Top loads reached $9.65, peak since Aug. 6, 1938.

Unsettled wholesale markets for fresh pork resulting from consumer resistance to prices, were offset by lighter hog receipts and government pork and lard buying. Despite the rising costs of hogs, packers were unable to raise the $18.50 top for light loins, which equaled the lowest price for this cut since May 1. Two weeks ago when hogs averaged $9, packers obtained $20 a hundred pounds for loins.

Declines of 10 to 15 cents occurred in the market for steers and yearlings. Lambs met fair demand at steady prices.

SOME LONG TERM FEDERAL BONDS ACTIVE, STRONG

New York, May 26 (AP).—Long term, nontaxable United States government bonds were in demand in over-the-counter markets today, rising as much as 8-32 point, but exchange trading fell to the lowest levels for a full day since last Sept. 13.

All treasury issues were firm on announcement that $600,000,000 of new 2½s had been oversubscribed to the extent that investors would be allotted only about 8 per cent of their requests. The new bonds, on a when-issued basis, sold over the counter about even with Saturday's close of 102 25-32.

In the foreign list gains about matched small declines.

AVIATION CORP.

What do you think of Aviation Corporation stock?—W. C. H.

Answer: Aviation corporation stock is regarded as highly speculative. Only one cash dividend—18½ cents a share in 1938—has been paid on the stock. Earnings results of the company have been largely unsatisfactory, mainly because of development and expansion costs, but have shown improvement in recent months.

For the quarter ended February 28 this year, consolidated net income of the company and subsidiaries was $198,093, equal to 5 cents a capital share, against net loss of $196,447 in the corresponding period of 1940. There are now outstanding 5,782,222 shares of $3 par capital stock, reflecting recent financing in connection with the acquisition of Aviation & Transportation corporation assets.

Consolidated earnings of the company and its subsidiaries [excluding New York Shipbuilding and Auburn Central] compared as follows in the last five fiscal years ended Nov. 30:

	Net sales	Net income	Earned per share
1936	†$3,516,000	†$104,016	$0.04
1937	3,987,000	*437,327	*0.16
1938	6,374,000	187,909	0.07
1939	3,302,000	*2,238,049	*0.57
1940	5,235,000	88,350	0.02

*Loss †Eleven months ended Nov. 30.

The operating subsidiaries had a combined total of more than 654 million dollars of unfilled orders last January 31, including $542,640,000 in shipbuilding orders. Government armament requirements have expanded the companies' activities materially in the last year

Aviation corporation was formed in 1929 originally to invest in and underwrite securities in the aviation industry. Since divesting itself of its control of several air transport lines in compliance with the air mail act of 1934, the company has emerged as a holding company with substantial interests in aircraft manufacturing.

Thru the recent merger with its affiliate, Aviation and Transportation, the company has acquired control of the New York Shipbuilding corporation and the Auburn Central Manufacturing company, which has metal stamping facilities for aircraft parts.

The aircraft interests of Aviation corporation include the wholly-owned Aviation Manufacturing corporation, organized in 1935; the controled Vultee Aircraft, Inc., established in 1939, and the Republic Aircraft Products corporation, acquired late last year. The company also has substantial investments in American Airlines, Inc., debentures, and in Pan American Airways Corp., and Roosevelt Field, Inc., stocks.

WELDING OF THIN METALS DONE BY NEW 'COLD ARC'

May Be Useful in Fusing Airplane Parts.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

Electric arc welding equipment, capable of fusing together the thin metal parts of an airplane, has been developed in a Chicago laboratory by the Sight Feed Generator company. The company is considering Chicago for the site of a plant to manufacture this apparatus, it was announced by Marshall Beymer, Chicago manager.

The new device makes electric arc welding possible at low currents, Beymer explained. Hitherto, ordinary electric welding had such heat intensity [3,600 degrees Fahrenheit] that thin metals or metals with high electric conductivity were burned thru before a weld could be accomplished.

How Device Operates.

Sight Feed is a large producer of acetylene generators for oxy-acetylene welding and of electric arc welders. Beymer said the company's engineers, working in a small laboratory, applied principles from radio engineering to develop a method of low amperage welding.

Temporarily dubbed the "cold arc" for lack of a better name, the device connects with any ordinary alternating current welder.

The cold arc has a current which oscillates [swings up and back] 195,000 times a second. When this is passed over the regular alternating current, which has 60 oscillations a second, a continuous flow of electric current is obtained, Beymer said. Thus the welder can employ a low current which will not burn thru thin sheets of aluminum, stainless steel, or duraluminum used in airplanes.

Factories in Wisconsin.

Sight Feed has its headquarters at Richmond, Ind., and factories at West Alexandria and Appleton, Wis. It has been making acetylene generators for 22 years.

A low current welding method also was developed recently by the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company of West Allis, Wis., makers of heavy machinery and other products. The device in the Allis-Chalmers equipment which permits welding with currents as low as 5 amperes is called the "Weldotron." The company has reported that sheets as thin as 1-100th of an inch can be welded by this process.

STATE APPROVES 39 MILLIONS IN UTILITIES ISSUES

Additional Power Is Needed by Arms Industries.

Springfield, Ill., May 26 (AP).—The Illinois Commerce commission today authorized 39 million dollars in financing by two utilities operating in the St. Louis area.

The Union Electric company of Illinois obtained approval of the issuance to its parent company, the Union Electric company of Missouri, of 1,550,000 shares of $20 par value common stock.

The East St. Louis and Interurban Water company was permitted to sell $7,500,000 par value of 3¾ per cent series B first mortgage bonds for not less than $7,987,500.

Bonds to Be Canceled.

The Union Electric order specified that the subsidiary company's 3¾ per cent first mortgage bonds due 1962 in the amount of $22,000,000 be canceled in return for receipt of 1,100,000 shares of the new stock. The remaining 450,000 shares are to be sold to the parent corporation.

The commission observed that the transaction is part of a program under which the Union Electric company of Missouri proposes to issue $80,000,000 in its own first mortgage and collateral trust bonds for public offering, and 150,000 shares of a new series of its own preferred stock. The Missouri company also plans to obtain from the North American company, owner of all of its outstanding common stock, an additional $10,000,000 before the end of the year thru sales of stock.

Arms Plants Busy.

The Illinois subsidiary's new funds will be spent largely on a new power plant at Venice, Ill., to cost $19,900,000. The plant has been made necessary by an increase in demand from armament manufacturers, it was said.

The water company's bond sale proceeds will be used largely for refunding and discharge of the company's obligations, $7,200,000 being set aside for this purpose.

URGE BROADENED FIELD FOR FHA IN FARM LENDING

Bankers Would Push Life Insurance Loans.

Important changes in the national housing act designed to improve the functioning of Federal Housing administration farm loans were proposed yesterday by the farm mortgage committee of the Mortgage Bankers association of America. S. M. Waters of Minneapolis, chairman of the committee, and former president of the association, said that the suggested broadening of farm loan procedure will open a vast investment field for life insurance companies and other institutional lenders, and materially assist the federal government indirectly in armament financing.

Eliminate 15% Provision.

One of the suggested changes is the elimination of the requirement that 15 per cent of FHA insured farm loans be spent on improvements. Another change would raise the limit of FHA loans to $25,000. Loans would be insured for 5 to 40 years.

"This system" Waters said of the revised program, "would require no federal subsidy and no federal money. The government would retain all necessary control over rates, charges, types of securities issued, and commissions paid.

"It would mean a standardized farm mortgage lending system with greater stability of interest rates in good and bad times—standardization of inspections, appraisals, mortgage documents and titles.

Would Provide Liquidity.

"It would give the farm mortgage something it has never had before—liquidity and marketability. All parts of the nation would be adequately served by lenders."

Waters said he believed that as much as $1,250,000,000 of farm mortgage loans could be transferred from federal agencies to private interests under such a plan. Of the more than 7 billion dollars of farm mortgage debt outstanding, government agencies hold about 40 per cent and life insurance companies 11 per cent, he said.

"Life insurance companies today are great reservoirs of money eagerly seeking profitable investments" Waters asserted. "They undoubtedly would reënter the farm loan field with the FHA farm loan procedure revised."

Yesterday's meetings of the National Association of Purchasing Agents and the preparedness program sponsored by the Illinois and national associations of manufacturers, both held in the Stevens hotel, brought out these sidelights:

The board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers recommended that business put a damper on instalment buying to avoid "a disastrous, 'silk shirt' buying spree by American factory workers."

The board adopted the following resolution: "Institutions providing instalment or other consumer credit should voluntarily curtail an undue expansion of such credit by requiring larger down payments and by shortening the terms of the contracts."

The directors recalled the credit-buying splurge of the last war and said the recommendation was intended to avoid the aftermath of depression which came after the period of high production in the early '20s.

Americans will be faced with shortages and price increases in foods, clothing, soaps, paints, and drugs because cargo space which ordinarily is used to carry raw materials for these products is being diverted to carry crude rubber, Col. George S. Brady, chief of the substitute and secondary materials section of the price division, said. He addressed the purchasing agents.

Purchasing agents must resist price advances and keep the price level stabilized so far as possible under rising costs, George W. Aljian, purchasing agent for the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining Corporation, Ltd., San Francisco, said.

"Speculative buying and overstocking must be discouraged," he commented, "if inflation, which every one dreads, is to be avoided."

At the Informashow of the purchasing agents' meeting, more than 100 industrial companies displayed newest processes and products. The United States Steel corporation displayed a model of a hot saw cutting red hot sections of steel pipe. Bethlehem Steel corporation demonstrated the operations of a blast furnace, open hearth furnace, and a rolling mill.

Plastics substitutes for metal were exhibited by the Plastics Materials Manufacturers' association and Chicago Molded Products company.

Because of the surplus demand for seats at the luncheons and banquets of the various meeting many business executives were unable to obtain reservations and had to sit on folding chairs in hallways or stand in order to hear the speakers. Several high salaried company heads were seen struggling with the simple machinery of the folding chairs. One top executive, after getting red in the face trying to unfold a chair, blushed even deeper when a hotel employé flipped the seat down with ease.

HOG PRICES RISE TO 3 YEAR PEAK; CATTLE SLUMP

The average price of hogs rose yesterday to the highest level in more than three years, while cattle fell to the lowest mark in 10 months. Packers paid an average of $9.50 per hundreds pounds for the hog supply, the highest since March, 1938, and the peak May average in four years. Top loads reached $9.65, peak since Aug. 6, 1938.

Unsettled wholesale markets for fresh pork resulting from consumer resistance to prices, were offset by lighter hog receipts and government pork and lard buying. Despite the rising costs of hogs, packers were unable to raise the $18.50 top for light loins, which equaled the lowest price for this cut since May 1. Two weeks ago when hogs averaged $9, packers obtained $20 a hundred pounds for loins.

Declines of 10 to 15 cents occurred in the market for steers and yearlings. Lambs met fair demand at steady prices.

SOME LONG TERM FEDERAL BONDS ACTIVE, STRONG

New York, May 26 (AP).—Long term, nontaxable United States government bonds were in demand in over-the-counter markets today, rising as much as 8-32 point, but exchange trading fell to the lowest levels for a full day since last Sept. 13.

All treasury issues were firm on announcement that $600,000,000 of new 2½s had been oversubscribed to the extent that investors would be allotted only about 8 per cent of their requests. The new bonds, on a when-issued basis, sold over the counter about even with Saturday's close of 102 25-32.

In the foreign list gains about matched small declines.

May Be Useful in Fusing Airplane Parts.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

Electric arc welding equipment, capable of fusing together the thin metal parts of an airplane, has been developed in a Chicago laboratory by the Sight Feed Generator company. The company is considering Chicago for the site of a plant to manufacture this apparatus, it was announced by Marshall Beymer, Chicago manager.

The new device makes electric arc welding possible at low currents, Beymer explained. Hitherto, ordinary electric welding had such heat intensity [3,600 degrees Fahrenheit] that thin metals or metals with high electric conductivity were burned thru before a weld could be accomplished.

How Device Operates.

Sight Feed is a large producer of acetylene generators for oxy-acetylene welding and of electric arc welders. Beymer said the company's engineers, working in a small laboratory, applied principles from radio engineering to develop a method of low amperage welding.

Temporarily dubbed the "cold arc" for lack of a better name, the device connects with any ordinary alternating current welder.

The cold arc has a current which oscillates [swings up and back] 195,000 times a second. When this is passed over the regular alternating current, which has 60 oscillations a second, a continuous flow of electric current is obtained, Beymer said. Thus the welder can employ a low current which will not burn thru thin sheets of aluminum, stainless steel, or duraluminum used in airplanes.

Factories in Wisconsin.

Sight Feed has its headquarters at Richmond, Ind., and factories at West Alexandria and Appleton, Wis. It has been making acetylene generators for 22 years.

A low current welding method also was developed recently by the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company of West Allis, Wis., makers of heavy machinery and other products. The device in the Allis-Chalmers equipment which permits welding with currents as low as 5 amperes is called the "Weldotron." The company has reported that sheets as thin as 1-100th of an inch can be welded by this process.

AVIATION CORP.

What do you think of Aviation Corporation stock?—W. C. H.

Answer: Aviation corporation stock is regarded as highly speculative. Only one cash dividend—18½ cents a share in 1938—has been paid on the stock. Earnings results of the company have been largely unsatisfactory, mainly because of development and expansion costs, but have shown improvement in recent months.

For the quarter ended February 28 this year, consolidated net income of the company and subsidiaries was $198,093, equal to 5 cents a capital share, against net loss of $196,447 in the corresponding period of 1940. There are now outstanding 5,782,222 shares of $3 par capital stock, reflecting recent financing in connection with the acquisition of Aviation & Transportation corporation assets.

Consolidated earnings of the company and its subsidiaries [excluding New York Shipbuilding and Auburn Central] compared as follows in the last five fiscal years ended Nov. 30:

	Net sales	Net income	Earned per share.
1936	†$3,516,000	†$ 104,016	$0.04
1937	3,987,000	*437,327	*0.16
1938	6,374,000	187,909	0.07
1939	3,302,000	*2,238,049	*0.57
1940	5,235,000	88,350	0.02

*Loss †Eleven months ended Nov. 30.

The operating subsidiaries had a combined total of more than 654 million dollars of unfilled orders last January 31, including $542,640,000 in shipbuilding orders. Government armament requirements have expanded the companies' activities materially in the last year

Aviation corporation was formed in 1929 originally to invest in and underwrite securities in the aviation industry. Since divesting itself of its control of several air transport lines in compliance with the air mail act of 1934, the company has emerged as a holding company with substantial interests in aircraft manufacturing.

Thru the recent merger with its affiliate, Aviation and Transportation, the company has acquired control of the New York Shipbuilding corporation and the Auburn Central Manufacturing company, which has metal stamping facilities for aircraft parts.

The aircraft interests of Aviation corporation include the wholly-owned Aviation Manufacturing corporation, organized in 1935; the controled Vultee Aircraft, Inc., established in 1939, and the Republic Aircraft Products corporation, acquired late last year. The company also has substantial investments in American Airlines, Inc., debentures, and in Pan American Airways Corp., and Roosevelt Field, Inc., stocks.

Day by Day on the Farm

By GAIL COMPTON

Thistle Perils Field.

May 26, 1941.

CANADA thistle is threatening to engulf a 12 acre field at the Fox river farm. This type of thistle is the worst weed pest with which the farmer has to contend.

The thistle is a native of Europe. It is believed to have been introduced in America, by way of Canada, thru impure farm seeds. The weed spread rapidly from Canada into the United States. Farm seeds imported to New England from Europe also accounted for its appearance in this country. The first official recognition of the weed was in a Vermont law passed in 1795.

Canada thistle.

The Canada thistle is a perennial, growing one to four feet high. The leaves are from two to seven inches long and usually have numerous hard, sharp pointed spines. The plant has deep seated roots that spread a dozen feet in every direction, sending up new shoots at short intervals.

Pest a Hardy One.

Because of its hardy nature it is extremely difficult to eradicate. Agricultural experts have worked for years to perfect a method of exterminating it. Many states have passed laws requiring the weed to be destroyed wherever it is found.

The thistles have a good start on the 12 acre field at the farm, but the farm manager has mapped out a plan which he believes will eliminate them. The weed still is in the bud stage and will be destroyed before it has a chance to go to seed.

The farm manager will attempt to smother the weed with a heavy crop of soy beans. Canada thistle thrives on plenty of sun and will not grow rapidly in the shade. Alfalfa has proved a valuable smother crop in the war against the thistle, but soy beans will be used in the patch to see what results they will give. The beans will cast a great deal of shade and should do the job.

Field to Be Plowed.

The field first will be plowed and disked until the weed plants are cut down and chopped up. Then the beans will be drilled in at the rate of two bushels to the acre. This is a heavy seeding and may lessen the possibility of getting a good yield of beans for seed at harvest time. Only a thick growth of beans can destroy the thistle, however, and the manager will have to take a chance on realizing a good crop from the patch.

Canada thistle grows wild on roadsides, in vacant lots, in forest preserves, and on railroad rights of way in the city. City people are just as responsible for the spread of the pest as are negligent farmers. Every property owner should inspect his premises for the weed and destroy all that he finds. Early treatment is the best method of control.

Spraying the weeds with sodium chlorate has proved practical in small areas. A solution of one pound of sodium chlorate to a gallon of water is effective. The solution should be applied at the rate of two gallons to a square rod for the first treatment. Three weeks later the thistles should be resprayed with one gallon of the solution to a square rod. Now is the proper time to spray.

STATE APPROVES 39 MILLIONS IN UTILITIES ISSUES

Additional Power Is Needed by Arms Industries.

Springfield, Ill., May 26 (AP).—The Illinois Commerce commission today authorized 39 million dollars in financing by two utilities operating in the St. Louis area.

The Union Electric company of Illinois obtained approval of the issuance to its parent company, the Union Electric company of Missouri, of 1,550,000 shares of $20 par value common stock.

The East St. Louis and Interurban Water company was permitted to sell $7,500,000 par value of 3¾ per cent series B first mortgage bonds for not less than $7,987,500.

Bonds to Be Canceled.

The Union Electric order specified that the subsidiary company's 3¾ per cent first mortgage bonds due 1962 in the amount of $22,000,000 be canceled in return for receipt of 1,100,000 shares of the new stock. The remaining 450,000 shares are to be sold to the parent corporation.

The commission observed that the transaction is part of a program under which the Union Electric company of Missouri proposes to issue $80,000,000 in its own first mortgage and collateral trust bonds for public offering, and 150,000 shares of a new series of its own preferred stock. The Missouri company also plans to obtain from the North American company, owner of all of its outstanding common stock, an additional $10,000,000 before the end of the year thru sales of stock.

Arms Plants Busy.

The Illinois subsidiary's new funds will be spent largely on a new power plant at Venice, Ill., to cost $19,900,000. The plant has been made necessary by an increase in demand from armament manufacturers, it was said.

The water company's bond sale proceeds will be used largely for refunding and discharge of the company's obligations, $7,200,000 being set aside for this purpose.

WALLACE'S FEE CUT UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

Frankfurter Gives Ruling; Roberts Dissents.

Washington, D. C., May 26 (AP).—The Supreme court upheld today a 1939 order issued by Vice President Henry A. Wallace, while secretary of agriculture, which reduced the maximum fees permitted commission agents at the Kansas City stockyards between 1933 and 1937.

Justice Felix Frankfurter delivered the decision on the long litigated controversy. Justice Owen D. Roberts dissented. This was the fourth time it had been before the Supreme court since Wallace issued an earlier order in 1933.

Calls Questioning Improper.

Justice Frankfurter asserted that a three judge federal court in Missouri had improperly subjected Wallace to an examination concerning his reasoning in approving the order. He added that Wallace, in writing a letter to a newspaper commenting on an earlier Supreme court decision, "merely indulged in a practice familiar in the long history of Anglo-American litigation, whereby unsuccessful litigants and lawyers give vent to their disappointment in tavern or press."

Wallace's 1939 order, prescribing the same rates he directed in the 1933 order, was held invalid by a three judge federal court in western Missouri.

In previous decisions, the Supreme court held that Wallace did not give the commission men a "full and fair hearing" in 1933 before ordering the rate reduction and had relied too much on subordinates who had served as "active prosecutors" of the litigation. Wallace then issued the 1939 order.

Tariff Case Review Denied.

The court refused to review a decision holding that a 50 per cent tariff reduction on corn imported from Cuba, granted by a 1934 trade agreement with the United States, did not extend to corn imported from Argentina in 1936.

The Ernest E. Marks company of Chicago contended that, since the Cuban rate was reduced from 20 cents per bushel to 10 cents, the tariff on Argentine corn should have been cut from 25 cents to 12½ cents.

Order Gas Suit Arguments.

The Supreme court ordered restored to the docket for reargument a 45 million dollar suit by securities holders of the Indianapolis Gas company against the city of Indianapolis. The case involves the right of the city to abrogate a 99 year lease agreement entered into by the Citizens Gas company before its properties were taken over by the city.

Soma Peto, Kansas City grain merchant, failed to obtain a review of a decision denying damages under the Sherman anti-trust act against Thomas Howell, alleged to have cornered the July, 1931, corn market on the Chicago Board of Trade. A jury had held Peto's trades were gambling transactions and hence he could not collect.
